

Connally Linked To Dairy Case

WASHINGTON (AP) — A 1971 tax audit of the nation's biggest dairy cooperative failed to disclose its massive illegal political donations, and court papers quote the co-op's former lobbyist as saying John B. Connally may have helped in the case.

Also, co-op lawyer Jake Jacobsen once told the dairy group's officials that Connally, who was then Secretary of the Treasury, wrote directly to the Internal Revenue Service district director about the audit, one source said. But the IRS man, R. L. "Bob" Phinney, a long-time friend and former business partner of Connally, denied that Connally contacted him about the matter.

Connally could not be reached for comment. His attorney, Edward Bennett Williams, declined comment.

The co-op, Associated Milk Producers, Inc., employed one of Connally's senior law partners, Marvin K. Collie, to handle the tax matter. Jacobsen testified to Watergate investigators that Connally cleared Collie's hiring in advance, several sources said.

The milk producers' former lobbyist, Bob A. Lilly, is quoted in public records as saying Connally "may have resolved" the tax matter. This remark appears in the handwritten notes of a lawyer who interviewed Lilly last year.

And the co-op's general manager, George L. Mehren, is quoted in similar fashion as saying Connally's partner Collie "got them off on that one, but said he could not do it again."

The IRS audit began when Doyle Bond, a revenue agent from the co-op's headquarters town, San Antonio, began asking about some suspicious checks.

Lilly said in a letter to Jacobsen that Bond seemed aggressive, and that Bond wanted to "raise an issue over our questionable expenditures." These expenditures may total several million dollars, recent disclosures indicate.

The IRS disallowed a few deductions, including one political outlay that it had uncovered before the audit began. These disallowed deductions were merely subtracted from the co-op's loss carryforward, which is the sum of unclaimed deductions held aside for future years.

What the IRS didn't find were $100,000 paid to Nixon fundraiser Herbert L. Kalmbach in 1969, at least $91,691 in corporate services and money to Hubert H. Humphrey's presidential campaign the year before, another $34,500 or more to Humphrey's 1970 senatorial campaign, and uncounted sums for other candidates and for office and salary expenses of the group's political trust.

Corporate contributions to political candidates are forbidden by federal law, and cannot be claimed as a business deduction on taxes. The milk producers have asserted themselves that the $100,000 paid to Kalmbach was unlawful and have asked for a refund. Two officials of the cooperative have pleaded guilty for their role in paying a portion of the 1968 Humphrey money, and a third is under indictment. In the Humphrey case, $22,000 of the illegal money was uncovered by an IRS audit in Little Rock after Connally left the Treasury Department.

A recent independent audit of the co-op's finances show that by mid-1971 more than $3 million had been paid from corporate funds to persons apparently involved fully or part-time in political activities.

In addition to the political spending, there is evidence in public records that the milk producers spent similar huge sums in illegal kickbacks to dairies that were reluctant to pay the high prices the co-op demanded for milk produced by its member farmers.

These alleged kickbacks and the illegal political expenditures cannot legally be deducted, but the 1971 audit failed to uncover them.

Lilly's letter to Jacobsen is dated Aug. 26, 1971, barely five months after Jacobsen had secured Connally's help in persuading President Nixon to raise milk price supports. Jacobsen was asked to help again.

Lilly said the IRS had discovered checks that were part of $90,711.07 which the co-op had paid in corporate money to print a lavish picture book of President Lyndon B. Johnson's messages to Congress in 1968. The co-op had claimed this political outlay as a business expense.

Lilly didn't mention it in the letter, but notations on invoices and checks indicate the book was printed at the request of someone in the White House and was intended for use in connection with the Democratic party's 1968 fundraising dinner for Congressional candidates.

Lilly said eyebrows were raised because one of the checks had been endorsed by the printing firm to the "Salute to the President Committee," which ran the Democratic fundraising affair.

Lilly asked Jacobsen "to make contact to point out any drastic action would be premature." He said the co-op's financial controller, Robert O. Isham, was worried about what Bond might uncover, and wanted to talk to someone "at a higher level."

Jacobsen testified that he hired Collie after checking with Connally to "see if it was OK" to use Connally's law partner in the matter. Connally had suspended his connection to the law firm, to which he later returned.

Collie said in a telephone interview that he looked over the facts about the LBJ book payments and advised the milk producers against trying to maintain their claim of a deduction. "I assume they took my advice," he said. "I got a very damn nominal fee."

When the matter was settled, Jacobsen told Isham and others that Connally had written to Phinney about the audit, one source said. "Jake insisted that Connally wrote to Phinney," he said.

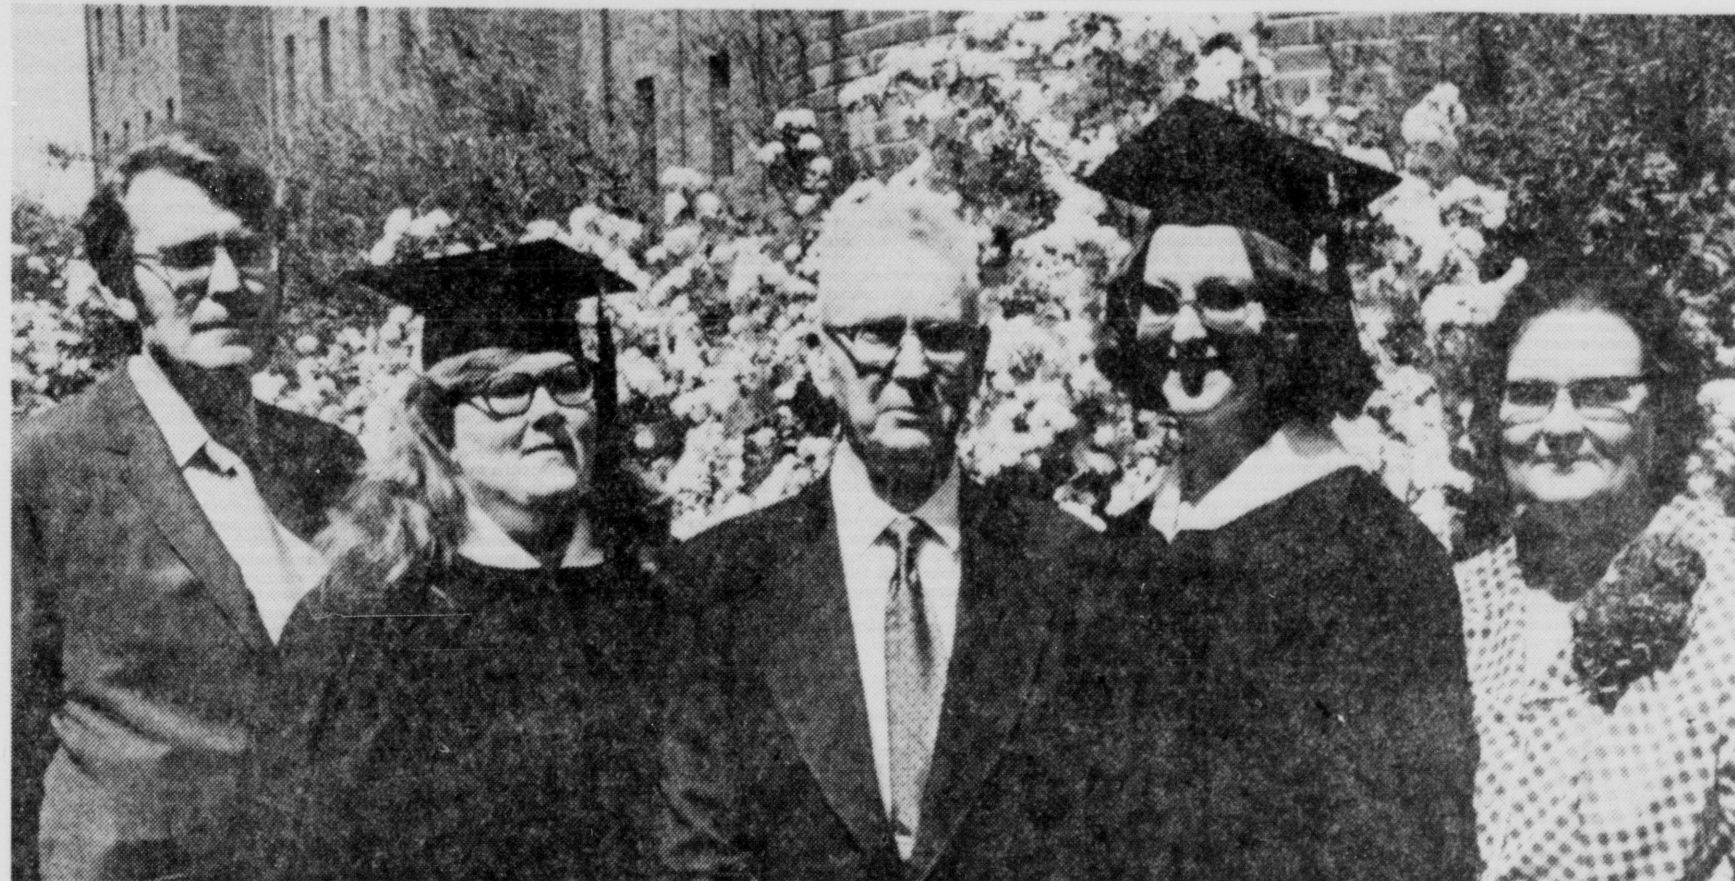

Isham was skeptical of the claim, the source said. "Jake said a lot of things, and he didn't know whether to believe him or not."

Phinney, in a telephone interview, denied that Connally had contacted him about the matter. "I had no contact whatever with anybody up there about this audit," he said.

Phinney, who retired in June and is active in Democratic politics, said he remains friendly with Connally even now that he is a Republican. Their association goes back at least to 1945 when Phinney was a founding director and stockholder in Connally's radio station in Austin.

Bond, the IRS agent who began the audit, declined to comment.

Phinney said the matter of the LBJ book was referred to the Justice Department, and Lilly is quoted as saying that the FBI investigated it. No prosecution resulted.

NWU Graduates Span Three Generations

When Jasper Johnson graduated from Nebraska Wesleyan University in 1910, he probably never guessed how many of his family would earn degrees from the same school. The final count isn't in yet, but two more names were added to the list Sunday: granddaughters Sandra Johnson and Diana Christensen. Attending the ceremonies, from left, were Paul J. Johnson of Hastings, class

Kuzma Sometimes 'Frustrated' As Poet

By LIANE GUENTHER
Star Staff Writer

"The proof of a poet is that his country absorbs him as affectionately as he has absorbed it," — Walt Whitman

At 29, Greg Kuzma has accomplished feats most poets could never hope to in a lifetime.

Yet, he admitted, "I don't know if I'm comfortable thinking of myself as a poet." He said he sometimes feels "very frustrated" and "dissatisfied."

Nine pamphlets of his poetry have been printed, as well as a book, entitled "Good News." Between 200 and 300 of his poems are published each year in magazines of all kinds and sizes . . . as many or more than any other poet in the United States," he said.

During a recent trip to the East Coast, the University of Nebraska assistant professor recorded some of his poetry for the Library of Congress tape library in Washington, D.C.

But these are only statistics. They are not what makes Greg Kuzma the "fine poet" critics have acclaimed him to be.

"I'm in the mood for poems so often, I write because I can't help it," he said. Next to his family, it'd be the biggest part of his life.

He said he can leave whatever he's doing, isolate himself upstairs with his typewriter and paper and "spend days or even months just fooling around."

"The trouble is," he said, "I have a hard time living genuinely and sincerely in the world." For him, the world becomes a "project" and he said he feels as though he's standing on the sidelines watching it go by.

"In a way, it puts me a little more in control of situations," he said. "But it also takes a lot of fun out of life. If I write enough, I'll never do anything else."

Kuzma said he turned to writing as an adolescent because he seemed "more troubled, more unhappy" than his friends.

"My parents and I didn't get along all that well, either," he added. "I tried to find out who I was in relation to the rest of the world."

Although he's publishing "Pebble," his own literary magazine, and a series of pamphlets, Kuzma said he's still not satisfied.

"I'm trying for truth in my writing," he said, "but I really don't know what truth is."

He said he's usually very interested in the poems he's working with at the time, then weeks or months later "they don't seem as good."

"I engage reality for a time, but reality slips away," he said. From time to time he travels to other college and university campuses to give poetry readings or conduct workshops.

He said he's "not that keen" on giving readings, but he does it to help defray the cost of running a printing press.

"Most of my stuff is meant for the eye, not the ear," he said.

In his travels, he said he finds more people than ever before interested in writing, "possibly because they can't find jobs in anything else."

Hundreds of thousands of people are writing poetry now a-days, he said, "and a good many of them have no training."

"They see it as a spilling out of emotion, but they don't have the techniques; the language and situations are not fresh," he said, almost with distaste.

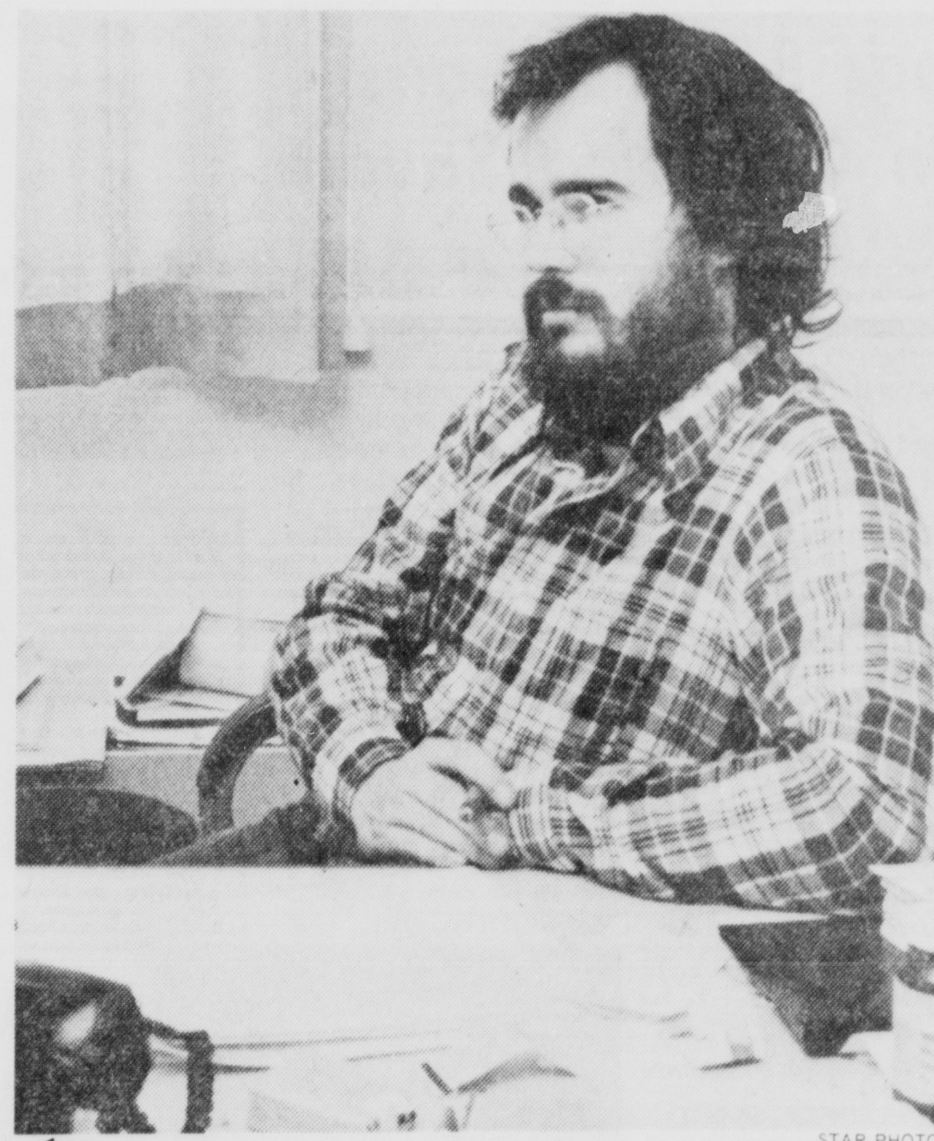

As far as his own career is concerned, Kuzma said, "I think I've gone as far as I want to go. I don't want to be a product of Madison Avenue."

He said he will continue to write by separating himself from "the system" and "lots of things I find myself caught up in."

"Maybe I'll even drop the magazine," he said, almost thinking aloud. He said he doesn't like the politics involved . . . publishers are expected to reciprocate favors.

"I don't know how I'll ever be satisfied," he said. "Maybe it's a good thing. Maybe writers only continue to write as long as they are frustrated."

"My challenge now is to find things of value that will last."

Some Progress Made In Disengagement Talks

JERUSALEM (AP) — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger said he had made some progress in talks Sunday with Syrian leaders in working toward a disengagement of Syrian and Israeli forces on the Golan Heights. But he said no agreement has been reached.

After his talks in Damascus Sunday, Kissinger's shuttle diplomacy took him on a flight back to Tel Aviv. He then drove to Jerusalem for another round of negotiations with Premier Golda Meir and top cabinet ministers.

Israeli and American officials had hoped the secretary's 4½ hours of talks with Syrian President Hafez Assad earlier in the day would score a breakthrough for a disengagement pact. But instead of a final response, Kissinger brought more questions to discuss with the Israelis.

Senior officials aboard Kissinger's jet said during the flight from Damascus that the Syrian and Israeli truce teams were close to agreeing on key elements of a settlement, but that major differences still remained.

"We have passed from the state of general discussion and consideration to a detailed and complete examination of all the elements of disengagement," Kissinger told newsmen just before leaving the Syrian capital.

Kissinger had departed for Damascus early Sunday with his spirits buoyed by what American officials described as a definite and positive change in Syria's attitude. The new tone — on the 15th day of Kissinger's latest Middle East mission, led the U.S. officials to upgrade the odds for a settlement by the end of the week to better than 50-50.

Kissinger's next shuttle to Damascus was set for Tuesday, and American officials said by then he is almost certain to know if he can achieve a separation of forces.

Mexican-American Political Interest Up

By BOB GUENTHER
Star Staff Writer

The 1974 elections are witnessing an awakening interest in government among Nebraska's Mexican-American population, according to Stan Porras, director of the State Mexican-American Commission.

Voters in three Nebraska communities Tuesday will see the names of at least one Mexican-American on their ballots for elected offices including city council and the local school board. A total of five candidates of Mexican-American descent are running, Porras said.

In Grand Island, two women, Yolanda Chavez and Mariana Ramirez are seeking seats on the local school board.

Toby Maestas, a Mitchell plumber, is a candidate for that Panhandle community's school board.

And in Scottsbluff, Don Ferreyra is running for the Scottsbluff school board, while Pete Urdiales is the first Mexican-American to run for a spot on the Scottsbluff city council, Porras said.

Porras conceded that if he were still living in Scottsbluff he also would be running for the city council.

"This is the first time in Nebraska's history that we've had so many candidates," he said.

"I think we see it occurring now because of dissatisfaction with government and frustrations in their own personal lives."

Porras said a high degree of concern in the Mexican-American community about the quality of education is reflected in the fact that four of the five candidates want a role in policy decisions of their local school boards.

Those four candidates for the Grand Island, Mitchell and Scottsbluff school boards are particularly concerned about the tremendous dropout rate among Mexican-American high school students and the low percentage that go on to college, Porras said.

"I think they hope to bring a change of attitude to the school boards to see the how's and why's of dropouts," he said.

"It's not just the student's fault, it's the system's. They're trying to make some headway toward solving the problem."

Porras did not predict how the five Mexican-American candidates would fare Tuesday and ultimately in November.

But, he said, "Even if they don't win, at least they've made an impact on their communities by raising the issues and getting people to think about them."

Should they lose, he said he does not expect it would mean an abandonment of politics by Mexican-Americans.

"They realize it's largely a matter of getting their name out before the voters. To win in the end may require a few setbacks," he said.

Porras said he hopes in the next two years Mexican-American candidates for statewide offices, such as state senator, will emerge.

Asked why no Mexican-Americans filed for the seat being vacated by Sen. Terry Carpenter of Scottsbluff, Porras said he felt the $4,800 annual salary might have played a role.

"This has possibly been a deterrent (to Mexican-American candidates for the Legislature)," he said.

Consequently, Porras said he strongly supports Amendment 1 to raise legislators' pay.

Hearst Not Surprised At Blindfold Discovery

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Randolph A. Hearst said Sunday he is neither surprised nor enouraged by reports that a bloodhound led agents to a blindfold bearing the scent of his kidnapped daughter.

"It is not surprising they found it," said Hearst, president and editor of the San Francisco Examiner. "I never at any time believed she was taken except against her will. I always felt she's been coerced."

The FBI had no comment on the report that on May 2 a bloodhound trained to detect the scent of Patricia Hearst led agents to a blindfold fashioned from sponges. Agents had taken the dog into an apartment that had been used by the terrorist Symbionese Liberation Army.

"I am not encouraged," said Hearst of the report. "I would be a damned sight more encouraged if they would get her back."

The Chicago Tribune, quoting federal sources, made the report in its Sunday editions.

If confirmed, the development could indicate that Miss Hearst still is being held against her will. In her most recent taped messages, the 20-year-old coed repudiated her parents, said she had cast her lot with her abductors and participated in a $10,690 bank robbery with SLA members.

Hearst has contended that Miss Hearst was brainwashed by her abductors.

"The girl we've known all her life would not say something like that of her own free will," Hearst said after hearing the tape in which Miss Hearst renounced her parents.

She is wanted as a material witness to the bank robbery. The SLA claims it kidnapped Miss Hearst from her Berkeley apartment on Feb. 4.

Twisters Charge Up Atlantic Coast

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — A line of tornadoes snaked through southeast Georgia and continued up the Atlantic coast Sunday, leaving at least three persons dead and 13 injured.

The National Weather Service in Atlanta said the area of severe winds and thunderstorms was moving northeast.

Officials said a tornado touched down in the Sumnerville, S.C., area near Charleston but there were no known injuries.

Becky Edwards, 22, and 8-year-old Connie Anderson were killed when twisters smashed into a pair of mobile homes near Glennville, Ga., in Tattnall County.

Seven persons were injured in the wake of the winds, which lifted roofs off houses and toppled trailers off their foundations. Authorities said one person, a 13-year-old girl, underwent emergency surgery at a Savannah hospital, where she was listed in serious condition.

In nearby Effingham County in the Rincon community, police said Lorien Manning, 60, died and her husband and grandchildren were injured when a tornado slammed into several mobile homes.

Tornadoes and heavy winds overturned about two dozen mobile homes and tore roofs in Jacksonville, Fla., as heavy thunderstorms and hail hit the area.

Police said there were no known injuries. One twister hit several residences and trailers while another ripped roofs off three warehouses and slammed an empty truck into an unoccupied car.

Three others persons were also injured in that touchdown.

Reds Begin Repairs On Crumbled Square

MOSCOW (AP) — Red Square has withstood battles, beheadings and the light cavalry of the Golden Horde, but apparently it can't take the ponderous tread of the Red Army.

Closed until next November for what the Soviet news agency Tass said was "repair and restoration work," the vast square was sealed off by a high fence Sunday and was cluttered with cranes, trucks and bulldozers.

Tass said the project included a block by block restoration of the Lenin mausoleum and a facelift for the Spassky Tower, the Kremlin's main tower.

Tass acknowledged that the passage of intercontinental missiles and other massive military hardware had taken a toll on the square's granite cobblestones, and workers were to reinforce the earthen bed.

The agency said the government was spending millions of rubles on the Red Square renovation. Repair crews were to work daily in three shifts in efforts to complete the job in time for the annual mass demonstration on the anniversary of the October revolution.

New York Times News Summary

Visit Seen As Sign

Cairo — Despite the increasing influence of the United States in Egypt, the Soviet Union's assets in the Arab world remain large and numerous. The visit of Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko to Damascus is regarded as a new sign that the Soviets intend to protect these assets and to meet the American challenge, but without endangering détente with Washington. Western diplomats are convinced that Gromyko, while temporarily dwarfed by Secretary of State Henry Kissinger, will come into his own again when the Geneva Conference reconvenes and considers the fundamental political issues involving a Palestine state, security of the area and final boundaries.

Agonizing Decision

Washington — The United States government is slowly approaching an agonizing decision on whether to give away more food to nations approaching starvation at the risk of starting a new surge of food prices at home. Secretary of Agriculture Earl L. Butz recognizes the problems involved, but does not believe they are imminent because of the enormous American harvest in prospect this year. He believes the harvest would permit some "increases in food aid" in the coming 12 months, above what had been planned, without any important effect on domestic prices. Other officials are less confident.

Is His Mind Made Up?

Washington — There were a number of indications that President Nixon, whatever he may decide in the future about relinquishing his office, is now acting as if he has made up his mind to let the constitutional impeachment process in Congress run its course.

Still Just An Idea

Washington — Six months after President Nixon pencilled "Project Independence" into his Nov. 7 energy speech, several hundred people in a dozen federal agencies are involved in the most ambitious exercise in peacetime economic forecasting, planning and policy-making in the country's history — trying to develop a working definition.

Rangel Asks End To Opium Growing Plan

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Charles B. Rangel, D-N.Y., asked President Nixon Sunday to scrap what was described as a White House plan to grow opium poppies in Arizona and the state of Washington.

Rangel said in a letter to the President that if the administration is considering such a plan it would jeopardize an agreement with the Turkish government to curtail opium production.

Rangel, who represents a district in the heart of New York City, said he became aware of the plan from published news reports.

He quoted the reports as saying the plan calls for the growing of 400 acres of opium poppies at Walla Walla, Wash. and Phoenix, Ariz., for medical use only.

"The claimed opium shortage which has prompted such planning has not been substantiated by the government," said Rangel. "In fact, John Bartels, administrator of the Federal Drug Enforcement Administration, has said that the opium shortage has been greatly exaggerated by the pharmaceutical companies."

Rangel declared that, "any increasing of the supply of opium in this country, either from external or internal sources, will inevitably lead to an increase of heroin in the illicit market and an exacerbation of the problem of drug addiction" in the United States.

Rangel visited the new government of Turkey last March to investigate rumors that it was going to resume opium production. "I am convinced that the Turkish government is seriously considering this action," he told the President in the letter, dated May 8 but released Sunday.

Rangel said that he expressed his fears to the State Department and was told high level discussions were being conducted with the Turkish government.

"I strongly feel that talk of domestic opium production originating from the highest echelons of our government can only have a debilitating effect on our negotiating position," he said.

Sculptor Creates Pieces To Smell

London (AP) — This year's Summer Exhibition at the Royal Academy of Art quite literally stinks, and sculptor Geoffrey Clarke is proudly responsible.

Among the 1,373 works on display at the prestigious and always controversial summer show are five "Smellies" by the 49-year-old associate of the Royal Academy.

His sculptural groupings — with titles like "King and Queen," "Fair and Eternal Spring" and "Towards Retreat" — come replete with vials of erotic and sometimes noxious scents and aromas that help the gallery-goer achieve "total ambience" in appreciating the artist's abstractions.

"The queen smells lovely, but the king has a problem," sniffed tourist Karen Stephan of Chicago, getting a whiff of Clarke's genius from a brass-stoppered bottle offered by a gallery attendant.

The scent bottles are actually part of the sculpture and are arrayed like children's blocks to represent a human being, an automobile or a farm house.

In "Passage of Moments," Clarke's largest work which he just sold for $2,400, aromas of coffee, tobacco, cooking sherry, grass and woodsmoke help the viewer follow the artist on an abstract journey by car from his town house to a farm house in the countryside.

Fifteen scents accompany the work. But, says Clarke, "fresh bread is still missing — the chemists just can't seem to reproduce that bakery aroma — and I'm not too happy with the town smells."

"Carbon monoxide, you know, has no smell, and I'm trying to do something with tar and dust."

"Dark and Constant Origin," which the sculptor has identified in the exhibition as "an olfactory sandcast metal with essential oils," looks like a tarantula under glass or the innards of a switchboard recently ripped out by a neurotic telephone operator, but the attending smells, according to gallery official Linda Gaisman, are meant to suggest "male sexual smells of darkness and passion."

An almost identical accompanying piece called "Fair and Eternal Spring," offers womanly aromas of "Lightness and Freshness."

"Doesn't smell like my man," snorted a dowager-type in Gatsby spicurels, sniffing the male of the species.

It brought a giggle from a gaggle of school girls in identical plaid skirts who asked to take a whiff of the cooking sherry, then went off to view "Girl on a Bed," an enormous bare-bottomed charmer in plaster by sculptor James Butler. That's another big hit at the show.

With the help of an industrial chemist, whom he names on a credit line at the show, Clarke has been experimenting with odiferous sculpture for the past seven months.

His belief is that the "predominant senses of sight and sound have become increasingly dulled by over-exposure to mass impersonal media."

"Penetration of man's thickening skin becomes more difficult and can be achieved only through total ambience. I am therefore proposing communication principally through the least damaged sense, the sense of smell."

Public Schools Focus Spotlight On Art

Monday, May 13, 1974 The Lincoln Star 3

By DICK HOLMAN
Star Staff Writer

Everywhere they turned Sunday, there was a piece of art — 105 of them, in fact — adorning stark file cabinets, lining dull walls and brightening back offices and shelves.

And the approximately 100 who turned out weren't connoisseurs quietly scrutinizing gallery overflow; most were justifiably proud parents of Lincoln 7th-12th graders whose work went on display in the public schools Spotlight on Art.

"I think this gives a lot of opportunities to people so their names can be known," said Frank Daharsh, 17-year-old Lincoln Southeast senior. And it allows the public "to appreciate art work that school children do," he added.

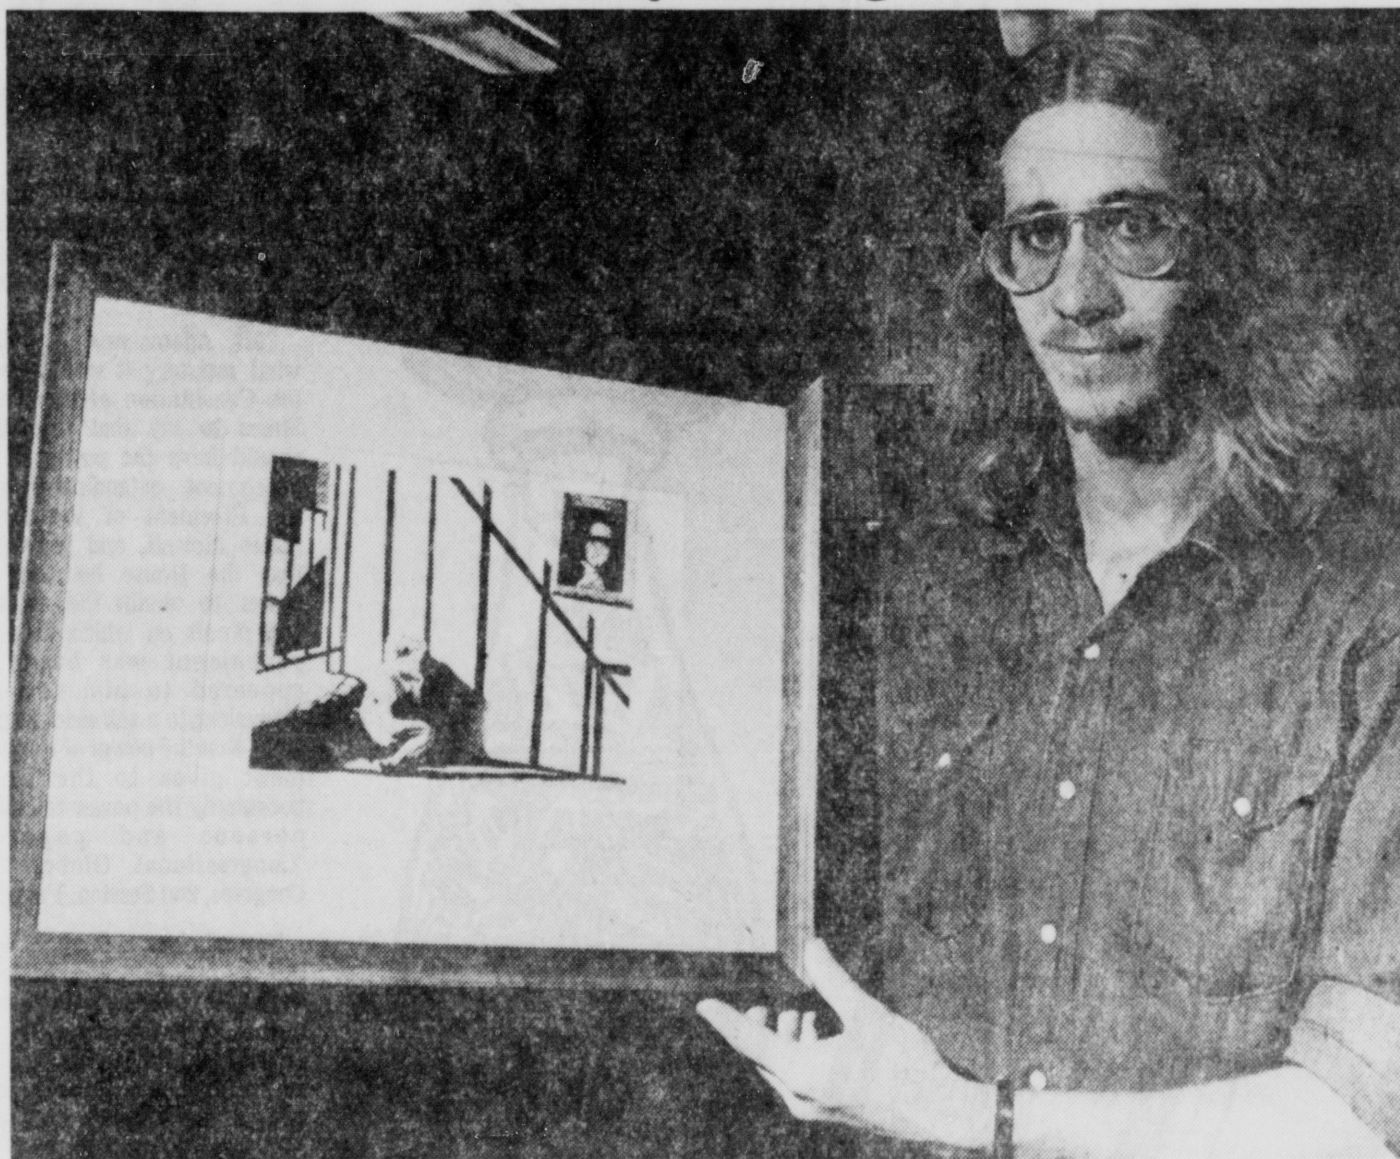

Sponsored by the Lincoln Board of Education, the fifth annual show displays pieces by faculty and staff this year, featuring strictly student art, said art consultant Roger D. Van Deventer.

Spotlight opens every Mother's Day, and the pieces will remain on display in the Public Schools Administration Building, 720 S. 22nd, for a year. The public may view them weekdays from 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.

Display items are for sale, Van Deventer said. Each is labeled to allow individuals to contact the artist and negotiate a sale price.

The artist must be willing to replace his work with a piece of similar size, to maintain the show's continuity; if the artist is unwilling, the object may not be sold, he said.

Van Deventer called Spotlight "a first-class project," submitting its success lies in the school board's acknowledgement of the art curriculum and student talent. The board provides framing, mats and labels, adding a professional touch to the amateur artists' works.

The students' range of versatility includes papier mache, crayon, water color, stoneware, batik, photography, stoneware, collage, engraving, sculpture, wood, oil and acrylic painting, among others.

"I think this is a pretty neat idea," Daharsh said of the show, in which he has a scratchboard on exhibit.

"It's the first scratchboard

I've ever done," said the aspiring artist, explaining he painted India ink on a special paper surface, then scratched away the design with a pointed tool.

"It's a negative process," he said. "It just leaves the white." Daharsh said he started out in oil painting, but prefers working with acrylics.

The scratchboard took him "about a week of class periods" to finish, he said. Asked how much he would sell it for, he replied that some artists can finish a piece in a hour and charge high prices. Even if something takes him two weeks, "I'll give it away to people as long as I know they'll appreciate it."

But he admitted he may have to take more of a commercial approach to his work in the future.

Daharsh is one of about 40 secondary students in the Public Schools Artists Guild, begun last September.

Van Deventer said teachers

select students for membership, based on their ability and interest in art, and create "special kinds of situations we think will continue to nurture that ability."

This summer, for example, the schools are planning a retreat for guild members on the 200-acre Grandpa's Woods near Elmwood, where the students may work in different media and exchange ideas with professional artists.

The program is part of the schools Year of the Arts.

NPTV Auction Offers Variety

There were no traditional fast-talking auctioneers, but the auction Sunday night by the Nebraskaans for Public Television Inc. (NPTV) had enough items to please any bargain hunter.

A unique offering was six ampules of frozen Charolais cattle semen, donated by a Sutherland cattle company. Other unusual items were a $500 scholarship from Chadron State College, a 1962 Chevrolet Impala sedan and 102 shares of common stock.

More traditional donations included clothes, vacations, theater tickets and household objects. Bidding was brisk on such items as shoes, a pewter liquor cabinet and a Husky puppy.

Sunday night's bids totaled $3,000, according to George Collins, NPTV announcer and auction coordinator. The goal for the three-night auction is $30,000.

Most items were auctioned for less than the suggested retail, or donor, value. However, some were sold for more; purchasers who bid more than the donor price could deduct the difference on their tax statement.

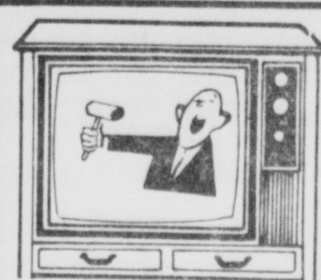

The auction is a project by NPTV volunteers to raise money for use in production of 13 public TV programs and series on the Nebraska ETV network.

Collins urged Nebraska merchants to donate more items for the auction's remaining two nights. He said 450-500 items already have been donated, but added that 200-300 more are needed.

Because of the shortage of donations, he said he could not tell what would be up for auction Monday and Tuesday nights.

No Other Paper Like It! Only this paper carries all of the splendid features you are reading in this issue.

Nixon Aide Attacks 'Vicious' Campaign

Washington (AP)—Bolstered in spirit by the echo of cheers from the nation's midland, President Nixon spent a quiet, rainy day at the White House Sunday as one of his lawyers charged that a "malicious and vicious" campaign is afoot to poison the public's mind against him.

Presidential Counsel J. Fred Buzhardt said that in recent days some of the tapes of Nixon's conversations contain ethnic slurs and "some of the most outrageous language you've ever heard."

"It's clear that a concerted campaign has been made to cause these to be publicized," Buzhardt said. "I can only characterize this as a malicious and vicious attempt to poison the public's mind against him."

A source familiar with the tapes, however, told The Associated Press late Sunday that "no reasonable person who heard those remarks could possibly deny that they were racial slurs."

Buzhardt, referring to reports that Nixon had used ethnic characterizations such as "Jew-boy" and "Wop" in speaking of government officials, said he had listened to "close to 40" of the tapes and "I don't remember the word 'Jew.' I do remember the word 'Jewish' being used... somebody may have said somebody was Polish."

In any case, said Buzhardt, none of the references was used as a slur.

Buzhardt appeared on CBS' "Face the Nation."

Buzhardt reaffirmed turning over any further tapes or documents to either the House Judiciary Committee or the special prosecutor on the Watergate matter.

Woods Park Tennis Complex

Plans for a new tennis complex at Woods Park sound good at first blush, but the City Parks and Recreation Board is wise in taking a second look at the proposal before going ahead with its final recommendation.

The advisory board last week gave tentative support for a plan which calls for construction of a two-level clubhouse, hiring of a pro to manage the center and give lessons, construction of additional courts up to a total of 24 — with six to be converted to indoor courts during the winter months — and construction of wind-breaks and bleachers. A special committee will study the proposal, submitted by the Lincoln Tennis Association.

In presenting the plans for the tennis complex, LTA President Jack Eidswick left some impressions which we hold up to question.

A survey he conducted, Eidswick said, showed that people lined up to play tennis at Woods Park, leaving various neighborhood courts vacant at times. If that's true — and we don't think it is — it would mean that the public tennis program in Lincoln has been a miserable failure. It would point to the need to better inform the public as to the locations of neighborhood courts. And if some neighborhood courts are vacant at times, that would also indicate that the unlighted ones should be provided with lighting. Overall, it's our belief that there is not a sufficient number of tennis courts in Lincoln to serve the tennis-playing public.

Eidswick also said that the proposed center could pay for itself by charging fees for certain activities. But that could require the setting of highly prohibitive fees which would effectively exclude many people who can't afford the fee from playing tennis at the complex. It would be, in that case, nothing less than a country club. And that doesn't fit in with what we believe to be the proper concept of public recreation.

Again, the idea of a tennis complex to supplement the existing courts at Woods Park is appealing, especially the proposal to hire a pro who can build and maintain interest in the game by instructing beginners. But the complex should not be built at the expense of the neighborhood court program. Nor should the proposal be sold to the city as a facility which can pay for itself. It should be built only with the idea in mind that it will be a facility which most anyone can afford to use, and that will probably mean it will have to receive an on-going public subsidy.

VIRGINIA PAYETTE

Pound Of Flesh Is Paid

NEW YORK — If you were feeling just a touch richer last week, it's not all spring fever. For the first time in 1974, your paycheck included money you can spend on yourself.

Everything you've earned so far this year was for taxes, 112 full working days when you slogged through snow, ice, sleet and hangers to feed federal, state and local coffers.

But for a week now, it's been all yours.

This, of course, isn't the way it really works out. It's just one way the Tax Foundation, Inc., uses to let us know how bad things really are. And they work so hard calculating all those figures, you kind of hate to tell them we knew it all along.

Actually, they have tables that break it down on a day-to-day basis. These are more realistic, but after you look them over, you want to rush out and kick the cat. Or your congressman.

What they show is that this year we'll be working longer than ever to pay Uncle Sam. If you check in at 9 a.m., it will be 11:38 (not counting coffee breaks) before you make a dollar you can call your own.

Or, for the masochists in the group, all day Monday and up to 2:10 p.m. on Tuesday belong to the tax collector.

Ready for a few more depressing statistics? Well, the Tax Foundation has them. You know any institution with a name like that has to be mighty short on good news.

If you think April 15 hurt more than usual this year, you're right. But think back (if you can bear it) to the last 10 years. Did you realize that what the federal government took out in withholding taxes alone adds up to more than a year's pay?

Not only that (are you still with me?), you paid almost as much in other federal bites on gasoline, telephones, and what businessmen collect in the form of higher prices so they can pay their Social Security and other taxes.

The state and local governments don't let you off easy, either. Some folks will get hit harder than others, depending on where they live, but nationally it averages out to 11 per cent, which makes a grand tax total for 1974 of 33 per cent.

Psych yourself up to enjoying this week's paycheck if you can, because any euphoria connected with taxes is short-lived. It's not going to get any better for a while.

All that tax-reform talk will probably turn out to be just so much election-year hot air. The Democrats say they are all for it, even up to a $10-billion slash. But Treasury Secretary William E. Simon isn't running for office and he says a cut now would be "highly inflationary." He's against it.

So is President Nixon and so are most economists. The best we can hope for, looks like, is an increase in personal exemptions from $750 to $825. And even that's iffy.

But, with the lid off price controls, every little bit helps. And it's probably safe to figure that those folks (48 per cent) who told a pollster they would "save" any money from tax relief were talking about the cookie jar — or some other place they can get at in a hurry.

Ticks, Taxes, Bunk And Bunker

Ticks, Please, Don't Squeeze

Lincoln, Neb.

The following special interest poem is regarding ticks:

While strolling through the park one day in the merry, merry month of May, I was taken by surprise by a pair of insect's eyes. I picked it off and threw the tick away.

A tick was all it meant to me. We weren't as happy as could be.

It bothered me not to leave her for I don't want spotted fever. Some may want to laugh and scoff but from now on I'll use more "Off." Cause I don't want to meet her family, either.

When you remove a tick, would you please remember, like the Charmin, don't squeeze.

CONTACT HEALTH DEPARTMENT

'Tax Relief' Involved

Lincoln, Neb.

Very few laymen understood what kind of tax relief was involved in LB772, sold under the guise of state aid to education. Governor Exon and too few senators did understand that it was "state aid to big property owners" at the expense of little people. Now, Governor Exon and the candidate for lieutenant governor, Gerald Whelan, are the only candidates for these offices on the primary ballot who are opposed to LB772.

To fund the provisions of this scheme would require raising the sales tax by 40% and the income tax by 36%, according to tax experts. This would cost wage-earners about $200 more in state taxes per year, on the average. Big property owners would save more in taxes than the small wage-earners' entire income.

With national inflation, runaway profits and prices and then about 40% increase in state taxes for two years before we allegedly get 20 mills off our real estate taxes for two years before we allegedly get 20 mills off our real estate taxes here in Lincoln, how can we come out when we can't even get a 10% increase in wages? We would be trading about $200 for less than $100 property tax relief.

These are the reasons we in the Nebraska State Council of Machinists voted unanimously during our business session in Beatrice May 5 to support the referendum petition to block LB772. We have resolved never again to be so duped.

JAMES RESTON

Nixon's Hornet Nest Buzzes Only Louder

WASHINGTON — In the Congressional Globe for June 4, 1842, the official stenographer in the House of Representatives reports John Quincy Adams as follows:

"Mr. Adams said . . . Why, what mockery it would be for the Constitution of the United States to say that the House should have the power of impeachment, extending even to the President of the United States himself, and yet to say that the House had not the power to obtain the evidence and proofs on which their impeachment was based. It appeared to him (Adams) equivalent to a self-evident principle, that the power of impeachment gives to the House necessarily the power to call for persons and papers." Congressional Globe, 27th Congress, 2nd Session, Page 580)

Nevertheless, 132 years later this is precisely the principle President Nixon is challenging in the Watergate case. He has refused to turn over the additional "evidence and proofs" requested by the House Judiciary Committee and the special prosecutor, Leon Jaworski, and his lawyer, James D. St. Clair, has threatened to fight the case all the way through the Supreme Court if necessary.

It was probably inevitable that this conflict between the President's claims to "confidentiality" and the House's power to call for "persons and papers" in an impeachment proceeding, should be submitted to the highest court for judicial review. But again what is odd about the President's defense is that he has chosen to risk this confrontation in the Supreme Court at the worst possible time for himself.

Mr. Nixon had the option of sticking to his original position: that demands for private presidential documents were an invasion of the "confidentiality" of the presidency, which he would oppose by invoking his "executive privilege."

As the U.S. Court of Appeals stated in Nixon vs. Sirica, "wholesale public access to executive deliberations and documents would cripple the executive as a co-equal branch." It is a hard case to argue in an impeachment inquiry into possible criminal action by the President and his aides, but it might have been sustained by the Supreme Court.

What the President has done, however, is to weaken his own argument for the "confidentiality" of his documents by releasing over 1,000 pages of the most damaging executive conversations ever made public by a chief executive.

As his lawyer said in submitting edited transcripts of the White House tapes to the Congress, "The President . . . does recognize that the House Committee on the Judiciary has constitutional responsibilities to examine fully into his conduct and therefore the President has provided the annexed transcripts of all or portions of the subpoenaed conversations that were recorded . . ."

Having broken his own rule against releasing confidential documents, the President is now insisting that he alone must decide what other evidence the House needs to meet its constitutional responsibilities, who shall be permitted to hear the tapes to assure that a "full and complete disclosure" has been made, and what is relevant or irrelevant to the House's investigation.

Nixon has insisted that his lawyer be allowed to sit in on the private and public deliberations of the Judiciary Committee and interrogate witnesses, and this request has been granted, but he rejects the suggestion that the committee's electronics experts and lawyers be allowed to check the tapes against the transcripts for accuracy.

Thus, he has not ended the clamor for more information or silenced the doubts about the accuracy of his disclosures, or protected his privacy by releasing the edited White House conversations, but increased the demand for more information, raised even more suspicions than before, provoked an outcry among his own leaders on Capitol Hill — even a demand by the Chicago Tribune for his resignation or dismissal — and challenged the House and his own special prosecutor to a constitutional crisis in the Supreme Court.

Maybe he is gambling that this Supreme Court would sustain him, but if it doesn't, he will either have to hand over the evidence requested by the House, or disobey the court, which would be a subversion of the Constitution and probably a decisive impeachable offense.

How could he have picked this cast of characters and given them such power? How could he have installed this electronic listening system, bugged his own men and even visiting heads of government without their knowledge, and then talked the way he did, knowing the tapes were running?

His appointments to the Supreme Court and some of his appointments to the Justice Department, has approval of a secret investigating ring in the White House, his efforts to involve the F.B.I. and the C.I.A. in the cover-up, his misjudgment of Agnew, Cox, and Richardson, his misleading accounts of the scandals which he then exposed by releasing the transcripts — all this and much more raise doubts about the confidence in his judgment in the White House in the next two and a half years.

And the feeling here, as he backs and fills on handling over the evidence the Congress wants, and even trots out a resident priest in the White House to defend his character, indicates that his judgment, under pressure, is not getting better but worse.

Archie Bunker Not Alone

Lincoln, Neb.

It seems Archie Bunker isn't the only remaining bigot, as witness the consideration of Willard School for housing for the South Dakota Indians. These people either forget or are unaware that the Willard district isn't exactly an elite area.

I would have less fear of the 75 Indians than the 284 whites signing the petition.

CONCERNED

Hamilton's Response

In his "Point of View" (May 11) one of my opponents, Mr. Hibler, misrepresents once again my position on the proposed US 77 West By-Pass. On April 25, both Mr. Hibler and I released statements on this question. I stated that I support constructing such a by-pass "only if the environmental questions concerning Wilderness Park can be satisfactorily resolved." I support preservation of the park and I support construction of a by-pass and I will work to accomplish both giving priority, obviously, to the park as it already exists.

Mr. Hibler cites the recent decision on the Northeast Radial as an example that road plans can be subject to second thinking. He does not point out that I, along with many others, have worked against the radial for many years and appeared in position at the public hearing. Although I don't live in the path of the radial or next to Wilderness Park, I too have a keen appreciation for our natural environment and will have high priority to its protection if I am elected.

However, I have not run a single issue campaign. Many complex problems need to be faced by county government. I have released position papers on the following subjects: "Consolidation of City and County Governments," "Better Management for County Government," "US 77 West By-Pass," "Support for Senior Citizens," "Citizen Participation in County Government," "The County Planning Process" and "Responsible Delivery of Human Services" (I care about the quality of the natural environment and also about all other conditions which effect the quality of people's lives). It is unfortunate that the other candidates have not dealt with all these important issues.

I believe that county government needs people that possess the qualities, experience and temperament to deal on a day to day basis with all the complex tasks of government. We need leaders who are open to criticism and ideas and who are able to work with all sectors of the community. It is on this basis that the voters should make their judgment.

Mr. Rozelle is busy at the moment. Can you wait?

Well, yes, yes, I suppose. Did you tell him who this is?

Yes, but he has another phone call right now. He said to tell you he'd be with you in a minute.

Okay, okay. I'll wait. I'll put you on hold. That's where I am, all right. Heh. Heh. Pardon?

On, nothing. Just put me on hold. (Two minutes pass.) This is Pete Rozelle.

Oh, hi, Pete. How 'ya doing?

Fine.

I know you're awfully busy. I'm sorry to bother you. I'll try to be brief and not take too much of your time.

Fine.

I was wondering . . . I haven't made any firm decision yet, or anything like that . . . I wouldn't want to mislead you into thinking . . . well, I'm just thinking out loud. I'll get to the point.

Fine.

I'm getting a little tired of this job. You know, after five years a person needs a change. You end up doing the same things over and over again. The challenges begin to disappear. A person needs to grow and meet new tests, fight new battles. You can grow stale in a job. You suddenly wake up and find yourself in a rut. You begin to feel trapped. A person needs . . . Can you hold a minute?

Well, yes, I suppose. (A minute passes.)

Okay, I'm back. I had to take a call from Shula. You were saying?

Shula, how is he?

Fine.

I was just sick to see those guys jump. The Dolphins just won't be the same after next year. I hope this bidding doesn't get out of hand and ruin The Game. I know you're concerned about it, but I think you did the right thing in opening it up with those new rules . . . I said I think you did the right thing.

Fine.

Well, let me get right to the point. I may be leaving this job. I've prepared a letter giving two weeks notice, but I haven't signed it yet. I was wondering whether there would be anything available at the NFL if I decided to seek new opportunities.

(One minute passes.)

Uh, Pete, are you there?

Yes.

I was wondering if there might be an opening at the NFL.

Survey: Plurality Wants Nixon Impeached, Removed

By LOUIS HARRIS
In the aftermath of President Nixon's release of the 1,300 pages of edited tape transcripts and his refusal to turn over any more materials on the Watergate case, by 49-41% a plurality of the American people now want him "impeached and removed from office." This is a rise from a 42-42% standoff in public opinion for removal of the President in April.

On seven key counts, a majority of the public believe President Nixon is guilty of committing an act which a majority in turn also believe is grounds for impeachment and removal from office:

- By 64-23%, a majority feel Nixon "knew about the attempt to cover up White House involvement in the Watergate case." By 57-31%, a majority also feel this is an offense for which he should be removed from office by Congress.
- By 61-20%, a majority believe Nixon "signed back-dated tax forms claiming deductions for giving away his vice presidential papers, claiming tax credits a year after the law had been changed." A 53-33% majority believe such an offense is sufficient grounds for "impeachment and removal from office."

By 59-24%, a majority believe President Nixon "knew about and signed false statements on his income tax return filed with the Internal Revenue Service." A 61-29% majority feel such income tax fraud is grounds for removal from office.

By 55-24%, a majority of the public feel that Nixon "knew about and did not object to paying the original Watergate defendants hush money to keep quiet." A 67-20% majority feel commission of this act is sufficient grounds for "impeachment and removal from office."

By 55-23%, a majority believe Nixon "knew that key Watergate tapes were either destroyed or parts damaging to himself were erased." By 54-32%, a majority feel such an act is impeachable and could be a legitimate basis for removal of the President.

By 52-25%, a majority of the public believe President Nixon "allowed the 18½ minutes to be erased from the taped conversation between himself and H. R. Haldeman a few days after the Watergate break-in." By 51-33%, a majority feel he should be impeached and removed for such an offense.

By 51-26%, a majority feel the President "knew about and did not object to offering executive clemency to the original Watergate defendants to keep them quiet." A 59-26% majority believe this is sufficient grounds for removal.

A high 87% of the 1,555 adult Americans who were interviewed in person and in depth nationwide on March 7 and 8 said they had heard or read about the President's release of the transcript of edited tapes and subsequent events. Uniformly, by roughly 2-1 majority, the public rejects Nixon's claim about what the transcripts show:

By 59-28%, a majority reject the President's contention that with the "turning over of the 1,300 pages of edited tapes, Congress now has all the information it needs to judge his guilt or innocence."

By 64-24%, a majority disagree with Nixon that "there is no need for electronic experts to check the original tapes to be sure they have not been altered or parts erased."

By 60-24%, most Americans simply do not believe the transcripts "prove the President had no knowledge of the White House Watergate cover-up."

By 63-23%, a majority rejects the President's claim that "the transcripts prove he wanted everything about Watergate to be known and nothing to be held back."

By 55-24%, most people simply do not believe Nixon's statement that "he was assured neither Rose Mary Woods nor any White House aides deliberately erased the missing 18½ minutes on the tape."

There is now a rising public call for the impeachment and removal of this President from office by Congress. People were asked:

"All in all, do you think President Nixon should or should not be impeached by Congress and removed from office?"

While on the key question, the number who advocate removal is just below the majority mark, on seven key specific possible charges, a majority favoring a conviction of the President now exists. It is apparent now that he is in deeper trouble than ever before on the Watergate matter.

Tours, France — Our Bike Man reports from France: "Pedaling in the flatlands is no problem, even if you are no longer young and smoke cigarettes. If you're going into high country, get the bike geared low. That means 50 teeth on the large chain wheel (where the pedals are). The small chain wheel should have 36 teeth."

"This is called an Alpine gear. Any good bike shop can do it for you."

"The advantage of the bike: Scenery changes quickly. History is scattered along your route and you have time to see it. Plenty of good and inexpensive country inns and hotels. No gas to buy."

"For this kind of life you have to be a bicycle nut who likes to get where he's going under his own steam. Being rich or poor has little to do with it. It's a way of life. If you like it, the best."

"You don't bike all over Europe. Boats and trains are set up to take you and your bike over the long hauls. Then you bike tour onto your chosen route — great scenic rides. You'll see more cows than cars."

"Get the Carte Michelin maps — an absolute must. They show grades and elevations. It's good to know when you start out in the morning how much you have to pump. That you are going up 4,000 feet in altitude in the next 12 miles."

"We are thinking of touring France, staying away from big cities and using country hotels."

"There's a splendid organization of country hotels — I've stayed in several of them — called Relais de Campagne. You get their listings with pictures from the French Government Tourist Office, 610 Fifth Avenue, New York City. (Make it attention George Hern — I had problems with previous letters.)"

"The rules for a hotel to get into this group: It has to be a country hotel. Quiet. Away from towns. Very high standards on rooms and food. They really are fine places — most of them are 20 rooms or less. Catch 22? They are not bargain priced. They're expensive. About the same as first-class American resort hotels. But get the book and see for yourself. It's free."

Relais de Campagne will advance book you into the next place. An advantage — you can't just wander around France in July and August and take chances on the next hotel.

"You mentioned a gas additive you used driving in Baja California... something new." It's put out by Zedic Industries, Box 341, Menlo Park, Ca. 94025. You can write and see what they say about it. By mail $5 a half pint which services 500 gallons. (You squirt a little in the tank when you fill it up.)

Liquor in Mexico (and Spain) is put in a curious bottle. You uncork it and find it corked with a plastic top. Looks like a lock they put on the safe at Brink's. Don't try to pry it off with your Boy Scout knife! It's intended to pour through the plastic.

But it doesn't pour. You shake it and shake it. What you do is upend the bottle. Give it a smart rap on the bottom with the heel of your hand. Then it starts to dribble out. (I thought I'd die of thirst and old age before somebody showed me that.)

ASTROLOGICAL
FORECAST

By SIDNEY OMARR

Forecast For Monday
Pluto in the Fourth House of a horoscope depicts a native whose early life was surrounded by upheaval, violence and whose parents were unorthodox, poor where money was concerned but possibly rich where affection entered picture. This person is tough, capable of fighting to achieve goals and is likely to experience difficulty with authorities, police and otherwise.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): You can take definite steps toward achievement. Professional superior is willing to invest in your potential. Be specific, frank — say what you mean and enumerate requirements. Some desires are revised, others will be fulfilled.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Accept proposition which sees you co-operating in community project. Civic leadership is emphasized. You have more responsibility but there also is ultimate advantage. Gemini, Virgo persons could figure prominently.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Re-establish contact with one of a distance. Be gracious. Family member is willing to make concession. Check calls, correspondence. Taurus, Libra individuals could be in picture. If you are cooperative, you gain materially and spiritually.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): See in light of reality, especially where property, land values are concerned. Avoid tendency toward self-deception. No one plans to give you anything on proverbial silver platter — despite what they say. Check behind the scenes for additional information.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Responsibility arises from partnership, special agreement or association. Older individual will share experience. Deter to judgment of one who knows rules, regulations. Patience now is valuable asset.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Finish rather than begin. Find ways of appealing to more persons. Check possibility of advertising program. Basic issues will be settled. Now you should concentrate on distribution, communication and direct sales.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Romance, creative endeavors are featured. Your personality, appearance are spotlighted. Be ready for new contacts, challenges. Member of opposite sex could fall hopelessly in love with you. Be mature — and appreciative!

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): You deal now with real situations, practical people. Put aside make-believe; state facts as they exist. Stick to familiar ground. Aquarius, Leo and Cancer persons figure in important ways. Be aware of costs.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Expect more movement, social encounters. Plenty of opportunity exists and key now is to be selective. Avoid scattering your forces. Expand. Refuse to be painted into corner. Express yourself. Change routine. Get away from depressing situation — and persons.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Debt is paid. You will be more comfortable — and confident. What you collected in past has double the value. Hold tight to possessions. Someone may try to talk you into relinquishing your rights. Be prepared and know you can deal from position of strength.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Trust judgment, intuition. Lunar cycle is high; you get point across in meaningful manner. Take initiative. Ideas click. You gain added recognition. Views are vindicated. Gemini, Virgo persons are likely to be in picture.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Secret, fears and doubts are enunciated. You see what was obscured. You are stronger because the unknown becomes more substance than shadow. Home environment will be more pleasant. Domestic adjustment occurs and is beneficial.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you underwent many tests early in life. Those who should have known you were not always available to lend assistance. You are determined, stubborn and basically honest. Aquarius, Leo and Scorpio persons play important roles in your life. This month, May, should be your most significant of 1974.

President's Actions During Watergate Probe Detailed In Transcripts

(EDITOR'S NOTE—On April 30, 1973, President Nixon said that he had on March 21 ordered "intensive new inquiries" into the Watergate case to get to the bottom of the matter and bring out the truth. Here is a report on what the White House transcripts tell of what Nixon did.)

By MICHAEL PUTZEL
Washington (AP) — With the details of Watergate spread before him in stark, menacing terms, President Nixon turned to his closest aides for their counsel. He had been told that all of them were involved.

His reaction was to order a meeting, to include H. R. Haldeman, John D. Ehrlichman, John W. Dean III and John N. Mitchell, at the "very first possible time" to discuss handling of the nagging scandal.

"No doubts about the right plan before the election," he suggested the others tell Mitchell. "You contained it. And now, after the election, we have to have another plan."

The four top men came in to see the President after meeting on March 22 and told him they had been unable to agree on a new plan.

Nixon told Dean to go to Camp David, the presidential retreat, and come back with a written report of the events described in Dean's cancer speech. Ehrlichman told the President a written report could be useful later.

Statement Suggested
"Assuming that some corner of this thing comes unstuck, you are then in a position to say, 'Look, that document I published is the document I relied on... and now this new development is a surprise to me. I am going to fire A, B, C and D now,'" Ehrlichman said.

Nixon told Dean to "just give them some of it, not all of it" and not to admit involvement, saying only that he acted as White House counsel in assisting the investigation.

Five days later, after Watergate burglar James W. McCord Jr. broke his long silence and implicated higher-ups in a break-in and cover-up conspiracy, the President discussed new alternatives with Haldeman and Ehrlichman. Dean and Mitchell were slipping away from the presidential circle.

Although Dean's report was never presented in written form, Haldeman delivered it orally to the President, along with a report from a lawyer for the Committee for the Re-election of the President. The reports implicated Mitchell and campaign deputy Jeb Stuart Magruder in the June 17, 1972, break-in at Democratic headquarters and indirectly cast doubt on Haldeman's innocence.

'Tent' Agreed
The President agreed with Ehrlichman that they should put a "national security tent" over the Daniel Ellsberg burglary case, White House-ordered wiretaps and some other activities, refusing to discuss them with investigators.

Nixon was satisfied that of his four top men — Haldeman, Ehrlichman, Mitchell and Dean — only Mitchell was likely to be tied to events leading up to the break-in. He decided to cut Mitchell loose and concentrate the investigation on pre-June 17 activities, not the cover-up.

Ehrlichman was instructed to tell Atty. Gen. Richard G. Kleindienst:

"Dean was not involved — had no prior knowledge — Haldeman had no prior knowledge; you, Ehrlichman, had none; and former special counsel Charles

MITCHELL... cut loose by Nixon.

W. Colson had none... Now, if you have any information to the contrary, let me know... There is serious question here being raised about Mitchell."

The President discussed with Haldeman the possibility of waiving the claim of executive privilege in order to let his aides give evidence regarding prior knowledge of the break-in.

"That takes you up to the June 17th break-in," Haldeman said. "What do you do after June 17th?"

"Use the executive privilege on that," Nixon replied.

Warned About Dean
Ehrlichman telephoned the President at 7:30 a.m. on April 8 to report that Dean had decided to go to the prosecutors with his story. Nixon said that would be hard on Mitchell, that Dean "hasn't got any choice on it, that he will not testify to anything after the fact... and then he'll be damn careful he's protective about it... we don't want Mitchell, you know, popping off."

By April 14, there had been many words but few decisions. The President constantly sought consensus with his men before taking action, and they rarely agreed on a course.

On the morning of April 14, a day devoted almost exclusively to Watergate, the President was told that Magruder was "about to crack" and would implicate Mitchell.

The President decided it was time to press Mitchell to go before the grand jury and tell his story. Ehrlichman was selected to give Mitchell the word and to speak with Magruder.

Mitchell refused to cooperate. Before they could reach Magruder, the former campaign deputy informed them he had made arrangements to confess his role to the prosecutors.

Dean was still on the payroll while talking to the prosecutors, leaving the White House in a difficult position.

"I have made a decision," Nixon announced to Ehrlichman. "He's to go."

Caution Urged
But Ehrlichman urged caution, and the President then said:

"Dean is not like Mitchell in the sense that Dean only tried to do what he could to pick up the pieces, and everybody else around here knew it had to be done."

If Dean were to be fired for cover-up activities, the President would have to "fire the whole staff," Nixon said.

Ehrlichman agreed: "There were eight or 10 people around here who knew about this, knew it was going on. Bob Haldeman knew; I knew; all kinds of people knew."

"Well, I knew it. I knew it," the President said. "I must say, though, I didn't know it. But I must have assumed it, though, but you know, fortunately — I thank you both for arranging it that way, and it does show the isolation of the President."

The President continued: "Dean's case is the question, and I do not consider him guilty. Now that's all there is to that. Because if he — if that's the case, then half the staff is guilty."

Acknowledging his frustration, Nixon said Dean was no more guilty "than I have been since a week ago, two weeks ago," when he learned Watergate's full proportions.

Mitchell Problem
The discussion returned to the problem with Mitchell who, the President was told, refused to admit anything and blamed the scandal on Haldeman.

"Whatever his theory is... throwing off on the White House won't help him one damn bit," Nixon said.

Ehrlichman planned to meet with Dean the next day, April 15, 1973. Nixon suggested this message for Dean: "... The President thinks you have carried a tremendous load, and his affection and loyalty to you is just undiminished... We can't get the President involved in this. His people, that is one thing. We don't want to cover up, but there are other ways..."

Ehrlichman advised against sending such a signal to Dean. In the end, Dean met with the President instead. The White House says the tape ran out and that April 15, 1973, conversation was not recorded.

April 15, was another day of long, inconclusive Watergate discussions for the President.

Kleindienst reported to the President that, based on Magruder's story and Dean's, Haldeman and Ehrlichman might be dragged into the case, although the evidence at that point wasn't sufficient to indict them. Mitchell would be indicted, he said, and Magruder would plead guilty.

Money Probed
The attorney general also informed the President that the prosecutors were developing evidence that hush money had been paid and were putting together an obstruction of justice case.

Nixon said he had "taken Dean off the matter, of course. I had to... I put Ehrlichman on." Kleindienst didn't like that; Ehrlichman, too, was now a suspect.

Kleindienst also said the evidence "casts a taint" on Haldeman as well. The pressure was building for Nixon to shed his top aides.

He conferred with Asst. Atty. Gen. Henry E. Petersen, chief of the Justice Department's criminal division and overseer of the Watergate prosecutors.

Petersen asked that the President send a signal to conspirator G. Gordon Liddy telling Liddy to testify fully about any higher-ups involved in planning or funding the break-in Liddy supervised.

On April 17, Nixon summoned Haldeman, Ehrlichman and Press Secretary Ronald L.

Ziegler to help him prepare a public report on the exploding scandal.

Ehrlichman helped with the phrasing.

Nixon: "Four weeks ago, we — Why don't we say — shall we set a date? That sounds a hell of a lot stronger if we set a date."

Ehrlichman: "All right."
Nixon: "On March 21, I began new inquiries." Strike that. "I ordered an investigation, new inquiries throughout the government..."

Ehrlichman: "How about saying, 'On March 21, as a result of serious charges which were reported publicly and...'"

At 4:42 p.m. on April 17, the President announced to the nation:

"On March 21, as a result of serious charges which came to my attention, some of which were publicly reported, I began intensive new inquiries into this whole matter..."

"I can report today that there have been major developments in the case concerning which it would be improper to be more specific now, except to say that real progress has been made in finding the truth..."

Tests To Probe Cloud Seeding

... Water Vital To Plains

Denver (AP) — A new series of federal cloud-seeding tests will pave the way for over $500 million annually in water benefits to the states once called the Great American Desert.

The $20 million experimental effort, spanning the next seven summers, will be concentrated in southeastern Montana, far-western Kansas and west Texas.

It is vital, as well, for the other seven states of the high western plains, North and South Dakota, Nebraska, Wyoming, Colorado, New Mexico and Oklahoma.

All Semiarid States

These 10 states are semiarid, with their flat grasslands getting scarcely 14 and 20 inches of rain a year. In over half the years the April-to-September growing season is parched. Even normal precipitation is insufficient for hybrid crop varieties.

Water resources are being strained in efforts to stabilize the agricultural economy and supply the cities.

Pumping has already dropped the levels of some underground water 100 feet or more. Engineers say there is little chance of their replenishment without cloud seeding, or a major diversion from the Mississippi River system.

Means Extra Grain

Economists predict a successful cloud-seeding program bringing just one to two more inches of rain during the growing season would be translated into a $250 million a year in extra wheat, corn, hay, barley and alfalfa crops and $250 million more in hydroelectric power, fire suppression across the prairie, replenishment of underground water, and improved opportunities for industry and recreation.

The headquarters cities for the new project will be Miles City, Mont., Colby, Kan., and Big Spring, Tex.

Called the High Plains Cooperative Program, the new series is to clear up mysteries of the nature of summer cumulus clouds. These clouds are a prime source of moisture for a million square miles of prairie from the Missouri River to the Rockies between the Canadian and Mexican borders.

Few technological breakthroughs are needed, say scientists here in the bureau's Engineering and Research Center. What must be determined is the precise amount of seeding to make a cloud rain and the best time in its life-cycle to do it.

Summer cloud-seeding techniques have advanced to the point now where they can be used in limited fashion or emergencies.

Want 90% Certainty

The bureau's experts want 90 per cent certainty in making clouds rain better and sooner than they would naturally, said Dr. Archie M. Kahan, chief of the Division of Atmospheric Water Resources Management.

To achieve it, they plan to seed close to 1,500 cumulus clouds in the three experimental zones, incorporating detailed analysis into computer models-mathematical pictures of the dynamics of each cloud.

The Earth Resources Technology Satellite will pick up data from sensitive ground gauges in sophisticated weather radars that can measure the amount of rainfall in a cloud, speeding the information to a computer bank here for processing. Aircraft outfitted with precise monitoring equipment also will be used.

In the past, the rainfall from light to moderate shower-type clouds has been increased as much as 200 per cent. Large storm clouds will be left alone, not for fear they will be intensified, but because when seeded they often produce less rain than naturally.

Last Rain In Air

The reason is that in large, violent storms, seeding with silver iodide tends to push the moisture out the top of the cloud, where it's lost in the upper stratosphere.

Two basic agents, silver iodide and hygroscopic particles, will be tested singly and together to determine the best combination.

Silver iodide works to lower the temperature of a cloud so ice particles large enough to fall and melt into rain can form. Hygroscopic seeding uses super absorbent particles, for instance finely crushed table salt, as a core for growing raindrops out of the cloud's water vapor.

The bureau's experts say despite fears by some people they will rob Peter and pay Paul and simply make it rain on one field rather than on another, their extensive winter mountain seeding programs have shown "substantial increases" in moisture downwind as well as at target sites.

The technology developed from the tests will be made available for immediate use to states and seeding agencies throughout the project. Eventually, an in-depth scientific manual on procedures is planned.

16 Million Acres

Each of the three test areas named by Interior Secretary Rogers C. B. Morton this week will encompass about 76 million acres. That encloses an area equal to the effective range — 120 miles in diameter — of the high resolution radar to be used.

Weekly Grain Report

By DOMINICK COSTELLO
Farm Editor

It now seems pretty evident that much of the nation's baking industry mousetrapped itself into some pretty serious losses by predicting that there would have dollar bread this fall.

Flour millers have cut flour costs 12% but the bakers, believing their own propaganda about high flour prices and wheat shortages, bought at the inflated prices which their dollar bread talk generated.

This backlog of high priced wheat will delay the effect of lower cost flour and bread to the consumer. We should see lower flour prices sooner than bread prices because of the stocks bakers built from the fear they generated themselves.

The insurance service of the Midwest Implement Dealers Association sternly warns that streakers in farm machinery plants are probably in violation of Occupation Safety and Health Act regulations unless they are wearing hardhats.

Apparently, a group of male streakers did their thing at a shortline farm equipment plant — without shorts.

A shortline is a company that makes a small line of farm equipment such as hay equipment. If they make tractors and other implements they are a longline company.

Anyway, the employees of the plant offered to protect any girl streakers from the safety inspectors . . . but nobody offered to protect the streakers from the employees.

The U.S. Agriculture Department is telling migrant workers and wheat harvesters they will be able to get fuel this year when they need it.

Given the past performance of fuel allocators, it would be well for a farmer to stockpile fuel for the wheat harvest, for he who has gas and diesel fuel will get the combine, while he who fills out forms for gas will get frustrated.

World hide exports may drop somewhat in the face of poorer economic conditions which will reduce the demand for leather. Many countries also are expanding livestock numbers so they will be producing more hides themselves.

This is just one of the changes we will see in world trade in the next few years.

Somewhat, American farmers will have to remain flexible to meet the changing needs of the world and maintain a good export picture. The alternative is lower incomes and idle acres again. That wasn't good before and will be even more unpalatable now that we have had a taste of reasonably good farm income.

Those wonderful folks in Washington have come up with a new set of initials for you to learn. DLW is the new set. It will soon be fed to animals everywhere. It looks like soybean meal and is said to be very good livestock feed.

What is DLW? Well, it's Dried Layer Waste (in English that's chicken manure).

There is another version of it made from the waste of broilers. It is stored in silos and then fermented, and makes dandy cattle feed. At least that is what the story from Washington says. Sort of figures, doesn't it?

James P. Grant, president of the overseas Development Council points out that the fertilizer shortfall of the poor countries is just about the amount that we Americans will use in the greening up of our lawns, cemeteries and golf courses this summer.

Our wasteful use of the stuff will doom thousands to hunger and some to starvation this year. Grant told a Senate subcommittee that Americans should be told that the way we eat, and fertilize our lawns is affecting lives everywhere. He said that if Americans were given a choice, they would pass up fertilizing their lawns so that others could eat.

Carl Rowan said such an approach is regarded as politically hazardous by the administration.

You may also be interested in taking a closer look at the oil company profits that are being reported in the press. Most of the income increase in the oil business is coming from overseas operations of the companies.

Our domestic oil producers are barely breaking even.

Broken Bow Rabbit Ranch Keeps Frink Family Busy

By DOMINICK COSTELLO
Farm Editor

Wanda and Wendy are the pretty twin daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Frink of Broken Bow.

The family lives on a small ranch a dozen miles south of this mid-Nebraska shopping center. Like most Nebraska ranchers, they raise and market livestock on a regular basis as a way of making a living.

The livestock must be fed and cared for, babies must be looked after, weaned and raised to market weight, barns cleaned, feed hauled, diseases cured, waterers checked and the livestock marketed.

That is like any other livestock operation in the state, the entire family kept hopping to get the work done. On the Frink ranch the livestock also hop — literally — because the Frink's raise rabbits for a processor in Kansas.

Frink is the treasurer of the Nebraska version of the American Rabbit Breeders Association and is as active in his organization as any livestock feeder or member of the Nebraska Stockgrowers Association.

A truck makes regular trips through Nebraska, stopping at pre-arranged locations to meet rabbitry owners to gather rabbit shipments to the processing plant near Hill City, Kan.

The twins and their mother do most of the work with the rabbits, because their dad works on a nearby ranch looking after cattle. The rabbitry is a family sideline but is large as Nebraska rabbit operations go.

Frink estimates that there may be 300 rabbit raisers in Nebraska, but there are only about 40 sufficiently interested to belong to the American Rabbit Breeders Association.

Getting started in the business isn't terribly expensive. Does cost from $4 to $5 and a buck around $8. Breeders often trade breeding stock to provide new bloodlines but Frink warns, "You need to know where you are getting them and keep them isolated from the rest for a while to be sure you are not getting a disease along with the new bloodlines."

The girls report that there are about 40 rabbit breeds, ranging in size from huge 18-pound bunnies to tiny animals that never weigh more than two pounds.

The twins have become very knowledgeable about rabbit husbandry, well-schooled in diseases, breeds, feeding and caring for the animals.

Cattlemen in the area regard the rabbit ranch with a mixture of amazement and amusement, but Frink is having the last laugh at the moment. Cattle and hog prices have been declining to the point where livestock production has become unprofitable. Rabbit prices have been going up.

"They have gotten to be a delicacy, and for the rabbit raiser, that is great," Frink explained.

New Lincoln Dentist Is Minority Of One

By NANCY HICKS
Star Women's Editor

"I'm part housewife. I want to be able to spend time with my children . . . to be home when they get home from school . . . to have time to fix a nice evening meal," said the young woman, emphasizing a point with a delicate gesture.

But Mrs. Darleen Hemmerlin, mother of two preschool-age boys and wife of a Union College professor, is also part professional.

Four mornings a week she is Dr. Hemmerlin, Lincoln's only woman dentist and one of less than five women practicing dentistry in the state.

The 27-year-old Dr. Hemmerlin is used to being a minority. She was the only female in her dental class and the third woman to graduate from Loma Linda University School of Dentistry in California.

Dr. Hemmerlin, who discarded earlier ideas to be a secretary or nurse, comes from a medical family. Her mother, father, older brother and sister are all medical doctors — in fact, they are all specialists — and her younger brother is studying inhalation therapy.

But encouragement from a family dentist and a college friend eventually led to a decision in her junior year to go into dentistry.

"My mother spent time with us and I didn't mind her working," said the thin, brunette dentist. But she saw how hectic a doctor's schedule can be and decided, "I wanted to have more time to spend with my children."

A southern California native, Dr.

Hemmerlin practiced for one year at a children's dental health clinic in Long Beach, Calif., before the family moved to Lincoln last August.

Since then she has been enjoying her children, Jeffrey, 3, and Brian, 7 months, full time. And last week she moved back into part-time dental practice with the Plaza Dental Group in Lincoln.

Dr. Hemmerlin had no problems getting accepted into dental school. "In fact, I think they were glad to have a female applicant." And, despite good natured kidding from fellow students and instructors, she encountered no problems or prejudices as a dental student.

But she admits that her husband's constant encouragement was a big factor not only in her initial decision, but also in completing the four years of study beyond the bachelor's degree.

Only 2% of the nation's practicing dentists were women according to the 1970 census, but Dr. Hemmerlin expects this to rise. Since she started dental school in 1968, she has noticed many more women applying and many more women graduating from dental schools.

And she encourages girls to consider dentistry while realizing that the training is long — six to eight years beyond high school — and expensive.

She feels that a woman must also consider her own plans for a family and marriage. "They have to realize that this is a profession," a profession that would be hard to follow without encouragement from the husband, Dr. Hemmerlin believes.

DR. HEMMERLIN . . . at work in clinic

Miss Christine Dreith, John Sullivan Marry

Miss Christine Lynne Dreith and John Elijah Sullivan were married during a 3:30 p.m. ceremony which took place Sunday at Sheridan Lutheran Church.

Mrs. John Sullivan

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Dreith, and Mrs. Charles K. Sullivan of Sioux City, Iowa and the late Iowa State Sen. Charles Sullivan.

Mrs. Geri Rosio of Milwaukee, Wisc., and Miss Ann Nordstrom were honor attendants, and the bridesmaids included Mrs. Jeanne Boerkircher, Miss Jo Pfenning of York and Miss Nancy Bingham of Dixon.

Steve Ferguson of Sioux City, Iowa, attended Mr. Sullivan as best man; and Mike Risk of Sioux City, Steve Boyd of Wichita, Kan., Bill Roesler and Bob White were groomsmen.

Dan Johnson and Roger Lambert, both of Sioux City, Iowa, and Dennis Priebe of Wickliffe, Ohio seated the guests.

The bride is a student at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln, where she is a member of Kappa Kappa Gamma sorority and where she is majoring in social psychology.

Mr. Sullivan also attends UNL, majoring in English. He is a member of Alpha Tau Omega fraternity.

Following a wedding trip to the west coast, the couple will reside in Lincoln.

Beauty Myths Destroyed

These myths have been ruling the beauty lives of millions of women.

—Always splash your face with cold water after washing . . . No.

—Never wash your face with soap and water — particularly if you are over 20 . . . No.

—The older you get the more you need cream . . . No.

Use hot and only hot water on your face, says New York fashion reporter Mary Ann Crenshaw in a recent issue of Family Circle magazine.

Soap and water are "basic and essential ingredients for making the skin clean," said the author of the book, "The Natural Way to Super Beauty." "The real answer to beautiful skin lies in tightening it up . . . never allowing one globule of excess oil to loosen it up," she said.

Basic to Ms. Crenshaw's theories is the premise that skin, like hair and nails, is protected by what is called an "acid mantle." This mantle protects skin from the bacteria and pollution that is in our air. And to maintain good skin the acid mantle, which normally is somewhere around 4.5 depending on skin oiliness, must be protected.

Every product that comes in contact with the skin should be tested for acidity with Nitrazine, corn colored testing papers available at pharmacies, according to Ms. Crenshaw.

When these strips are applied to facial products they should remain corn colored. If the Nitrazine turns blue — that means highly alkaline — and highly alkaline can be hazardous to the look of your skin, said Ms. Crenshaw.

Her Spirit Went To Kansas City?

DEAR ABBY: I don't know if you believe in spirits. I never did, but something happened that really got me thinking, and I don't know who else to ask about this.

When my husband was in Kansas City on a business trip he looked up an old girl friend just for old time's sake, and she told him that I had visited her some years back under very mysterious circumstances.

Abby, I have never met this woman in my life. In fact, I have never been to Kansas City. Now here is where the spirits come in:

My husband swears that this girl is telling the truth and that somehow my spirit left my body and went to Kansas City to visit Agnes. He says that Agnes described me to a "t," even to the mole I have on my right cheek, so now I don't know what to think.

Can you explain this? I am all bewildered and confused.

WONDERING
DEAR WONDERING: I don't believe in spirits. Even though you've never been to Kansas City or met Agnes, perhaps Agnes has seen you or a picture of you. Or possibly you have been described in detail to her. Don't worry about it. There is no evidence that spirits exist, much less leave the body and go to Kansas City.

DEAR ABBY: I am 14. My mother remarried two years ago. The problem is that before she remarried, she used to spend all her time with me and my little brother. As soon as she remarried she started spending all her spare time with him.

She is always sending us to the movies, park, etc. just to get us out of the house so she can be alone with him. My younger brother doesn't realize it, but our mother buys us things to make up for it. (Her shutting us out.)

Do you think I should have a talk with her and explain how I feel? I don't have anybody to tell my troubles to. Please help me. I feel so alone.

SHUT OUT
DEAR SHUT: Yes. Tell your mother how you feel. It will open the door to conversation and give your mother an opportunity to tell you how she feels, too. Instead of resenting the time your mother spends with her new husband, you should be glad she has found someone with whom she is so obviously compatible. If she's actually neglecting you and your brother, she may not realize it until you speak up.

DEAR ABBY: In response to the mother of an 11th grader who is upset about the four-letter words in the books assigned him to read by his English teacher.

Mrs. Upset states: "If I heard my son using such language as he is being forced to read, he would get five knuckles in the mouth."

As a mother and teacher it is my opinion that there is more suffering in this world caused by parents who think parenthood gives them the right to apply five knuckles in the mouth than by all the four-letter words that ever were.

Just as beauty lies in the eye of the beholder, so does filth in literature. To this beholder, dirty words, if used at all, might better be used to describe man's inhumanity to man: the inhumanity of assuming the right to judge the values of another person and further assuming the right to physically assault another person because of a difference in values.

A WISCONSIN MOTHER AND TEACHER

DEAR MOTHER AND TEACHER: Beautiful! Your students are fortunate, and your children are blessed.

Woman's Relief Corps To Meet In Lincoln

The Woman's Relief Corps, auxiliary to the Grand Army of the Republic, will hold its state convention Wednesday and Thursday at the Villager.

Special guests for the event, according to Mrs. LaVora McKie, department president, will be Joan Bennett of Orleans, national senior vice president; and Jessie H. Johnson of Cheyenne, Wyo., national counselor.

Day Of Week, Not Cycle, Affects Moods

Detroit — Fluctuation in feminine moods, commonly attributed to the menstrual cycle, is more heavily influenced by the day of the week, according to a study reported to the American Psychiatric Assn.

Women, it was found, are happy, depressed, achy, irritable, loving, friendly or alert depending on how close the day is to a weekend.

"Rather than blue Monday, data suggests blue Wednesday, the day of the week furthest from the weekend, when mood states were most positive," Prof.

College, Towson, Md., declared. Contrary to expectation, there was only a slight tendency for positive moods to peak at the time of ovulation (release of egg for fertilization) and for negative moods to reach their low point in the first few days of the menstrual period.

"Actually, most subjects showed no pattern set by menstrual cycle," said Dr. Rossi.

She gave no reason for the better moods on weekends but noted that in the study group most of the sex activity occurs on weekends.

11% reported a sexy rating."

The reverse pattern was found when the women rated themselves "achy." Over-all, there was a peaking of the achy rating on the first day of the menstrual period, but if the first day occurred during the weekend, the achy ratings were lower.

Dr. Rossi said there is no reason to assume that the mood and behavior changes for women are any different from that for men. She criticized the medical literature that ties women's suicides, thefts, accidents or broken appointments to the from day time to night time.

A common denominator influencing moods in both men and women is weather, clouds or sunshine, as well as personal successes and failures, she suggested.

"The human organism," she added, "is a finely tuned set of biological and social clocks, responsive to both internal endocrine states and the external social and physical environment."

Women on the pill show a greater fluctuation of mood from day to day than women sexually inactive or using non-that the pill, because of its high hormonal content, might even out the mood swings, said Dr. Rossi.

The study showed that sex for males tends to even out moods. "Males come down from a high positive mood after coitus and up from an unusually low mood state after masturbation," said Dr. Rossi.

"Women do not show this pattern. The greatest mood shift attending sex activity for women is the presence or absence of orgasm. There is a sharp drop in positive moods and a sharp increase in negative mood ratings

Commission Re-Elects Mrs. Kerwin

By LINDA OLIG
Sta. Staff Writer

The Governor's Commission on the Status of Women Saturday endorsed the past year's course of action — often marked by tedious action, a concern to many of the commissioners represent and some of the commissioners themselves — to retain Ethel Kirwin as chairman.

Little more than half of the commissioners (16 of the total 31) attended the spring meeting to cast their vote.

Also elected to the executive board were Shirley Wilken of Columbus, vice chairman; Jan Rasmussen, treasurer; and Pat Lamberty of Omaha, secretary.

Following her re-election, Mr. Kirwin called for immediate revision of the statute, giving the state-women's commission its power and operational by-laws which the commission itself established, calling the proposed action the most important area for immediate attention.

She questioned the by-laws' requirement for a quorum, of operational necessities and the right to have a director.

The group has, however, already begun the search for an executive director and has signed a lease for a permanent office in the Terminal Building.

Mrs. Kirwin said she hopes an executive director will be hired, by July 1. At that time "We hope we will be in (the office) and an active commission."

Little more was accomplished during the last of four annual meetings, despite the fact that motion after motion was submitted, seconded and accepted.

The adopted resolutions, primarily called for tabling recommendations, deferring them to committee or further investigation.

It was suggested that the commission publish a booklet "Laws of Special Interest to Nebraska," similar to one circulated by the Michigan Commission on the Status of Women.

The members chose to first "investigate the need and potential popularity" of such a brochure. That action would have been the first this year to have come out of the Women under the Law Committee chaired by Mrs. Kirwin.

Agreeing that certain laws are discriminatory to women, Mrs. Kirwin said, "If there were one thing we should push for it is a (state) constitutional convention . . . because our laws are in such miserable shape." No action was taken on the recommendation.

The commission did, however, elect to endorse interim Resolution 180, a investigation by the Banking, Commerce and Insurance Committee of the Legislature into the credit situation of divorced, widowed, separated women and minorities.

Asking the commission for its endorsement of the study, member Donna Polk said, "We can't get a bill passed next year (to impede discriminatory practices) unless we prove we are discriminated against as a class."

The commission's Talent Bank Committee, under chairman Ms. Lamberty, were given a mandate by the chair to have free control over names submitted to the governor for appointment to openings on various state committees and commissions.

Ms. Lamberty said the Talent Bank Committee has been operating under the assumption that, if a commission term of a person appointed by Gov. J. James Exon expired, the governor would prefer to reappoint that person. She was advised, without a resolution being adopted, that three to five names are to be submitted, for every appointive position.

In other action, Mrs. Kirwin, and Peg Flowers of Omaha, current vice chairman, were named delegate and alternate delegate to the Interstate Association of Commissions on the Status of Women national conference in Boulder, Colo., June 13 to 16.

Mrs. Kirwin encouraged other interested commission members to participate in the "fun trip" for which the state will pick up the tab.

She was called down on the "fun" aspect by other commission members who had participated in last year's national conference, which had called for round-the-clock meetings, workshops and caucuses.

'Still Long Way To Go'

"Women still have a long ways to go" in obtaining equal status in society, said former Gov. Frank B. Morrison Saturday when he addressed a joint luncheon of the Governor's Commission on the Status of Women and its alumnae group, the Priors.

"Many things throughout my life have pointed out to me the need for women to be active in society . . . in formulation of policy and economic status," he said, recalling that he "knew at an early age" what society's restrictions on women could do to the individual woman and her family.

"Women should draw the same wages for the same work as a man does."

"We still haven't achieved that, but we're on our way," Morrison emphasized.

"In grade school, I was taught America was a great liberator of women," the former governor noted, recalling that India, "where female babies were smothered in the river," often was cited as an example to himself and his fellow students.

He said that he has been to India where half of the parliament is female, many women are medical doctors and a woman is head of state.

"I wondered what kind of propaganda they were feeding me," he said.

Morrison questioned the integrity of a society, such as the United States, "half of the nation's brainpower is located in the female sex" but which "thinks after graduation from college a woman should stay home and not use her brain."

adverse holdings before finally tackling the spade situation.

South starts by drawing two rounds of trumps and finessing the queen of clubs. He does this at once—because he is committed to a club finesse in any case, and locating the king may help him later on to surmount the spade decision.

When the finesse succeeds, declarer plays a diamond to the king. As it happens, West wins with the ace, cashes the queen, and plays another diamond which South ruffs.

The moment of decision is now at hand. Declarer leads a spade, West following low.

South does not have a 100 per cent shot at this point, but there is no doubt about his right play. He should play the jack—because he has discovered that East almost surely has the ace.

It is altogether unreasonable to suppose that West—who passed originally and has shown up with the king of clubs and A-Q of diamonds—has the ace of spades as well.

East is far more likely to have the ace, and declarer's only real hope, therefore, is that West has the queen. He finesses the jack and it is suitably rewarded when it forces the ace and so yields him a tenth trick.

Herndl To Talk At U.N. Assn. Dinner Monday

To "provide a more timely speech relating to the Mideast conflict and other current situations," a change has been made in the scheduled speaker for the presidents dinner of the Lincoln chapter of the United Nations Assn.

Kurt Herndl, director of the security council division of the department of political and security council affairs, will replace Abdulrahim Abby Farah as speaker, according to Dr. L. J. Kramer, public relations chairman of the UNA's Lincoln chapter.

Herndl will speak on the U.N. peacekeeping activities and its role in political issues of the day. His speech is scheduled for 6:30 p.m. Monday at the Nebraska Center for Continuing Education, 33rd & Holdrege Sts.

Agnew Business Called 'Private'

Athens (UPI) — Former Vice President Spiro T. Agnew arrived in Greece alone Sunday on what he called "private business" without further explanation.

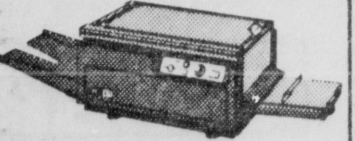

Agnew's quiet, almost unnoticed arrival was in marked contrast to the hero's welcome he received on his arrival here three years ago.

"I am on business," Agnew told newsmen who met him in the bar of his hotel. When asked to elaborate, he said, "private," and abruptly ended the conversation.

Our inexpensive overflow copier isn't cheap.

You get benefits with our Model 625 that usually come only from big copiers: flatbed design, multiple copies selector, colored paper in cassettes, ten copies in one minute. Yet the 625 is small in size and price. In big offices it's great for overflow copying. Little offices use it for everything, including invoicing. Call us and we'll show you the little copier that works big.

Boston Earns Title

... Bucks Falter, 102-87

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (UPI) — People talk so much about the tradition and pride of the Boston Celtics it's become an almost overworked phrase.

But all that tradition and all the pride came pouring out Sunday when the "new Celtics" won to bring Boston its 12th National Basketball Association title since the start of the NBA.

The Celtics did it the old-fashioned way — by playing harder and tougher than the other team—the Milwaukee Bucks, who saw their title hopes go down the drain in a 102-87 Boston victory.

"Sure we were tired," Boston's center Dave Cowens said. "But that fatigue is sometimes only in your head. You can always go a little harder, find that extra inch or that needed gust of wind."

The Celtics found all they needed Sunday as they built a 17-point lead midway through the third quarter. But the Bucks roared back and trailed by only three points before Boston found that extra gust.

With the score 71-68 early in the fourth quarter, Boston got eight straight points from four different men to take a 79-68 lead and the Bucks' hopes were dead.

Boston went to a sagging defense that limited Kareem Abdul-Jabbar to only three points in the crucial final quarter and, without their big scorer, The Bucks could do nothing.

"We fronted him and we played him on the side," Boston Coach Tommy Heinsohn said. "We confused them so they couldn't even get the ball in to him."

And the Bucks don't have the shooters to hit from the perimeter which has to be done to make that kind of defense useless.

"If you hit the shots, the sag won't work," said Oscar Robertson of the Bucks. "But if you can't shoot, the sag is the best defense in the world."

"Boston's a great team with no weaknesses," Bucks' Coach Larry Costello said. "They really got jacked up and there was no stopping them today."

John Havlicek, the tireless heart of the Celtics, had an off day as he scored only 16 points.

But his hustle and fire lifted the Celtics when they needed it most.

"During the early years of my career with Boston we looked to Bill Russell for the leadership," Havlicek said. "But this is the new Celtics and it's our first title. Now the guys all look to me with the respect for that leadership. And that makes this the most satisfying title of all."

Havlicek won the Sport Magazine award as the outstanding player in the seven game series, but many people felt Cowens, who had 28 points Sunday, was a close second.

The victory was worth $100,000 to the Celtics and built their post-season earning total to $215,000.

The Bucks got $65,000 as losers and wound up with $220,000 for post-season play. Milwaukee's total was just short of the 1972 record pool of $224,000 won by the Los Angeles Lakers.

Milwaukee received a $40,000 bonus for finishing with the best regular season record in the NBA.

The seven-game series saw the Celtics win three of the four games in Milwaukee, while the Bucks won two of the three in Boston.

'Temperamental' Hill Snares Houston Open

HOUSTON (UPI) — Temperamental Dave Hill heated his golf game Sunday afternoon to the intensity of his criticism to sink eight birdie putts in the final 18 holes, fire a seven-under-par 65 and win the $30,000 winner's share in the Houston Open by one stroke over Steve Melnyk, Rod Curl and Andy North.

More important to Hill than the money, he said, was the chance to "pay back" the sponsors of the Open who he criticized in 1973 as being rude to him when they would not allow him to withdraw.

Hill, a co-leader Saturday, said if he won first money it would not soothe his anger.

"They can keep it," he said. "I just want to win. I want to pay them back."

Sunday, the edge off his tongue and the money in his pocket, Hill said this win, like the previous 10 in his 15-year tour career, was "nice."

Hill watched as big-hitting Melnyk barely missed a 20-foot putt at No. 18 which would have forced a playoff.

"It didn't bother me," Hill said. "What the hell could I do about it? I wasn't out there to yell at him."

Melnik, a co-leader with Hill after two rounds, said the putt went in the hole and came out.

"It was probably the best putt I ever hit that I had to hit well," he said. "I guess it was going too fast."

Curl and North both came from several shots off the pace before Sunday's 36 holes to finish one back. Two strokes behind them were Dave Stockton, who finished second at Houston last year, and Joe Inman.

Hubert Green and the 47-year-old Bob Rosburg also put on final day streaks only to fall three shots short. Rosburg, the 1959 PGA champion, was particularly happy at his comeback.

"This was the best finish I have had in a long time," he said, "but I really felt like I threw the tournament away."

After a morning round of 67, Rosburg put together a string of four straight birdies—three on putts over 14 feet—to offset two bogeys and shoot an afternoon 69.

Rosburg held the lead at one time during the long day as did Melnyk, Curl, North, Inman and Stockton.

The three golfers tied for second place each earned $11,600, and Stockton and Curl took home $5,775 paychecks.

But it was Hill who kept a huge gallery on its toes by losing his lead in the morning round to a two-over 74 only to charge back in the afternoon.

"When I got to the tee this morning," he explained, "everything wanted to turn left. It was a big adjustment."

Hughes Propels Houston

CHICAGO (AP) — Frank Hughes' tie-breaking, unassisted goal at 15:48 of the third period gave the Houston Aeros a 3-2 victory over the Chicago Cougars Sunday in the opening game of the final round of the World Hockey Association playoffs.

Trailing 2-0, the Cougars came up with goals by Bob Liddington and Don Gordon in the third period to tie the game before Hughes scored the winning goal on a shot from the slot.

The second game of the best-of-seven series will be played in the suburban Randhurst arena Wednesday night and the series then moves to Houston for games Friday and Sunday. If a fifth game is necessary, that too will be played in Houston Monday, May 20.

Although the Cougars outshot the Aeros 31-29, they did not get on the scoreboard until 5:42 of the final period when Liddington deflected a shot by Pat Stapleton past goalie Don McLeod.

Some eight minutes later at 13:45, Gordon tied the game with his fourth playoff goal.

Houston took the lead on Larry Hale's goal at 6:31 of the first period as both teams were short-handed. Hale put his shot into the net while Chicago goalie Andre Gill was out of position.

Gordon Labossiere's powerplay goal at 9:19 of the period gave the Aeros their two-goal lead.

Aaron Hits No. 721 As Hitters Prevail

By The Associated Press

Hank Aaron's 721st career homer proved a key blow Sunday as hitters in both major baseball leagues banged a total of two dozen circuit blasts in rain-curtailed baseball action.

Aaron's eighth season homer, a one-run shot, capped Atlanta's scoring and helped give the Braves a 5-1 victory against San Francisco in the first game of a doubleheader. The Giants won the nightcap 6-2 with the help of Dave Kingman's home run.

Merv Rettenmund's inside-the-park homer led the Cincinnati Reds to a 4-2 victory and a sweep of their doubleheader against the Houston Astros. Rettenmund, Dave Concepcion, and Johnny Bench homered for the Reds in their 5-0 opening victory.

Tom Seaver gave up his 10th season homer, tops in the National League, as the New York Mets lost to the Chicago Cubs 4-3. The two-run shot by Jose Cardenal paced the Cubs and George Mitterwald's one-run single won it in the ninth.

The Los Angeles Dodgers outslugged the San Diego Padres 15-

9 as Steve Yeager's two-run single in the 13th capped a six-run inning for the winners. Jim Wynn hit his 12th homer of the season for the Dodgers earlier in the game.

Mike Anderson's two-run homer sparked the Philadelphia Phillies past the Pittsburgh Pirates, 8-7. Dave Cash hit a triple in the seventh and scored the eventual winning run on a ground out.

In the American League, George Scott and Dave May homered as the Milwaukee Brewers topped the New York Yankees 5-1 to sweep a rain-shortened twinnill. Milwaukee won the opener 7-3.

Wasting Willie Horton's first-inning three-run homer, the Detroit Tigers lost to the Boston Red Sox 4-3 after Dick McAuliffe drilled a run-scoring double in the 10th.

Pat Kelly's two-run homer led the Chicago White Sox past the Texas Rangers 5-4. Ed Herrmann's single in the seventh got the deciding run off loser Ferguson Jenkins, 6-3, who pitched his ninth complete game.

The Oakland Athletic's downed the Minnesota Twins 9-2 after Angel Mangual got the winners rolling with a two-run homer.

Hal McRae and Fran Healy socked solo homers for Kansas City in the first game of a doubleheader against the California Angels and McRae's run-scoring single in the ninth gave the Royals a 3-2 win. Kansas City won the second game 5-2.

A doubleheader between the Baltimore Orioles and the Cleveland Indians was rained out as was the game between the St. Louis Cardinals and the Montreal Expos.

Crisp Paces Flyers Past Boston

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — In a nutshell, Terry Crisp defined the difference between regular season and playoff hockey.

"During the regular season they say you're old," said the 30-year old center. "In the playoffs they call it experience. Now I can go back to oblivion for another year."

Crisp, who isn't known for his scoring ability but is the most experienced playoff competitor on a young Philadelphia team, notched what proved to be the winning goal Sunday afternoon as the Flyers ripped the Boston Bruins 4-1 to take a two games to one advantage in the Stanley Cup finals.

A veteran of the early expansion days when he played in three final series with the St. Louis Blues, Crisp scored the decisive goal at 15:43 of the opening period with what he called a "desperation shot."

"It was just a wrist shot that I took in desperation and I didn't even know it was in until (Gilles) Gilbert looked behind him and I saw the red light going on," said Crisp. "Carroll Vadnais was on one side of me and (Dallas) Smith was on the other. I had to get it away from them. It may have been that each guy thought the other was going to get it. It was a little mistake that became a big one."

The Flyers also added a new wrinkle to hockey when inventive coach Fred Shero told his players to let the Bruins' star Bobby Orr have the puck as much as possible. Shero explained, "last year we were keeping the puck away from him. Now we're trying to overpower him."

For the third consecutive game in this series, Philadelphia yielded the first goal. This time it took the Bruins only a minute and three seconds to score as Johnny Bucyk celebrated his 39th birthday by touching off the red light. But it was virtually all Philadelphia the rest of the way as Tom Bladen and Terry Crisp gave the Flyers a 2-1 lead by the end of the first period and goalie Bernie Parent protected the slim margin until Kindrachuk and Lonsberry put the game away.

Once again, Boston was done in by its failure to capitalize on power plays. While the usually rambunctious Flyers didn't engage in any fights, they did provide the Bruins with eight manpower advantages, none of which the East division champions could convert.

In the three games so far, Boston has managed only a single goal in the second and third periods combined.

The fourth game of the best-of-seven finals will be played here Tuesday night with the fifth game scheduled for Boston Thursday night.

Crisp, a veteran of the early expansion days when he played in three final series with the St. Louis Blues, set himself up for what proved to be the winning goal when he won a faceoff in Boston ice. The red-headed forward retrieved the puck and beat Gilles Gilbert from about 30 feet in the slot at 15:43 of the opening period.

Bladen had tied the score at 1-1 a little more than five minutes earlier when he took a pass from Bobby Clarke on the right point and slapped it past Gilbert's stick from about 40 feet out.

Kindrachuk's goal, on a play set up by Don Saleski, broke the Bruins back at 7:53 of the final period and Lonsberry added the whipping less than seven minutes later on a pass from Rick MacLeish.

The Flyers, who had beaten Boston only four times in their first 39 meetings, now have beaten Boston twice in a row.

The MVP award in the NBA championship series went to John Havlicek, Boston's tireless forward, after the Celtics won the series over the Milwaukee Bucks 102-87. Havlicek averaged 26.4 points in the seven-game series.

World Championship of Tennis title holder, John Newcombe praised opponent Bjorn Borg after defeating the 17-year-old in four sets to win the $50,000 first prize in the WCT finals.

Randy Becker of Denver, voted the most valuable player in Colorado by high school coaches, has signed a letter of intent to attend Creighton University.

Richard Petty won the Winston Cup Music City USA 420 NASCAR grand national stock car race for the eighth time in 10 years.

An autopsy revealed that Linda's chief suffered a shattered pelvis and broken back in the accident that led to his being destroyed after Saturday's Los Angeles Handicap.

Prince Astro Tops Ak Field

Omaha — Prince Astro, an easy winner in the $20,000-added Beef State Handicap, has been assigned top weight for Saturday's running of the $35,000-added Ak-Sar-Ben Handicap.

Owned by C. L. Warner of Arlington, Tex., Prince Astro has been asked by racing secretary John Maluvius to shoulder 125 pounds for the six-furlong sprint.

Prince Astro was ridden by Dan W. Whited and earned a 4½ length victory over Believe A Little in the Beef State. Believe A Little, owned by Kemper Marley of Phoenix, Ariz., is second in the weights at 118 pounds. Believe A Little had the early lead in the Beef State, only to have Prince Astro breeze by in the final eighth of a mile.

Swinging Flight, owned by J. J. Carras of Bay City, Mich., has been assigned 117 pounds off a victory in an allowance race last Saturday. Swinging Flight, ridden by John L. Lively, defeated Canadian Jeff by a nose in the allowance test at 5½ furlongs.

Canadian Jeff, owned by M. H. Van Berg Stable, Inc., and Patrick J. Luckino, will carry 115 pounds. Sumi Ford's Fleet Honey was given 116 pounds.

Blazing Gypsy, 115
Stake Driver, 114
National Risk, 114
Dr. Pantano, 113
Big Homie, 112

Great Bear Lake, 112
Lightning Heels, 111
Indian, 110
Aye Jay Aye, 110

A special Monday racing program will kick off this week's schedule with a 4 p.m. post time. The track will be dark on Election Day Tuesday and will resume on Wednesday.

Also on this week's stakes program is the $10,000-added Good Neighbor Stakes to be run Friday. The race is for three-year-old colts and geldings bred in Nebraska.

Track Conditions Cancel Racing

Eagle — The opening stock-car program at Eagle Raceway was canceled Sunday.

Track owner Harvey Kropp said he was unable to get the track ready to go for the opener, causing the cancellation.

Kropp indicated he would have Sunday racing, however, speculated the racing would be on Sunday nights.

'Athletic Scholarship' For Gal

Oregon State has offered an "athletic scholarship" to Joni Huntley, Sheridan, Ore., the first and only American woman to clear 6-0 in the high jump and she's accepted.

Oregon State athletic director Jim Barratt made the announcement that Joni would get approximately $1,500 a year "from groups such as the OSU Dads Clubs."

Barratt indicated the funds would come from three different sources and would not officially be financial aid from the school.

Seven universities, including Colorado and UCLA, tried to recruit the Fosbury flopping young woman, but she said Oregon State's reputation of good high jumpers" helped as much as anything in her decision.

Indecision, as much as anything, reportedly was one of the reasons Kearney State joined the Great Plains Athletic Conference instead of forming a new conference with Wayne, Chadron, Northern, S.D., Eastern Montana and Black Hills, S.D.

The energy crisis stalled plans the schools had informing the proposed new conference because of the distance between some of the members.

However, Kearney has been looking for a new conference since Hastings dropped out of the Nebraska College Conference in 1969 and apparently decided to take a sure thing in the GPAC instead of waiting for the other schools decision on the new conference.

Kearney announced that it wasn't dropping out of the NCC, but joining the GPAC will still create some problems. The Antelopes will have to upgrade their athletic program in order to compete in the GPAC.

Teams currently members of the GPAC are Fort Hays, Washburn, Emporia, and Pittsburg of Kansas and Northern and Southern Colorado.

Edge Now To Kearney

By upgrading its athletic program to compete with GPAC, Kearney will widen the gap that already exists in the NCC.

One of the reasons that the church-related colleges in Nebraska dropped out of the NCC is that Kearney was beginning to dominate too many sports.

When the enrollments of the four state colleges began to drop, Kearney suffered the least and its athletic program stayed about on the same level of competition.

However, the athletic programs at the other three state colleges dropped some in competition and the Antelopes began to dominate a little more.

With Kearney improving its athletic program to an even higher level of competition in the GPAC, the gap between the Antelopes and the other three schools could become greater.

Then the three other state colleges might choose to drop Kearney from their schedule, if they could and that would leave the state with three levels of competition in the state college ranks.

UNO has already upgraded its athletic program to one level, Kearney is planning on improving to level UNO used to be and the other state colleges will be on another.

'Rainy' Win To Prentice

Raleigh, N.C. (AP) — Heavy rain caused cancellation of the final round of the American Defender Golf Classic Sunday and Jo Ann Prentice was declared the winner with a seven-under-par 137 for 36 holes.

Thirty-two players had teed off in the rain when tournament officials ruled the Raleigh Country Club course unplayable. The event was scheduled for 54 holes.

Miss Prentice, 41, who shot a course-record 65 on opening day, won $5,000 to increase her earnings for the year to $52,702, tops on the Ladies Professional Golf Association tour.

Laura Baugh, 18, was runner-up with 139 and received $3,750. She recorded her lowest professional round Saturday with a 66, which included six birdies.

David City's Richards Enjoys Winning Habit

By BOB MOYER

David City's Terry Richards is sure that winning is a good habit to get into.

And Sunday night at Midwest Speedway he started to make winning just that, capturing his second consecutive modified stock car main event.

Last week Richards won when leader Dick Jensen's car blew a tire on the 19th lap of the 25-lap feature. But this week Richards broke on top

Here is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It's a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

Connally Linked To Dairy Case

WASHINGTON (AP) — A 1971 tax audit of the nation's biggest dairy cooperative failed to disclose its massive illegal political donations, and court papers quote the co-op's former lobbyist as saying John B. Connally may have helped in the case.

Also, co-op lawyer Jake Jacobsen once told the dairy group's officials that Connally, who was then Secretary of the Treasury, wrote directly to the Internal Revenue Service district director about the audit, one source said. But the IRS man, R. L. "Bob" Phinney, a long-time friend and former business partner of Connally, denied that Connally contacted him about the matter.

Connally could not be reached for comment. His attorney, Edward Bennett Williams, declined comment.

The co-op, Associated Milk Producers, Inc., employed one of Connally's senior law partners, Marvin K. Collie, to handle the tax matter.

Jacobsen testified to Watergate investigators that Connally cleared Collie's hiring in advance, several sources said.

The milk producers' former lobbyist, Bob A. Lilly, is quoted in public records as saying Connally "may have resolved" the tax matter. This remark appears in the handwritten notes of a lawyer who interviewed Lilly last year.

And the co-op's general manager, George L. Mehren, is quoted in similar fashion as saying Connally's partner Collie "got them off on that one, but said he could not do it again."

The IRS audit began when Doyle Bond, a revenue agent from the co-op's headquarters town, San Antonio, began asking about some suspicious checks.

Lilly said in a letter to Jacobsen that Bond seemed aggressive, and that Bond wanted to "raise an issue over our questionable expenditures." These expenditures may total several million dollars, recent disclosures indicate.

The IRS disallowed a few deductions, including one political outlay that it had uncovered before the audit began. These disallowed deductions were merely subtracted from the co-op's loss carryforward, which is the sum of unclaimed deductions held aside for future years.

What the IRS didn't find were $100,000 paid to Nixon fundraiser Herbert L. Kalmbach in 1969, at least $91,691 in corporate services and money to Hubert H. Humphrey's presidential campaign the year before, another $34,500 or more to Humphrey's 1970 senatorial campaign, and uncounted sums for other candidates and for office and salary expenses of the group's political trust.

Corporate contributions to political candidates are forbidden by federal law, and cannot be claimed as a business deduction on taxes. The milk producers have asserted themselves that the $100,000 paid to Kalmbach was unlawful and have asked for a refund. Two officials of the cooperative have pleaded guilty for their role in paying a portion of the 1968 Humphrey money, and a third is under indictment. In the Humphrey case, $22,000 of the illegal money was uncovered by an IRS audit in Little Rock after Connally left the Treasury Department.

A recent independent audit of the co-op's finances show that by mid-1971 more than $3 million had been paid from corporate funds to persons apparently involved fully or part-time in political activities.

In addition to the political spending, there is also evidence in public records that the milk producers spent similar huge sums in illegal kickbacks to dairies that were reluctant to pay the high prices the co-op demanded for milk produced by its member farmers.

These alleged kickbacks and the illegal political expenditures cannot legally be deducted, but the 1971 audit failed to uncover them.

Lilly's letter to Jacobsen is dated Aug. 26, 1971, barely five months after Jacobsen had secured Connally's help in persuading President Nixon to raise milk price supports. Jacobsen was asked to help again.

Lilly said the IRS had discovered checks that were part of $80,711.07 which the co-op had paid in corporate money to print a lavish picture book of President Lyndon B. Johnson's messages to Congress in 1968. The co-op had claimed this political outlay as a business expense.

Lilly didn't mention it in the letter, but notations on invoices and checks indicate the book was printed at the request of someone in the White House and was intended for use in connection with the Democratic party's 1968 fundraising dinner for Congressional candidates.

Lilly said eyebrows were raised because one of the checks had been endorsed by the printing firm to the "Salute to the President Committee," which ran the Democratic fundraising affair.

Lilly asked Jacobsen "to make contact to point out any drastic action would be premature." He said the co-op's financial controller, Robert O. Isham, was worried about what Bond might uncover, and wanted to talk to someone "at a higher level."

Jacobsen has testified that he hired Collie after checking with Connally to "see if it was OK" to use Connally's law partner in the matter. Connally had suspended his connection to the law firm, to which he later returned.

Collie said in a telephone interview that he looked over the facts about the LBJ book payments and advised the milk producers against trying to maintain their claim of a deduction. "I assume they took my advice," he said. "I got a very damn nominal fee."

When the matter was settled, Jacobsen told Isham and others that Connally had written to Phinney about the audit, one source said. "Jake insisted that Connally wrote to Phinney," he said.

Isham was skeptical of the claim, the source said. "Jake said a lot of things, and he didn't know whether to believe him or not."

Phinney, in a telephone interview, denied that Connally had contacted him about the matter. "I had no contact whatever with anybody up there about this audit," he said.

Phinney, who retired in June and is active in Democratic politics, said he remains friendly with Connally even now that he is a Republican. Their association goes back at least to 1945 when Phinney was a founding director and stockholder in Connally's radio station in Austin.

Bond, the IRS agent who began the audit, declined to comment.

Phinney said the matter of the LBJ book was referred to the Justice Department, and Lilly is quoted as saying that the FBI investigated it. No prosecution resulted.

Kuzma Sometimes 'Frustrated' As Poet

By LIANE GUENTHER
Star Staff Writer

"The proof of a poet is that his country absorbs him as affectionately as he has absorbed it," — Walt Whitman

At 29, Greg Kuzma has accomplished feats most poets could never hope to in a lifetime. Yet, he admitted, "I don't know if I'm comfortable thinking of myself as a poet." He said he sometimes feels "very frustrated" and "dissatisfied."

Nine pamphlets of his poetry have been printed, as well as a book, entitled "Good News." Between 200 and 300 of his poems are published each year in magazines of all kinds and sizes... as many or more than any other poet in the United States," he said.

During a recent trip to the East Coast, the University of Nebraska assistant professor recorded some of his poetry for the Library of Congress tape library in Washington, D.C.

But these are only statistics. They are not what makes Greg Kuzma the "fine poet" critics have acclaimed him to be.

"I'm in the mood for poems so often, I write because I can't help it," he said. Next to his family, it'd be the biggest part of his life.

He said he can leave whatever he's doing, isolate himself upstairs with his typewriter and paper and "spend days or even months just fooling around."

"The trouble is," he said, "I have a hard time living genuinely and sincerely in the world." For him, the world becomes a "project" and he said he feels as though he's standing on the sidelines watching it go by.

"In a way, it puts me a little more in control of situations," he said. "But it also takes a lot of fun out of life. If I write enough, I'll never do anything else." Kuzma said he turned to writing as an adolescent because he seemed "more troubled, more unhappy" than his friends.

"My parents and I didn't get along all that well, either," he added. "I tried to find out who I was in relation to the rest of the world."

Although he's publishing "Pebble," his own literary magazine, and a series of pamphlets, Kuzma said he's still not satisfied.

"I'm trying for truth in my writing," he said, "but I really don't know what truth is."

He said he's usually very interested in the poems he's working with at the time, then weeks or months later "they don't seem as good."

"I engage reality for a time, but reality slips away," he said.

From time to time he travels to other college and university campuses to give poetry readings or conduct workshops.

He said he's "not that keen" on giving readings, but he does it to help defray the cost of running a printing press.

"Most of my stuff is meant for the eye, not the ear," he said.

In his travels, he said he finds more people than ever before interested in writing, "possibly because they can't find jobs in anything else."

Hundreds of thousands of people are writing poetry now a-days, he said, "and a good many of them have no training."

"They see it as a spilling out of emotion, but they don't have the techniques, the language and situations are not fresh," he said, almost with distaste.

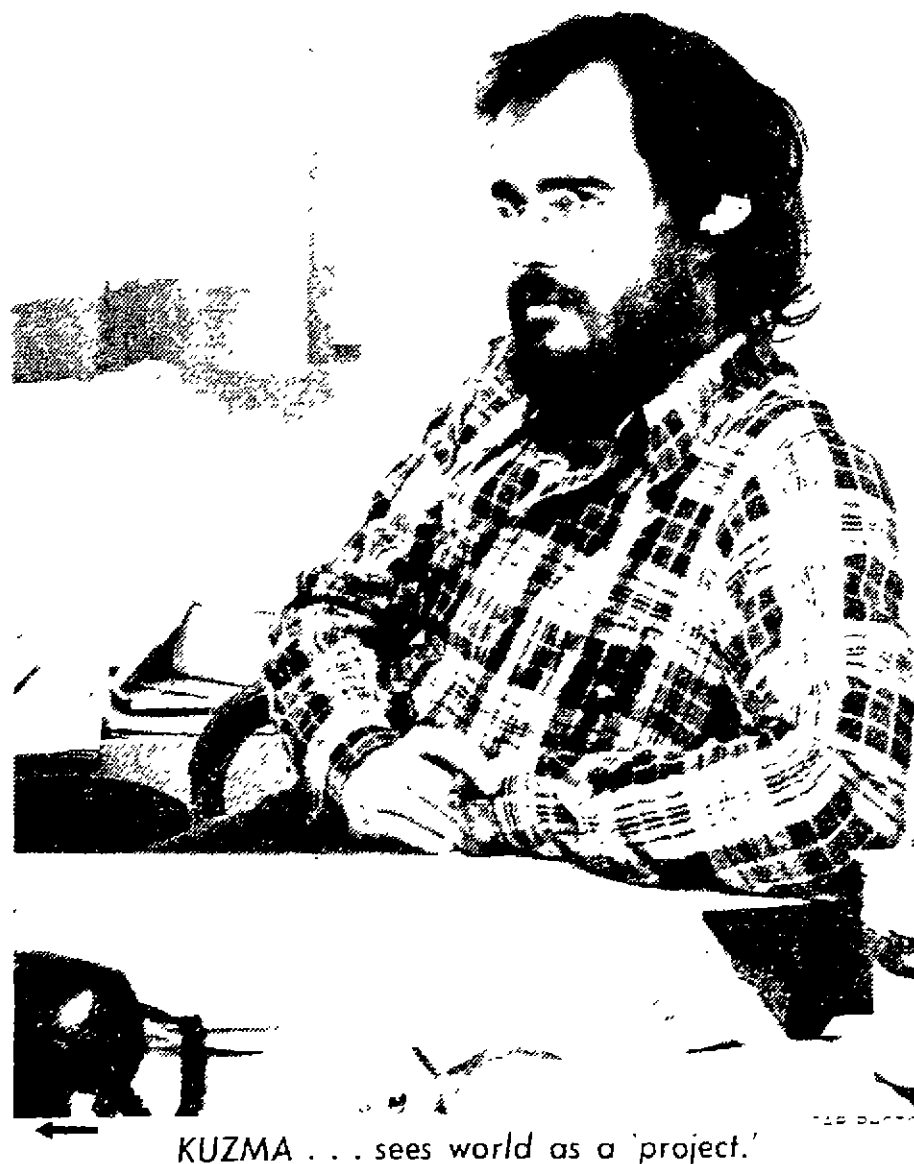

As far as his own career is concerned, Kuzma said, "I think I've gone as far as I want to go. I don't want to be a product of Madison Avenue."

He said he will continue to write by separating himself from "the system" and "lots of things I find myself caught up in."

"Maybe I'll even drop the magazine," he said, almost thinking aloud. He said he doesn't like the politics involved... publishers are expected to reciprocate favors.

"I don't know how I'll ever be satisfied," he said. "Maybe it's a good thing. Maybe writers only continue to write as long as they are frustrated."

"My challenge now is to find things of value that will last."

Some Progress Made In Disengagement Talks

JERUSALEM (AP) — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger said he had made some progress in talks Sunday with Syrian leaders in working toward a disengagement of Syrian and Israeli forces on the Golan Heights. But he said no agreement has been reached.

After his talks in Damascus Sunday, Kissinger's shuttle diplomacy took him on a flight back to Tel Aviv. He then drove to Jerusalem for another round of negotiations with Premier Golda Meir and top cabinet ministers.

Israeli and American officials had hoped the secretary's 4½ hours of talks with Syrian President Hafez Assad earlier in the day would score a breakthrough for a disengagement pact. But instead of a final response, Kissinger brought more questions to discuss with the Israelis.

Senior officials aboard Kissinger's jet said during the flight from Damascus that the Syrian and Israeli truce teams were close to agreeing on key elements of a settlement, but that major differences still remained.

"We have passed from the state of general discussion and consideration to a detailed and complete examination of all the elements of disengagement," Kissinger told newsmen just before leaving the Syrian capital.

Kissinger had departed for Damascus early Sunday with his spirits buoyed by what American officials described as a definite and positive change in Syria's attitude. The new tone — on the 15th day of Kissinger's latest Middle East mission, led the U.S. officials to upgrade the odds for a settlement by the end of the week to better than 50-50.

Kissinger's next shuttle to Damascus was set for Tuesday, and American officials said by then he is almost certain to know if he can achieve a separation of forces.

Mexican-American Political Interest Up

By BOB GUENTHER
Star Staff Writer

The 1974 elections are witnessing an awakening interest in government among Nebraska's Mexican-American population, according to Stan Porras, director of the State Mexican-American Commission.

Voters in three Nebraska communities Tuesday will see the names of at least one Mexican-American on their ballots for elected offices including city council and the local school board. A total of five candidates of Mexican-American descent are running, Porras said.

In Grand Island, two women, Yolanda Chavez and Mariana Ramirez are seeking seats on the local school board.

Toby Maestas, a Mitchell plumber, is a candidate for that Panhandle community's school board.

And in Scottsbluff, Don Ferreyra is running for the Scottsbluff school board, while Pete Urdiales is the first Mexican-American to run for a spot on the Scottsbluff city council, Porras said.

Porras conceded that if he were still living in Scottsbluff he also would be running for the city council.

"This is the first time in Nebraska's history that we've had so many candidates," he said.

"I think we see it occurring now because of dissatisfaction with government and frustrations in their own personal lives."

Porras said a high degree of concern in the Mexican-American community about the quality of education is reflected in the fact that four of the five candidates want a role in policy decisions of their local school boards.

Those four candidates for the Grand Island, Mitchell and Scottsbluff school boards are particularly concerned about the tremendous dropout rate among Mexican-American high school students and the low percentage that go on to college, Porras said.

"I think they hope to bring a change of attitude to the school boards to see the how's and why's of dropouts," he said.

It's not just the student's fault, it's the system's. They're trying to make some headway toward solving the problem.

Porras did not predict how the five Mexican-American candidates would fare Tuesday and ultimately in November.

But he said, "Even if they don't win, at least they've made an impact on their communities by raising the issues and getting people to think about them."

Should they lose, he said he does not expect it would mean an abandonment of politics by Mexican-Americans.

"They realize it's largely a matter of getting their name out before the voters. To win in the end may require a few setbacks," he said.

Porras said he hopes in the next two years Mexican-American candidates for statewide offices, such as state senator, will emerge.

Asked why no Mexican-Americans filed for the seat being vacated by Sen. Terry Carpenter of Scottsbluff, Porras said he felt the $4,800 annual salary might have played a role.

"This has possibly been a deterrent to Mexican-American candidates for the Legislature," he said.

Consequently, Porras said he strongly supports Amendment 1 to raise legislators' pay.

Everywhere they turned Sunday, there was a piece of art — 105 of them, in fact — adorning stark file cabinets, lining dull walls and brightening back offices and shelves.

And the approximately 100 who turned out weren't connoisseurs quietly scrutinizing gallery overflow, most were justifiably proud parents of Lincoln 7th-12th graders whose work went on display in the public schools Spotlight on Art.

"I think this gives a lot of opportunities to people so their names can be known," said Frank Daharsh, 17-year-old Lincoln Southeast senior. And it allows the public "to appreciate art work that school children do," he added.

Sponsored by the Lincoln Board of Education, the fifth annual show excluded pieces by faculty and staff this year, featuring strictly student art, said art consultant Roger D. Van Deventer.

Spotlight opens every Mother's Day, and the pieces will remain on display in the Public Schools Administration Building, 720 S. 22nd, for a year. The public may view them weekdays from 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.

Display items are for sale, Van Deventer said. Each is labeled to allow individuals to contact the artist and negotiate a sale price.

The artist must be willing to replace his work with a piece of similar size, to maintain the show's continuity, if the artist is unwilling, the object may not be sold, he said.

Van Deventer called Spotlight "a first-class project," submitting its success lies in the school board's acknowledgement of the art curriculum and student talent. The board provides framing, mats and labels, adding a professional touch to the amateur artists' works.

The students' range of versatility includes paper mache, crayon, water color, stoneware batik, photography, macrame, collage, engraving, sculpture, wood, oil and acrylic painting, among others.

"I think this is a pretty neat idea," Daharsh said of the show in which he has a scratchboard on exhibit.

"It's the first scratchboard

I've ever done," said the aspiring artist, explaining he painted India ink on a special paper surface, then scratched away the design with a pointed tool.

"It's a negative process," he said. "It just leaves the white Daharsh said he started out in oil painting, but prefers working with acrylics.

The scratchboard took him "about a week of class periods to finish," he said. Asked how much he would sell it for, he replied that some artists can finish a piece in an hour and charge high prices. Even if something takes him two weeks "I'll give it away to people as long as I know they'll appreciate it."

But he admitted he may have to take more of a commercial approach to his work in the future.

Daharsh is one of about 40 secondary students in the Public Schools Artists Guild begun last September.

Van Deventer said teachers

select students for membership based on their ability and interest in art and create special kinds of situations we think will continue to nurture that ability.

This summer, for example, the schools are planning a retreat for guild members on the 200-acre Grandpa's Woods near Elmwood where the students may work in different media and exchange ideas with professional artists.

The program is part of the schools Year of the Arts.

NPTV Auction Offers Variety

There were no traditional fast-talking auctioneers, but the auction Sunday night by the Nebraskaans for Public Television Inc. (NPTV) had enough items to please any bargain hunter.

A unique offering was six ampules of frozen Charolais cattle semen, donated by a Sutherland cattle company. Other unusual items were a $500 scholarship from Chadron State College, a 1962 Chevrolet Impala sedan and 10 shares of common stock.

More traditional donations included clothes, vacations, theater tickets and household objects. Bidding was brisk on such items as shoes, a pewter liquor cabinet and a Husky puppy.

Sunday night's bids totaled $3,000, according to George Collins, NPTV announcer and auction coordinator. The goal for the three-night auction is $30,000.

Most items were auctioned for less than the suggested retail, or donor, value. However, some were sold for more, purchasers who bid more than the donor price could deduct the difference on their tax statement.

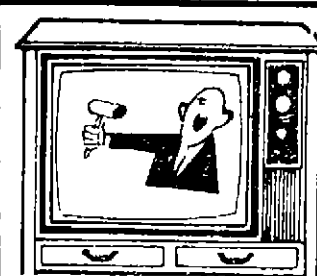

The auction is a project by NPTV volunteers to raise money for use in production of 13 public TV programs and series on the Nebraska ETV network.

Collins urged Nebraska merchants to donate more items for the auction's remaining two nights. He said 450-500 items already have been donated, but added that 200-300 more are needed.

Because of the shortage of donations, he said he could not tell what would be up for auction Monday and Tuesday nights.

Nixon Aide Attacks 'Vicious' Campaign

Washington (AP)—Bolstered in spirit by the echo of cheers from the nation's midland, President Nixon spent a quiet, rainy day at the White House Sunday as one of his lawyers charged that a "malicious and vicious" campaign is afoot to poison the public's mind against him.

Presidential Counsel J. Fred Buzhardt said that in recent days some of the tapes of Nixon's conversations contain ethnic slurs and "some of the most outrageous language you've ever heard."

"It's clear that a concerted campaign has been made to cause these to be publicized," Buzhardt said. "I can only characterize this as a malicious and vicious attempt to poison the public's mind against him."

A source familiar with the tapes, however, told The Associated Press late Sunday

that "no reasonable person who heard those remarks could possibly deny that they were racial slurs."

Buzhardt, referring to reports that Nixon had used ethnic characterizations such as "Jew-boy" and "Wop" in speaking of government officials, said he had listened to "close to 40" of the tapes and "I don't remember the word 'Jew.' I do remember the word 'Jewish' being used somebody may have said somebody was Polish."

In any case, said Buzhardt, none of the references was used as a slur.

Buzhardt appeared on CBS' "Face the Nation."

Buzhardt reaffirmed that Nixon does not contemplate turning over any further tapes or documents to either the House Judiciary Committee or the special prosecutor on the Watergate matter.

Hearst Not Surprised At Blindfold Discovery

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Randolph A. Hearst said Sunday he is neither surprised nor encouraged by reports that a bloodhound led agents to a blindfold bearing the scent of his kidnapped daughter.

"It is not surprising they found it," said Hearst, president and editor of the San Francisco Examiner. "I never at any time believed she was taken except against her will. I always felt she's been coerced."

The FBI had no comment on the report that on May 2 a bloodhound trained to detect the scent of Patricia Hearst led agents to a blindfold fashioned from sponges. Agents had taken the dog into an apartment that had been used by the terrorist Symbionese Liberation Army.

"I am not encouraged," said Hearst of the report. "I would be a damned sight more encouraged if they would get her back."

The Chicago Tribune, quoting federal sources, made the report in its Sunday editions.

If confirmed, the development could indicate that Miss Hearst still is being held against her will. In her most recent taped messages, the 20-year-old coed repudiated her parents, said she had cast her lot with her abductors and participated in a $10,690 bank robbery with SLA members.

Hearst has contended that Miss Hearst was brainwashed by her abductors.

"The girl we've known all her life would not say something like that of her own free will," Hearst said after hearing the tape in which Miss Hearst renounced her parents.

She is wanted as a material witness to the bank robbery. The SLA claims it kidnapped Miss Hearst from her Berkeley apartment on Feb. 4.

Twisters Charge Up Atlantic Coast

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — A line of tornadoes snaked through southern Georgia and continued up the Atlantic coast Sunday, leaving at least three persons dead and 13 injured.

The National Weather Service in Atlanta said the area of severe winds and thunderstorms was moving northeast.

Officials said a tornado touched down in the Summerville, S.C., area near Charleston but there were no known injuries.

Becky Edwards, 22, and 8-year-old Connie Anderson were killed when twisters smashed into a pair of mobile homes near Glennville, Ga., in Tattnall County.

Seven persons were injured in the wake of the winds, which lifted roofs off houses and toppled trailers off their foundations. Authorities said one person, a 13-year-old girl, underwent emergency surgery at a Savannah hospital, where she was listed in serious condition.

In nearby Effingham County in the Rincon community, police said Lorian Manning, 60, died and her husband and grandchildren were injured when a tornado slammed into several mobile homes.

Tornadoes and heavy winds overturned about two dozen mobile homes and tore roofs in Jacksonville, Fla., as heavy thunderstorms and hail hit the area.

Police said there were no known injuries. One twister hit several residences and trailers while another ripped roofs off three warehouses and slammed an empty truck into an unoccupied car.

Three others persons were also injured in that touchdown.

Reds Begin Repairs On Crumbled Square

MOSCOW (AP) — Red Square has withstood battles, beheadings and the light cavalry of the Golden Horde, but apparently it can't take the ponderous tread of the Red Army.

Closed until next November for what the Soviet news agency Tass said was "repair and restoration work," the vast square was sealed off by a high fence Sunday and was cluttered with cranes, trucks and bulldozers.

Tass said the project included a block by block restoration of the Lenin mausoleum and a facelift for the Spassky Tower, the Kremlin's main tower.

Tass acknowledged that the passage of intercontinental missiles and other massive military hardware had taken a toll on the square's granite cobblestones, and workers were to reinforce the earthen bed.

The agency said the government was spending millions of rubles on the Red Square renovation. Repair crews were to work daily in three shifts in efforts to complete the job in time for the annual mass demonstration on the anniversary of the October revolution.

New York Times News Summary

Visit Seen As Sign

Cairo — Despite the increasing influence of the United States in Egypt, the Soviet Union's assets in the Arab world remain large and numerous. The visit of Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko to Damascus is regarded as a new sign that the Soviets intend to protect these assets and to meet the American challenge, but without endangering detente with Washington. Western diplomats are convinced that Gromyko, while temporarily dwarfed by Secretary of State Henry Kissinger, will come into his own again when the Geneva Conference reconvenes and considers the fundamental political issues involving a Palestine state, security of the area and final boundaries.

Agonizing Decision

Washington — The United States government is slowly approaching an agonizing decision on whether to give away more food to nations approaching starvation at the risk of starting a new surge of food prices at home. Secretary of Agriculture Earl L. Butz recognizes the problems involved, but does not believe they are imminent because of the enormous American harvest in prospect this year. He believes the harvest would permit some "increases in food aid" in the coming 12 months, above what had been planned, without any important effect on domestic prices. Other officials are less confident.

Is His Mind Made Up?

Washington — There were a number of indications that President Nixon, whatever he may decide in the future about relinquishing his office, is now acting as if he has made up his mind to let the constitutional impeachment process in Congress run its course.

Still Just An Idea

Washington — Six months after President Nixon pencilled "Project Independence" into his Nov. 7 energy speech, several hundred people in a dozen federal agencies are involved in the most ambitious exercise in peacetime economic forecasting, planning and policy-making in the country's history — trying to develop a working definition.

Rangel Asks End To Opium Growing Plan

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Charles B. Rangel, D-N.Y., asked President Nixon Sunday to scrap what was described as a White House plan to grow opium poppies in Arizona and the state of Washington.

Rangel said in a letter to the President that if the administration is considering such a plan it would jeopardize an agreement with the Turkish government to curtail opium production.

Rangel, who represents a district in the heart of New York City, said he became aware of the plan from published news reports.

He quoted the reports as saying the plan calls for the growing of 400 acres of opium poppies at Walla Walla, Wash. and Phoenix, Ariz., for medical use only.

"The claimed opium shortage which has prompted such planning has not been substantiated by the government," said Rangel. "In fact, John Bartels, administrator of the Federal Drug Enforcement Administration, has said that the opium shortage has been greatly exaggerated by the pharmaceutical companies."

Sculptor Creates Pieces To Smell

London (AP) — This year's Summer Exhibition at the Royal Academy of Art quite literally stinks, and sculptor Geoffrey Clarke is proudly responsible.

Among the 1,373 works on display at the prestigious and always controversial summer show are five "Smellies" by the 49-year-old associate of the Royal Academy.

His sculptural groupings — with titles like "King and Queen," "Fair and Eternal Spring" and "Towards Retreat" — come replete with vials of erotic and sometimes noxious scents and aromas that help the gallery-goer achieve "total ambience" in appreciating the artist's abstractions.

"The queen smells lovely, but the king has a problem," sniffed tourist Karen Stephan of Chicago, getting a whiff of Clarke's genius from a brass-stoppered bottle offered by a gallery attendant.

The scent bottles are actually part of the sculpture and are arrayed like children's blocks to represent a human being, an automobile or a farm house.

In "Passage of Moments," Clarke's largest work which he just sold for $2,400, aromas of coffee, tobacco, cooking sherry, grass and woodsmoke help the viewer follow the artist on an abstract journey by car from his town house to a farm house in the countryside.

Fifteen scents accompany the work. But, says Clarke, "fresh bread is still missing — the chemists just can't seem to reproduce that bakery aroma — and I'm not too happy with the town smells."

"Carbon monoxide, you know, has no smell, and I'm trying to do something with tar and dust."

"Dark and Constant Origin," which the sculptor has identified in the exhibition as "an olfactory sandcast metal with essential oils," looks like a tarantula under glass or the innards of a switchboard recently ripped out by a neurotic telephone operator, but the attending smells, according to gallery official Lindy Galsman, are meant to suggest "male sexual smells of darkness and passion."

An almost identical accompanying piece called "Fair and Eternal Spring," offers womanly aromas of "Lightness and Freshness."

"Doesn't smell like my man," snorted a dowager-type in Gatsby spiculis, sniffing the male of the species.

It brought a giggle from a gaggle of school girls in identical plaid skirts who asked to take a whiff of the cooking sherry, then went off to view "Girl on a Bed," an enormous bare-bottomed charmer in plaster by sculptor James Butler. That's another big hit at the show.

With the help of an industrial chemist, whom he names on a credit line at the show, Clarke has been experimenting with odiferous sculpture for the past seven months.

His belief is that the "predominant senses of sight and sound have become increasingly dulled by over-exposure to mass impersonal media."

"Penetration of man's thickening skin becomes more difficult and can be achieved only through total ambience. I am therefore proposing communication principally through the least damaged sense, the sense of smell."

Survey: Plurality Wants Nixon Impeached, Removed

By LOUIS HARRIS
In the aftermath of President Nixon's release of the 1,300 pages of edited tape transcripts and his refusal to turn over any more materials on the Watergate case, by 49-41%, a plurality of the American people now want him "impeached and removed from office." This is a rise from a 42-42% standoff in public opinion for removal of the President in April.

On seven key counts, a majority of the public believe President Nixon is guilty of committing an act which a majority in turn also believe is grounds for impeachment and removal from office:

— By 64-23%, a majority feel Nixon "knew about the attempt to cover up White House involvement in the Watergate case." By 57-31%, a majority also feel this is an offense for which he should be removed from office by Congress.

— By 61-20%, a majority believe Nixon "signed back-

Louis Harris

Key Counts Listed

dated tax forms claiming deductions for giving away his vice presidential papers, claiming tax credits a year after the law had been changed." A 53-33% majority believe such an offense is sufficient grounds for "impeachment and removal from office."

— By 59-24%, a majority believe President Nixon "knew about and signed false statements on his income tax return filed with the Internal Revenue Service." A 61-29% majority feel such income tax fraud is grounds for removal from office.

— By 55-24%, a majority of the public feel that Nixon "knew about and did not object to paying the original Watergate defendants hush money to keep quiet." A 67-20% majority feel commission of this act is sufficient grounds for "impeachment and removal from office."

— By 55-23%, a majority believe Nixon "knew that key Watergate tapes were either destroyed or parts damaging to himself were erased." By 54-32%, a majority feel such an act is impeachable and could be a legitimate basis for removal of the President.

— By 52-25%, a majority of the public believe President Nixon "allowed the 18½ minutes to be erased from the taped conversation between himself and H. R. Haldeman a few days after the Watergate break-in." By 51-33%, a majority feel he should be impeached and removed for such an offense.

— By 51-26%, a majority feel the President "knew about and did not object to offering executive clemency to the original Watergate defendants to keep them quiet." A 59-28% majority believe this is sufficient grounds for removal.

A high 87% of the 1,555 adult Americans who were interviewed in person and in depth nationwide on March 7 and 8 said they had heard or read about the President's release of the transcript of edited tapes and subsequent events. Uniformly, by roughly 2-1 majority, the public rejects Nixon's claim about what the transcripts show:

— By 59-28%, a majority reject the President's contention that with the "turning over of the 1,300 pages of edited tapes, Congress now has all the information it needs to judge his guilt or innocence."

— By 64-24%, a majority disagree with Nixon that "there is no need for electronic experts to check the original tapes to be sure they have not been altered or parts erased."

— By 60-24%, most Americans simply do not believe the transcripts "prove the President had no knowledge of the White House Watergate cover-up."

— By 63-23%, a majority rejects the President's claim that "the transcripts prove he wanted everything about Watergate to be known and nothing to be held back."

— By 55-24%, most people simply do not believe Nixon's statement that "he was assured neither Rose Mary Woods nor any White House aides deliberately erased the missing 18½ minutes on the tape."

There is now a rising public call for the impeachment and removal of this President from office by Congress. People were asked:

"All in all, do you think President Nixon should or should not be impeached by Congress and removed from office?"

REMOVAL OF NIXON FROM OFFICE BY CONGRESS

Should be impeached and removed	49	42	43
Should not be impeached and removed	41	42	41
Not sure	10	16	16

While on the key question, the number who advocate removal is just below the majority mark, on seven key specific possible charges, a majority favoring a conviction of the President now exists. It is apparent now that he is in deeper trouble than ever before on the Watergate matter.

Woods Park Tennis Complex

Plans for a new tennis complex at Woods Park sound good at first blush, but the City Parks and Recreation Board is wise in taking a second look at the proposal before going ahead with its final recommendation.

The advisory board last week gave tentative support for a plan which calls for construction of a two-level clubhouse, hiring of a pro to manage the center and give lessons, construction of additional courts up to a total of 24 — with six to be converted to indoor courts during the winter months — and construction of wind-breaks and bleachers. A special committee will study the proposal, submitted by the Lincoln Tennis Association.

In presenting the plans for the tennis complex, LTA President Jack Eidswick left some impressions which we hold up to question.

A survey he conducted, Eidswick said, showed that people lined up to play tennis at Woods Park, leaving various neighborhood courts vacant at times. If that's true — and we don't think it is — it would mean that the public tennis program in Lincoln has been a miserable failure. It would point to the need to better inform the public as to the locations of neighborhood courts. And if some neighborhood courts are vacant at times, that would also indicate that the unlighted ones should be provided with lighting. Overall, it's our belief that there is not a sufficient number of tennis courts in Lincoln to serve the tennis-playing public.

Eidswick also said that the proposed center could pay for itself by charging fees for certain activities. But that could require the setting of highly prohibitive fees which would effectively exclude many people who can't afford the fee from playing tennis at the complex. It would be, in that case, nothing less than a country club. And that doesn't fit in with what we believe to be the proper concept of public recreation.

Again, the idea of a tennis complex to supplement the existing courts at Woods Park is appealing, especially the proposal to hire a pro who can build and maintain interest in the game by instructing beginners. But the complex should not be built at the expense of the neighborhood court program. Nor should the proposal be sold to the city as a facility which can pay for itself. It should be built only with the idea in mind that it will be a facility which most anyone can afford to use, and that will probably mean it will have to receive an on-going public subsidy.

Putting Meaning Into Words

We continue to be bothered by Mayor Schwartzkopf's oft-repeated opposition to spending tax money on the renovation, if it is needed, of temporary housing which hopefully will be provided Indian families who will come to Lincoln in connection with the Wounded Knee trials.

We applaud the mayor's urging recently that Lincolinites offer their services to a volunteer effort to aid the visiting Indian families.

His plight, in realizing only lately that there are indeed bigots in the city of Lincoln, has our sympathy.

And we agree with the mayor's characterization of charity and helpfulness as "the American way." Those qualities have been traditional in America, especially in this part of the country.

Why, then, doesn't the mayor follow up on all those decent sentiments by declaring that he would agree to city government participation in doing whatever is needed to make the housing (if any can be agreed upon) suitable?

Sharing a little bit of the city treasury if needed would be a gracious and humane gesture befitting the mayor's words.

ON TARGET

By DON WALTON

Mr. Rozelle is busy at the moment. Can you wait?

Well, yes, I suppose. Did you tell him who this is?

Yes, but he has another phone call right now. He said to tell you he'd be with you in a minute.

Okay, okay. I'll wait.

I'll put you on hold.

That's where I am, all right. Heh. Heh. Pardon?

On, nothing. Just put me on hold.

This is Pete Rozelle.

Oh, hi, Pete. How 'ya doing?

Fine.

I know you're awfully busy. I'm sorry to bother you. I'll try to be brief and not take too much of your time.

Fine.

I was wondering . . . I haven't made any firm decision yet, or anything like that . . . I wouldn't want to mislead you into thinking . . . well, I'm just thinking out loud. I'll get to the point.

Fine.

I'm getting a little tired of this job. You know, after five years a person needs a change.

You end up doing the same things over and over again. The challenges begin to disappear. A person needs to grow and meet new tests, fight new battles. You can grow stale in a job. You suddenly wake up and find yourself in a rut. You begin to feel trapped. A person needs . . .

Can you hold a minute?

Well, yes. I suppose.

(A minute passes.)

Okay, I'm back. I had to take a call from Shula. You were saying?

Shula, how is he?

Fine.

I was just sick to see those guys jump. The Dolphins just won't be the same after next year.

I hope this bidding doesn't get out of hand and ruin The Game. I know you're concerned about it, but I think you did the right thing in opening it up with those new rules . . . I said I think you did the right thing.

Fine.

Well, let me get right to the point. I may be leaving this job. I've prepared a letter giving two weeks notice, but I haven't signed it yet. I was wondering whether there would be anything available at the NFL if I decided to seek new opportunities.

(One minute passes.)

Uh, Pete, are you there?

Yes.

I was wondering if there might be an opening at the NFL.

And we agree with the mayor's characterization of charity and helpfulness as "the American way." Those qualities have been traditional in America, especially in this part of the country.

Why, then, doesn't the mayor follow up on all those decent sentiments by declaring that he would agree to city government participation in doing whatever is needed to make the housing (if any can be agreed upon) suitable?

Sharing a little bit of the city treasury if needed would be a gracious and humane gesture befitting the mayor's words.

VIRGINIA PAYETTE

Pound Of Flesh Is Paid

NEW YORK — If you were feeling just a touch richer last week, it's not all spring fever. For the first time in 1974, your paycheck included money you can spend on yourself.

Everything you've earned so far this year was for taxes, 112 full working days when you slogged through snow, ice, sleet and bangovers to feed federal, state and local coffers.

But for a week now, it's been all yours.

This, of course, isn't the way it really works out. It's just one way the Tax Foundation, Inc., uses to let us know how bad things really are. And they work so hard calculating all those figures, you kind of hate to tell them we knew it all along.

Actually, they have tables that break it down on a day-to-day basis. These are more realistic, but after you look them over, you want to rush out and kick the cat. Or your congressman.

What they show is that this year we'll be working longer than ever to pay Uncle Sam. If you check in at 9 a.m., it will be 11:38 (not counting coffee breaks) before you make a dollar you can call your own.

Or, for the masochists in the group, all day Monday and up to 2:10 p.m. on Tuesday belong to the tax collector.

Ready for a few more depressing statistics? Well, the Tax Foundation has them. You know any institution with a name like that has to be mighty short on good news.

If you think April 15 hurt more than usual this year, you're right. But think back (if you can bear it) to the last 10 years. Did you realize that what the federal government took out in withholding taxes alone adds up to more than a year's pay?

Not only that (are you still with me?), you paid almost as much in other federal bites on gasoline, telephones, and what businessmen collect in the form of higher prices so they can pay their Social Security and other taxes.

The state and local governments don't let you off easy, either. Some folks will get hit harder than others, depending on where they live, but nationally it averages out to 11 per cent, which makes a grand tax total for 1974 of 33 per cent.

Psych yourself up to enjoying this week's paycheck if you can, because any euphoria connected with taxes is short-lived. It's not going to get any better for a while.

All that tax-reform talk will probably turn out to be just so much election-year hot air. The Democrats say they are all for it, even up to a $10-billion slash. But Treasury Secretary William E. Simon isn't running for office and he says a cut now would be "highly inflationary." He's against it.

So is President Nixon and so are most economists. The best we can hope for, looks like, is an increase in personal exemptions from $750 to $825. And even that's iffy.

But, with the lid off price controls, every little bit helps. And it's probably safe to figure that those folks (48 per cent) who told a pollster they would "save" any money from tax relief were talking about the cookie jar — or some other place they can get at in a hurry.

Ticks, Taxes, Bunk And Bunker

Ticks, Please, Don't Squeeze

Lincoln, Neb.

The following special interest poem is regarding ticks.

While strolling through the park one day in the merry, merry month of May,
I was taken by surprise
by a pair of insect's eyes.
I picked it off and threw the tick away.

A tick was all it meant to me.
We weren't as happy as could be

It bothered me not to leave her for I don't want spotted fever.
Some may want to laugh and scoff but from now on I'll use more "Oh."
Cause I don't want to meet her family, either.

When you remove a tick, would you please remember, like the Charming, don't squeeze.

Lincoln, Neb.

Very few laymen understood what kind of tax relief was involved in LB772, sold under the guise of state aid to education. Governor Exon and too few senators did understand that it was "state aid to big property owners" at the expense of little people. Now, Governor Exon and the candidate for lieutenant governor, Gerald Whelan, are the only candidates for these offices on the primary ballot who are opposed to LB772.

To fund the provisions of this scheme would require raising the sales tax by 40% and the income tax by 36%, according to tax experts. This would cost wage-earners about $200 more in state taxes per year, on the average. Big property owners would save more in taxes than the small wage-earners' entire income.

With national inflation, runaway profits and prices and then about 40% increase in state taxes for two years before we allegedly get 20 mills off our real estate taxes for two years before we allegedly get 20 mills off our real estate taxes here in Lincoln, how can we come out, when we can't even get a 10% increase in wages? We would be trading about $200 for less than $100 property tax relief.

These are the reasons we in the Nebraska State Council of Machinists voted unanimously during our business session in Beatrice May 5 to support the referendum petition to block LB772. We have resolved never again to be so duped.

JAMES RESTON

Nixon's Hornet Nest Buzzes Only Louder

WASHINGTON — In the Congressional Globe for June 4, 1842, the official stenographer in the House of Representatives reports John Quincy Adams as follows:

"Mr. Adams said . . . Why, what mockery it would be for the Constitution of the United States to say that the House should have the power of impeachment, extending even to the President of the United States himself, and yet to say that the House had not the power to obtain the evidence and proofs on which their impeachment was based. It appeared to him (Adams) equivalent to a self-evident principle, that the power of impeachment gives to the House necessarily the power to call for persons and papers." (Congressional Globe, 27th Congress, 2nd Session, Page 580)

Nevertheless, 132 years later this is precisely the principle President Nixon is challenging in the Watergate case. He has refused to turn over the additional "evidence and proofs" requested by the House Judiciary Committee and the special prosecutor, Leon Jaworski, and his lawyer, James D. St. Clair, has threatened to fight the case all the way through the Supreme Court if necessary.

It was probably inevitable that this conflict between the President's claims to "confidentiality" and the House's power to call for "persons and papers" in an impeachment proceeding, should be submitted to the highest court for judicial review. But again what is odd about the President's defense is that he has chosen to risk this confrontation in the Supreme Court at the worst possible time for himself.

Mr. Nixon had the option of sticking to his original position: that demands for presidential documents were an invasion of the "confidentiality" of the presidency, which he would oppose by invoking his "executive privilege."

As the U.S. Court of Appeals stated in Nixon vs. Sirica, "wholesale public access to executive deliberations and documents would cripple the executive as a co-equal branch." It is a hard case to argue in an impeachment inquiry into possible criminal action by the President and his aides, but it might have been sustained by the Supreme Court.

What the President has done, however, is to weaken his own argument for the "confidentiality" of his documents by releasing over 1,000 pages of the most damaging executive conversations ever made public by a chief executive.

As his lawyer said in submitting edited transcripts of the White House tapes to the Congress, "The President . . . does recognize that the House Committee on the Judiciary has constitutional responsibilities to examine fully into his conduct and therefore the President has provided the annexed transcripts of all or portions of the subpoenaed conversations that were recorded. . . .

Having broken his own rule against releasing confidential documents, the President is now insisting that he alone must decide what other evidence the House needs to meet its constitutional responsibilities, who shall be permitted to hear the tapes to assure that a "full and complete disclosure" has been made, and what is relevant or irrelevant to the House's investigation.

Nixon has insisted that his lawyer be allowed to sit in on the private and public deliberations of the Judiciary Committee and interrogate witnesses, and this request has been granted, but he rejects the suggestion that the committee's electronics experts and lawyers be allowed to check the tapes against the transcripts for accuracy.

Thus, he has not ended the clamor for more information or silenced the doubts about the accuracy of his disclosures, or protected his privacy by releasing the edited White House conversations, but increased the demand for more information, raised even more suspicions than before, provoked an outcry among his own leaders on Capitol Hill — even a demand by the Chicago Tribune for his resignation or dismissal — and challenged the House and his own special prosecutor to a constitutional crisis in the Supreme Court.

Maybe he is gambling that the Supreme Court would sustain him, but if it doesn't, he will either have to hand over the evidence requested by the House, or disobey the court, which would be a subversion of the Constitution and probably a decisive impeachable offense.

How could he have picked this cast of characters and given them such power? How could he have installed this electronic listening system, bugged his own men and even visiting heads of government without their knowledge, and then talked the way he did, knowing the tapes were running?

His appointments to the Supreme Court and some of his appointments to the Justice Department, has approval of a secret investigating ring in the White House, his efforts to involve the F.B.I. and the C.I.A. in the cover-up, his misjudgment of Agnew, Cox, and Richardson, his misleading accounts of the scandals which he then exposed by releasing the transcripts — all this and much more raise doubts about the confidence in his judgment in the White House in the next two and a half years.

And the feeling here, as he backs and fills on handling over the evidence the Congress wants, and even trots out a resident priest in the White House to defend his character, indicates that his judgment, under pressure, is not getting better but worse.

Archie Bunker Not Alone

Lincoln, Neb.

It seems Archie Bunker isn't the only remaining bigot, as witness the consideration of Willard School for housing for the South Dakota Indians. These people either forget or are unaware that the Willard district isn't exactly an elite area.

I would have less fear of the 75 Indians than the 284 whites signing the petition.

CONCERNED

Hamilton's Response

In his "Point of View" (May 11) one of my opponents, Mr. Hibler, misrepresents once again my position on the proposed US 77 West By-Pass. On April 25, both Mr. Hibler and I released statements on this question. I stated that I support constructing such a by-pass "only if the environmental questions concerning Wilderness Park can be satisfactorily resolved." I support preservation of the park and I support construction of a by-pass and I will work to accomplish both giving priority, obviously, to the park as it already exists.

Mr. Hibler cites the recent decision on the Northeast Radial as an example that road plans can be subject to second thinking. He does not point out that I, along with many others, have worked against the radial for many years and appeared in position at the public hearing. Although I don't live in the path of the radial or next to Wilderness Park, I too have a keen appreciation for our natural environment and will have high priority to its protection if I am elected.

However, I have not run a single issue campaign. Many complex problems need to be faced by county government. I have released position papers on the following subjects: "Consolidation of City and County Governments," "Better Management for County Government," "US 77 West By-Pass," "Support for Senior Citizens," "Citizen Participation in County Government," "The County Planning Process" and "Responsible Delivery of Human Services" (I care about the quality of the natural environment and also about all other conditions which effect the quality of people's lives). It is unfortunate that the other candidates have not dealt with all these important issues.

I believe that county government needs people that possess the qualities, experience and temperament to deal on a day to day basis with all the complex tasks of government. We need leaders who are open to criticism and ideas and who are able to work with all sectors of the community. It is on this basis that the voters should make their judgment.

President's Actions During Watergate Probe Detailed In Transcripts

(EDITOR'S NOTE—On April 30, 1973, President Nixon said that he had on March 21 ordered "intensive new inquiries" into the Watergate case to get to the bottom of the matter and bring out the truth. Here is a report on what the White House transcripts tell of what Nixon did.)

By MICHAEL PUTZEL
Washington (AP) — With the details of Watergate spread before him in stark, menacing terms, President Nixon turned to his closest aides for their counsel. He had been told that all of them were involved.

His reaction was to order a meeting, to include H. R. Haldeman, John D. Ehrlichman, John W. Dean III and John N. Mitchell, at the "very first possible time" to discuss handling of the nagging scandal.

"No doubts about the right plan before the election," he suggested the others tell Mitchell. "You contained it. And now, after the election, we have to have another plan."

The four top men came in to see the President after meeting on March 22 and told him they had been unable to agree on a new plan.

Nixon told Dean to go to Camp David, the presidential retreat, and come back with a written report of the events described in Dean's cancer speech. Ehrlichman told the President a written report could be useful later.

Statement Suggested
"Assuming that some corner of this thing comes unstuck, you are then in a position to say, 'Look, that document I published is the document I relied on, and now this new development is a surprise to me. I am going to fire A, B, C and D now,'" Ehrlichman said.

Nixon told Dean to "just give them some of it, not all of it" and not to admit involvement, saying only that he acted as White House counsel in assisting the investigation.

Five days later, after Watergate burglar James W. McCord Jr. broke his long silence and implicated higher-ups in a break-in and cover-up conspiracy, the President discussed new alternatives with Haldeman and Ehrlichman. Dean and Mitchell were slipping away from the presidential circle.

Although Dean's report was never presented in written form, Haldeman delivered it orally to the President, along with a report from a lawyer for the Committee for the Re-election of the President. The reports implicated Mitchell and campaign deputy Jeb Stuart Magruder in the June 17, 1972, break-in at Democratic headquarters and indirectly cast doubt on Haldeman's innocence.

"Tent" Agreed
The President agreed with Ehrlichman that they should put a "national security tent" over the Daniel Ellsberg burglary case, White House-ordered wiretaps and some other activities, refusing to discuss them with investigators.

Nixon was satisfied that his four top men — Haldeman, Ehrlichman, Mitchell and Dean — only Mitchell was likely to be tied to events leading up to the break-in. He decided to cut Mitchell loose and concentrate the investigation on pre-June 17 activities, not the cover-up.

Ehrlichman was instructed to tell Atty. Gen. Richard G. Kleindienst.

"Dean was not involved — had no prior knowledge — Haldeman had no prior knowledge, you, Ehrlichman, had none, and former special counsel Charles

MITCHELL ... cut loose by Nixon.

W. Colson had none. Now, if you have any information to the contrary, let me know. There is serious question here being raised about Mitchell."

The President discussed with Haldeman the possibility of waiving the claim of executive privilege in order to let his aides give evidence regarding prior knowledge of the break-in.

"That takes you up to the June 17th break-in," Haldeman said. "What do you do after June 17th?"

"Use the executive privilege on that," Nixon replied.

Warned About Dean
Ehrlichman telephoned the President at 7:30 a.m. on April 8 to report that Dean had decided to go to the prosecutors with his story. Nixon said that would be hard on Mitchell, that Dean "hasn't got any choice on it, that he will not testify to anything after the fact, and then he'll be damn careful he's protective about it... we don't want Mitchell, you know, popping off."

By April 14, there had been many words but few decisions. The President constantly sought consensus with his men before taking action, and they rarely agreed on a course.

On the morning of April 14, a day devoted almost exclusively to Watergate, the President was told that Magruder was "about to crack" and would implicate Mitchell.

The President decided it was time to press Mitchell to go before the grand jury and tell his story. Ehrlichman was selected to give Mitchell the word and to speak with Magruder.

Mitchell refused to cooperate. Before they could reach Magruder, the former campaign deputy informed them he had made arrangements to confess his role to the prosecutors.

Dean was still on the payroll while talking to the prosecutors, leaving the White House in a difficult position.

Caution Urged
But Ehrlichman urged caution, and the President then said:

"Dean is not like Mitchell in the sense that Dean only tried to do what he could to pick up the pieces, and everybody else around here knew it had to be done."

If Dean were to be fired for cover-up activities, the President would have to "fire the whole staff," Nixon said.

Ehrlichman agreed. "There were eight or 10 people around here who knew about this, knew it was going on. Bob Haldeman knew, I knew, all kinds of people knew."

"Well, I knew it. I knew it," the President said. "I must say, though, I didn't know it. But I must have assumed it, though, but you know, fortunately — I thank you both for arranging it that way, and it does show the isolation of the President."

The President continued Dean's case is the question, and I do not consider him guilty. Now that's all there is to that. Because if he — if that's the case, then half the staff is guilty."

Acknowledging his frustration, Nixon said Dean was no more guilty "than I have been since a week ago, two weeks ago," when he learned Watergate's full proportions.

Mitchell Problem
The discussion returned to the problem with Mitchell who, the President was told, refused to admit anything and blamed the scandal on Haldeman.

"Whatever his theory is, throwing off on the White House won't help him one damn bit," Nixon said.

Ehrlichman planned to meet with Dean the next day, April 15, 1973. Nixon suggested this message for Dean:

"... The President thinks you have carried a tremendous load, and his affection and loyalty to you is just undiminished. We can't get the President involved in this. His people, that is one thing. We don't want to cover up, but there are other ways."

Ehrlichman advised against sending a signal to Dean. In the end, Dean met with the President instead. The White House says the tape ran out and that April 15, 1973, conversation was not recorded.

April 15, was another day of long, inconclusive Watergate discussions for the President.

Kleindienst reported to the President that, based on Magruder's story and Dean's Haldeman and Ehrlichman might be dragged into the case although the evidence at that point wasn't sufficient to indict them. Mitchell would be indicted, he said, and Magruder would plead guilty.

Money Probed

The attorney general also informed the President that the prosecutors were developing evidence that hush money had been paid and were putting together an obstruction of justice case.

Nixon said he had "taken Dean off the matter, of course I had to. I put Ehrlichman on." Kleindienst didn't like that, Ehrlichman, too, was now a suspect.

Kleindienst also said the evidence "casts a taint" on Haldeman as well. The pressure was building for Nixon to shed his top aides.

He conferred with Asst. Atty. Gen. Henry E. Petersen, chief of the Justice Department's criminal division and overseer of the Watergate prosecutors.

Petersen asked that the President send a signal to conspirator G. Gordon Liddy telling Liddy to testify fully about any higher-ups involved in planning or funding the break-in. Liddy supervised.

On April 17, Nixon summoned Haldeman, Ehrlichman and Press Secretary Ronald L.

Ziegler to help him prepare a public report on the exploding scandal.

Ehrlichman helped with the phrasing.

Nixon: "Four weeks ago, we — Why don't we say — shall we set a date? That sounds a hell of a lot stronger if we set a date."

Ehrlichman: "All right."

Nixon: "On March 21, I began new inquiries. Strike that. I ordered an investigation, new inquiries throughout the government."

Ehrlichman: "How about saying 'On March 21, as a result of serious charges which were reported publicly and —'"

At 4:42 p.m. on April 17, the President announced to the nation:

"On March 21, as a result of serious charges which came to my attention, some of which were publicly reported, I began intensive new inquiries into this whole matter."

"I can report today that there have been major developments in the case concerning which it would be improper to be more specific now, except to say that real progress has been made in finding the truth."

Tours, France — Our Bike Man reports from France: "Pedaling in the flatlands is no problem, even if you are no longer young and smoke cigarettes. If you're going into high country, get the bike geared low. That means 50 teeth on the large chain wheel (where the pedals are). The small chain wheel should have 36 teeth."

"This is called an Alpine gear. Any good bike shop can do it for you."

"The advantage of the bike: Scenery changes quickly. History is scattered along your route and you have time to see it. Plenty of good and inexpensive country inns and hotels. No gas to buy."

"For this kind of life you have to be a bicycle nut who likes to get where he's going under his own steam. Being rich or poor has little to do with it. It's a way of life. If you like it, the best."

"You don't bike all over Europe. Boats and trains are set up to take you and your bike over the long hauls. Then you bike tour onto your chosen route — great scenic rides. You'll see more cows than cars."

"Get the Carte Michelin maps — an absolute must. They show grades and elevations. It's good to know when you start out in the morning how much you have to pump. That you are going up 4,000 feet in altitude in the next 12 miles."

"We are thinking of touring France, staying away from big cities and using country hotels..."

There's a splendid organization of country hotels — I've stayed in several of them — called Relais de Campagne. You get their listings with pictures from the French Government Tourist Office, 610 Fifth Avenue, New York City. (Make it attention George H. — I had problems with previous letters.)

The rules for a hotel to get into this group: It has to be a country hotel. Quiet. Away from towns. Very high standards on rooms and food. They really are fine places — most of them are 20 rooms or less. Catch 22? They are not bargain priced. They're expensive. About the same as first-class American resort hotels. But get the book and see for yourself. It's free.

Relais de Campagne will advance book you into the next place. An advantage — you can't just wander around France in July and August and take chances on the next hotel.

"You mentioned a gas additive you used driving in Baja California — something new?" It's put out by Zedic Industries, Box 341, Menlo Park, Ca. 94025. You can write and see what they say about it. By mail $5 a half pint which services 500 gallons. (You squirt a little in the tank when you fill it up.)

Liquor in Mexico (and Spain) is put in a curious bottle. You uncork it and find it corked with a plastic top. Looks like a lock they put on the safe at Brink's. Don't try to pry it off with your Boy Scout knife! It's intended to pour through the plastic.

But it doesn't pour. You shake it and shake it. What you do is upend the bottle. Give it a smart rap on the bottom with the heel of your hand. Then it starts to dribble out. (I thought I'd die of thirst and old age before somebody showed me that.)

ASTROLOGICAL FORECAST

By SIDNEY OMARR

Forecast For Monday

Pluto in the Fourth House of a horoscope depicts a native whose early life was surrounded by upheaval and whose parents were not orthodox, poor where money was concerned but possibly rich where affection entered picture. This person is tough capable of fighting to achieve goals and is likely to experience difficulty with authorities, police and otherwise.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) You can take definite steps toward achievement. Professional superior is willing to invest in your potential. Be specific frank — say what you mean and enumerate requirements. Some desires are revised, others will be fulfilled.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Accept proposition which sees you co-operating in community project. Civic leadership is emphasized. You have more responsibility but there also is ultimate advantage. Gemini-Virgo persons could figure prominently.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Re-establish contact with one at a distance. Be gracious. Family member is willing to make concession. Check calls correspondence. Taurus, Libra individuals could be in picture. If you are receptive, you gain materially and spiritually.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) See in light of reality, especially where property, land values are concerned. Avoid tendency toward self-deception. No one plans to give you anything on proverbial silver platter — despite what they say. Check behind the scenes for additional information.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Responsibility arises from partnership, special agreement or association. Older individual will share experience. Defer to judgment of one who knows rules, regulations. Patience now is valuable asset.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Finish rather than begin. Find ways of appealing to more persons. Check possibility of advertising program. Basic issues will be settled. Now you should concentrate on distribution, communication and direct sales.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) Romance, creative endeavors are featured. Your personality, appearance are spotlighted. Be ready for new contacts. Challenges. Member of opposite sex could fall hopelessly in love with you. Be mature — and appreciative.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) You deal now with real situations, practical people. Put aside make-believe, state facts as they exist. Stick to familiar ground. Aquarius, Leo and Cancer persons figure in change routine. Get away from depressing situation — and persons.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Debt is paid. You will be more comfortable and confident. What you collected in past has double the value. Hold tight to possessions. Someone may try to talk you into relinquishing your rights. Be prepared and know you can deal from position of strength.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) Trust agreement, mutual lunar cycle is high. You get point across in meaningful manner. Take initiative. Ideas click. You gain added recognition. Views are vindicated. Gemini-Virgo persons are likely to be in picture.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) Secret, fears and doubts are evoked. You see what was obscured. You are stronger because the unknown becomes more substance than shadow. Home environment will be more pleasant. Domestic adjustment occurs and is beneficial.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you underwent many tests early in life. Those who should have known you were not a ways available to lend assistance. You are determined, stubborn and has "caviness." Aquarius, Leo and Scorpio persons play important roles in your life. This month, May, should be your most significant of 1974.

Doubts Raised About Fuel To Harvest Winter Wheat

By DON BEMAN.
United Press International
The U. S. Department of Agriculture predicts Nebraska is headed for a winter wheat crop record — some 114 million bushels.
But the state's energy chief, State Tax Commissioner William Peters, earlier had some doubts about whether the record crop, if it turns out to be one, will make it out of the field.
As a result, he and officials from five other states got together to see if they could get a federal guarantee that there would be enough fuel to bring in the crop when the time for harvest — the latter part of June in Nebraska — arrives.
Peters told United Press International the Federal Energy Office has assured him and the other states there will be fuel.

Men Work On Roofs Despite Poor Vision

North Platte (AP) — Two men who have lost most of their sight operate a successful roofing business here.
Charles Kirby lost one eye in an accident and has no better than 20-60 vision in the other. His assistant, Gene Gillette, has gradually lost about 80% of his vision since birth.
They got together through the State Division of Rehabilitation Services for the Visually Impaired and have worked as a team on a number of construction projects.
They say their visual disability doesn't affect their work at all.
Kirbey, a truck driver for 13 years through Colorado, New Mexico and Nebraska, was injured two years ago.
"I was tying down a load on one of my trucks," he said. "The winch slipped and the steel bar I was turning hit me in the right eye."
The eye was removed but he also developed amblyopia, commonly called "Lazy Eye," in which sight gradually grows dimmer. He was out of work for eight months.
He got a job with a roofing firm and later went into business for himself with the help of Rehabilitation Services. He met Gillette through the division and they've formed a working partnership.
Gillette's loss of vision is less dramatic. He said it was apparent since birth and while growing up he got used to partial blindness.
"We've been together since March," Gillette said. "I know we'll be together for a long time. If it weren't for the Rehabilitation Services here, I never would have got this job."
Despite their vision difficulties, both men lead a near normal life. They both drive a car and do all types of roofing.
Kirbey said the roofing business is all close work and doesn't demand distant vision. He said, "Being outside and in the sunlight helps too. Up close, it's all right."

Doctors Prove You Can Help Shrink Swelling Of Hemorrhoidal Tissues Due To Inflammation. Relieve Pain And Itch Too. Gives prompt temporary relief from hemorrhoidal pain and itch in many cases.

When inflammation, infection and swelling exist in hemorrhoidal tissues—it can be very painful for the sufferer. But there's an exclusive formulation which in many cases gives hours of relief from the burning itch and pain in hemorrhoidal tissues. It also helps shrink the swelling of such tissues. Sufferers are delighted at the way it acts so gently and is so soothing to sensitive tissues.
Tried by doctors on hundreds of patients reported similar successful results in many cases. And it was all done without the use of narcotics, anesthetics or surgery, smearing, astringents of any kind.
You can obtain this same medication used in these tests at any drug counter. Its name is Preparation H. Preparation H also lubricates to soothe the inflamed, irritated surface area to help make bowel movements more comfortable. Be sure and try Preparation H. In ointment or suppository form.

Nebraska asked for two million gallons but Peters said so far nothing but assurances have been given.
"We've got something, but we don't have a figure yet," he said.
In all, Peters said he figures the states will need five million gallons to complete the wheat harvest. Much of that amount is in the state now. But Peters said "we can't wait for a problem to develop and then try to solve it."

The two million gallons, Peters said, would allow for potential shortages already figured as well as for an emergency reserve should supplies shrink.
The other states, involved in the cooperative harvest fuel effort are North Dakota, South Dakota, Kansas, Oklahoma and Texas.
Nebraska, Peters noted, still has some leeway, "but Texas doesn't. They are ready to start the harvest in a week or so."

The main thing officials are working on now, Peters said, is the mechanism for fuel delivery, which necessarily means planning where to locate reserves for use should the wheat harvest crews run short as they travel from south to north.

The fuel assurances given by federal officials followed a visit to Washington by a delegation representing the states involved.

Hearing the delegation was Kansas Gov. Robert Docking. He and the delegation members visited with Agriculture Department officials as well as representatives from the Commerce Department and the Federal Energy Office.

recommended fluoridation policy 26-1 in mail ballots.

On Tuesday, voters in at least 100 communities across Nebraska will decide whether or not to add fluorides to their water systems.
The Legislature was ordered all municipalities to introduce fluoridation to their water, unless voters in the initiative petition process decided to exempt themselves from such proposals before Jan. 1, 1975.
The SeNHPC position paper

The board passed the

SeNHPC Endorses Fluoridation

The Southeast Nebraska Health Planning Council (SeNHPC) board of directors has adopted a policy stating that fluoridation of public water supplies is a positive preventive health practice.
SeNHPC further encourages all municipalities, villages and rural water districts to provide for fluoridated water up to a level of one part per million, according to executive director Bill Joern.
The board passed the

Health Departments Supported

The Nebraska Public Health Association (NPHA) executive board has endorsed development of health departments in Clay and Richardson Counties, according to President Dan Worthing.
"The development of local public health services, as conceived through a county health department, is recognized as a high priority" by the association, Worthing said, encouraging voter support on the two proposals in Tuesday's election.
Meanwhile, the Southeast Nebraska Health Planning Council (SeNHPC) also went on record supporting the proposed Richardson County Health Department, saying it "is in agreement with the concept of community health services as adopted by the SeNHPC board of directors."

Scottsbluff Man Is Identified As Accident Victim

Minatare (AP) — The Nebraska State Patrol has identified the victim of a one-vehicle accident Saturday as Antoine Marshall, 44, of Scottsbluff.
Marshall was pinned under a van-type vehicle after it apparently went out of control on a Scotts Bluff County road about two miles northeast of here.
Four other persons were injured but were listed in "good" condition at a Scottsbluff Hospital.
The 1974 Nebraska highway fatality toll stands at 106 compared with 139 on this date one year ago.

$30,000 Sought For Study

Omaha (AP) — The Missouri River Basin Commission has voted to seek a $30,000 grant for a one-year study to develop a flood plain management program. A spokesman said the study would take in an area from Gavins Point, S.D., to the mouth of the Missouri River at St. Louis.

Peterson To Keynote Stewardship Service

Aurora — An outdoor service in observance of soil stewardship week will be held May 25 at 3 p.m. at the Nebraska Youth Leadership Development Center east of Aurora. Keynote speaker will be Val Peterson, former Nebraska governor and now resource coordinator for Rep. Charles Thone, R-Neb. The service is under sponsorship of the Upper Big Blue Natural Resources District.

Wayne State Salary Agreement OK'd

Wayne — A salary agreement for the Wayne State College faculty in 1974-75 has been approved by the administration following ratification by the faculty's bargaining unit. The pact provides an increase of 5% of the 1973-74 salary, plus $300, plus merit addition to be determined by the department chairman or supervisor.

Stockyard Patrons Honored

Omaha (AP) — Forty patrons who have bought or sold livestock on the Omaha market for 50 or more years were honored at the 27th annual pioneer patrons recognition banquet. Those honored included 26 from Iowa, 13 from Nebraska and one from Wyoming.

chemical analyses for municipal water supplies in southeast Nebraska in 1971 indicate that only five of 136 communities have fluoride levels that exceed the desired 1 ppm.
"The majority of the wells with the highest amounts of fluoride range from .3 ppm to .6 ppm.
The adjustment to 1 ppm fluoride is easily and inexpensively accomplished. The cost of the average Nebraska community to fluoridate supplies will be approximately 10-26 cents per person per year.
"Many years of using the equipment have proven itself safe, simple and foolproof.
"SeNHPC encourages those communities which are balloting on the fluoridation issue Tuesday to give careful consideration to the long-range health benefits for their citizens that fluoridated water can provide."

departments, will definitely benefit rural counties by providing both needed services and reducing unnecessary reliance on institutional services," according to Executive Director Bill Joern.
In letters to the Clay County Board of Supervisors and the Richardson County Board of Commissioners, NPHA President Worthing called the proposed health departments "a worthwhile investment by the local citizens in the future of health services in the state."
Local health departments "will be a positive step for good health for all people" in both counties, he said.

School Board To Consider Teacher Salary Increase

The Lincoln Public Schools Board of Education will consider ratification of the salary agreement for teaching staff at its regular meeting Tuesday.

The board will meet at 8 a.m. in the Public Schools Administration Building, 720 S. 22nd.
Negotiators for the board and the Lincoln Education Association (LEA), the recognized bargaining agent for teachers, agreed on May 3 to contract terms for the 1974-75 school year.

The settlement would give Lincoln teachers a 10.3% increase in the total amount budgeted for salaries.

The LEA membership will also vote on ratification of the pact Tuesday.

Other agenda items for the school board's consideration include requests by the Superintendent's Student Advisory Board to continue open campus at high schools during lunch hours, and designation of student smoking areas.

The board is scheduled to take action on a request by Lincoln Catholic parochial schools officials that the public schools provide driver education for Plus X students during school days.

The Catholic schools have also requested that provisions of LB403, which permit contracting of services for handicapped children, be used to fund programs for such children in parochial schools.

The law, passed by the 1974 Legislature, provides state funds to public school districts to finance excess per-pupil costs to run special education programs.

Commission Re-Elects Mrs. Kerwin

By LINDA OLIG
Star Staff Writer

The Governor's Commission on the Status of Women Saturday endorsed the past year's course of action — often marked by tedious activity and indecision, a concern to many Nebraska women the commissioners represent and some of the commissioners themselves — as its members voted to retain Ethel Kirwin of Scottsbluff as chairman.

Little more than half of the commissioners (16 of the total 31) attended the spring meeting to cast their votes.

Also elected to the executive board were Shirley Wilken of Columbus, vice chairman; Jan Rasmussen, treasurer, and Pat Lamoerty of Omaha, secretary.

Following her re-election, Mr. Kirwin called for immediate revision of the statute, giving the state-wide commission its power and credibility, and operational by-laws which the commission itself established, calling that proposed action "the most important area for effort and immediate attention."

She questioned the by-laws' requirement for a quorum, operational necessities and the right to have a director.

The group has, however, already begun the search for an executive director and has signed a lease for a permanent office in the Terminal Building.

Mrs. Kirwin said she hopes an executive director will be hired, by July 1. At that time "We hope we will be in (the office) and an active commission."

Little more was accomplished during the last of four annual meetings, despite the fact that motion after motion was submitted, seconded and accepted.

The adopted resolutions, primarily called for tabling recommendations, deferring them to committee or further investigation.

It was suggested that the commission publish a booklet "Laws of Special Interest to Nebraska," similar to one circulated by the Michigan Commission on the Status of Women.

The members chose to first "investigate the need and potential popularity" of such a brochure. That action would have been the first this year to have come out of the Women under the Law Committee chaired by Mrs. Kirwin.

Agreeing that certain laws are discriminatory to women, Mrs. Kirwin said, "If there were one thing we should push for it is a (state) constitutional convention . . . because our laws are in such miserable shape." No action was taken on the recommendation.

The commission did, however, elect to endorse interim Resolution 180, a investigation by the Banking, Commerce and Insurance Committee of the Legislature into the credit situation of divorced, widowed, separated women and minorities.

Asking the commission for its endorsement of the study, member Donna Polk said, "We can't get a bill passed next year (to impede discriminatory practices) unless we prove we are discriminated against as a class."

The commission's Talent Bank Committee, under chairman Ms. Lamberty, were given a mandate by the chair to have free control over names submitted to the governor for appointment to openings on various state committees and commissions.

Ms. Lamberty said the Talent Bank Committee has been operating under the assumption that, if a commission term of a person appointed by Gov. J. James Exon expired, the governor would prefer to reappoint that person. She was advised, without a resolution being adopted, that three to five names are to be submitted, for every appointive position.

In other action, Mrs. Kirwin, and Peg Flowers of Omaha, current vice chairman, were named delegate and alternate delegate to the Interstate Association of Commissions on the Status of Women national conference in Boulder, Colo., June 13 to 16.

Mrs. Kirwin encouraged other interested commission members to participate in the "fun trip" for which the state will pick up the tab.

She was called down on the "fun" aspect by other commission members who had participated in last year's national conference, which had called for round-the-clock meetings, workshops and caucuses.

'Still Long Way To Go'

"Women still have a long ways to go" in obtaining equal status in society, said former Gov. Frank B. Morrison Saturday when he addressed a joint luncheon of the Governor's Commission on the Status of Women and its alumnae group, the Priors.

"Many things throughout my life have pointed out to me the need for women to be active in society . . . in formulation of policy and economic status," he said, recalling that he "knew at an early age" what society's restrictions on women could do to the individual woman and her family.

"Women should draw the same wages for the same work as a man does."

"We still haven't achieved that, but we're on our way," Morrison emphasized.

"In grade school, I was taught America was a great liberator of women," the former governor noted, recalling that India, "where female babies were smothered in the river," often was cited as an example to himself and his fellow students.

He said that he has been to India where half of the parliament is female, many women are medical doctors and a woman is head of state.

"I wondered what kind of propaganda they were feeding me," he said.

Morrison questioned the integrity of a society, such as the United States, "half of the nation's brainpower is located in the female sex" but which "thinks after graduation from college a woman should stay home and not use her brain."

The magnitude of the decline in sentiment and the trouble in the housing and auto industries indicate that the downturn may be rather large when it occurs, say survey directors. A recession, is highly probable, unless consumer spending strengthens and government and business investment improves.

Most players dread the situation that arises here when, at some point in the play, they lead a spade to dummy and must guess whether to play the king or jack after West follows low.

If West has the queen, the jack is the right play; if West has the ace, the king is the right play.

To guess right may look like a toss-up, yet, in the long run, one should guess right much more often than not. How to do this is no great secret; declarer simply gathers every ounce of information he can about the adverse holdings before finally tackling the spade situation.

South starts by drawing two rounds of trumps and finessing the queen of clubs. He does this at once—because he is committed to a club finesse in any case, and locating the king may help him later on to surmount the spade decision.

When the finesse succeeds, declarer plays a diamond to the king. As it happens, West wins with the ace, cashes the queen, and plays another diamond which South ruffs.

The moment of decision is now at hand. Declarer leads a spade, West following low.

South does not have a 100 per cent shot at this point, but there is no doubt about his right play. He should play the jack—because he has discovered that East almost surely has the ace.

It is altogether unreasonable to suppose that West—who passed originally and has shown up with the king of clubs and A-Q of diamonds—has the ace of spades as well.

East is far more likely to have the ace, and declarer's only real hope, therefore, is that West has the queen. He finesses the jack and it is suitably rewarded when it forces the ace and so yields him a tenth trick.

New Lincoln Dentist Is Minority Of One

Star Women's Editor

"I'm part housewife. I want to be able to spend time with my children . . . to be home when they get home from school . . . to have time to fix a nice evening meal," said the young woman, emphasizing a point with a delicate gesture.

But Mrs. Darleen Hemmerlin, mother of two preschool-age boys and wife of a Union College professor, is also part professional.

Four mornings a week she is Dr. Hemmerlin, Lincoln's only woman dentist and one of less than five women practicing dentistry in the state.

The 27-year-old Dr. Hemmerlin is used to being a minority. She was the only female in her dental class and the third woman to graduate from Loma Linda University School of Dentistry in California.

Dr. Hemmerlin, who discarded earlier ideas to be a secretary or nurse, comes from a medical family. Her mother, father, older brother and sister are all medical doctors — in fact, they are all specialists — and her younger brother is studying inhalation therapy.

But encouragement from a family dentist and a college friend eventually led to a decision in her junior year to go into dentistry.

"My mother spent time with us and I didn't mind her working," said the thin, brunette dentist. But she saw how hectic a doctor's schedule can be and decided, "I wanted to have more time to spend with my children."

A southern California native, Dr.

Hemmerlin practiced for one year at a children's dental health clinic in Long Beach, Calif., before the family moved to Lincoln last August.

Since then she has been enjoying her children, Jeffrey, 3, and Brian, 7 months, full time. And last week she moved back into part-time dental practice with the Plaza Dental Group in Lincoln.

Dr. Hemmerlin had no problems getting accepted into dental school. "In fact, I think they were glad to have a female applicant." And, despite good natured kidding from fellow students and instructors, she encountered no problems or prejudices as a dental student.

But she admits that her husband's constant encouragement was a big factor not only in her initial decision, but also in completing the four years of study beyond the bachelor's degree.

Only 2% of the nation's practicing dentists were women according to the 1970 census, but Dr. Hemmerlin expects this to rise. Since she started dental school in 1968, she has noticed many more women applying and many more women graduating from dental schools.

And she encourages girls to consider dentistry while realizing that the training is long — six to eight years beyond high school — and expensive.

She feels that a woman must also consider her own plans for a family and marriage. "They have to realize that this is a profession," a profession that would be hard to follow without encouragement from the husband, Dr. Hemmerlin believes.

Miss Christine Dreith, John Sullivan Marry

Miss Christine Lynne Dreith and John Elijah Sullivan were married during a 3:30 p.m. ceremony which took place Sunday at Sheridan Lutheran Church.

Mrs. John Sullivan

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Dreith, and Mrs. Charles K. Sullivan of Sioux City, Iowa, and the late Iowa State Sen. Charles Sullivan.

Mrs. Gen. Rosio of Milwaukee, Wisc., and Miss Ann Nordstrom were honor attendants, and the bridesmaids included Mrs. Jeanne Boerkircher, Miss Jo Pfenning of York and Miss Nancy Bingham of Dixon.

Steve Ferguson of Sioux City, Iowa, attended Mr. Sullivan as best man; and Mike Risk of Sioux City, Steve Boyd of Wichita, Kan., Bill Roesler and Bob White were groomsmen.

Dan Johnson and Roger Lambert, both of Sioux City, Iowa, and Dennis Priebe of Wickliffe, Ohio seated the guests.

The bride is a student at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln, where she is a member of Kappa Kappa Gamma sorority and where she is majoring in social psychology.

Mr. Sullivan also attends UNL, majoring in English. He is a member of Alpha Tau Omega fraternity.

Beauty Myths Destroyed

These myths have been ruling the beauty lives of millions of women.

—Always splash your face with cold water after washing. No.

—Never wash your face with soap and water — particularly if you are over 20. No.

—The older you get the more you need cream. No.

Use hot and only hot water on your face, says New York fashion reporter Mary Ann Crenshaw in a recent issue of Family Circle magazine.

Soap and water are "basic and essential ingredients for making the skin clean," said the author of the book, "The Natural Way to Super Beauty." "The real answer to beautiful skin lies in tightening it up . . . never allowing one globule of excess oil to loosen it up," she said.

Basic to Ms. Crenshaw's theories is the premise that skin, like hair and nails, is protected by what is called an "acid mantle." This mantle protects skin from the bacteria and pollution that is in our air. And to maintain good skin the acid mantle, which normally is somewhere around 45 depending on skin oiliness, must be protected.

Every product that comes in contact with the skin should be tested for acidity with Nitrazine corn colored testing papers available at pharmacies, according to Ms. Crenshaw.

When these strips are applied to facial products they should remain corn colored. If the Nitrazine turns blue — that means highly alkaline — and highly alkaline can be hazardous to the look of your skin, said Ms. Crenshaw.

Her Spirit Went To Kansas City?

DEAR ABBY: I don't know if you believe in spirits. I never did, but something happened that really got me thinking, and I don't know who else to ask about this.

When my husband was in Kansas City on a business trip he looked up an old girl friend just for old time's sake, and she told him that I had visited her some years back under very mysterious circumstances.

Abby, I have never met this woman in my life. In fact, I have never been to Kansas City. Now here is where the spirits come in.

My husband swears that this girl is telling the truth and that somehow my spirit left my body and went to Kansas City to visit Agnes. He says that Agnes described me to a "t," even to the mole I have on my right cheek, so now I don't know what to think.

Can you explain this? I am all bewildered and confused.

WONDERING
DEAR WONDERING: I don't believe in spirits. Even though you've never been to Kansas City or met Agnes, perhaps Agnes has seen you or a picture of you. Or possibly you have been described in detail to her. Don't worry about it. There is no evidence that spirits exist, much less leave the body and go to Kansas City.

DEAR ABBY: I am 14. My mother remarried two years ago. The problem is that before she remarried, she used to spend all her time with me and my little brother. As soon as she remarried she started spending all her spare time with him.

She is always sending us to the movies, park, etc. just to get us out of the house so she can be alone with him. My younger brother doesn't realize it, but our mother buys us things to make up for it. (Her shutting us out.)

Do you think I should have a talk with her and explain how I feel? I don't have anybody to tell my troubles to. Please help me. I feel so alone.

SHUT OUT
DEAR SHUT: Yes. Tell your mother how you feel. It will open the door to conversation and give your mother an opportunity to tell you how she feels, too. Instead of resenting the time your mother spends with her new husband, you should be glad she has found someone with whom she is so obviously compatible. If she's actually neglecting you and your brother, she may not realize it until you speak up.

DEAR ABBY: In response to the mother of an 11th grader who is upset about the four-letter words in the books assigned him to read by his English teacher.

Mrs. Upset states "If I heard my son using such language as he is being forced to read, he would get five knuckles in the mouth."

As a mother and teacher it is my opinion that there is more suffering in this world caused by parents who think parenthood gives them the right to apply five knuckles in the mouth than by all the four-letter words that ever were.

Just as beauty lies in the eye of the beholder, so does filth in literature. To this beholder, dirty words, if used at all, might better be used to describe man's inhumanity to man. The inhumanity of assuming the right to judge the values of another person and further assuming the right to physically assault another person because of a difference in values.

A WISCONSIN MOTHER AND TEACHER

DEAR MOTHER AND TEACHER: Beautiful! Your students are fortunate, and your children are blessed.

Day Of Week, Not Cycle, Affects Moods

Detroit — Fluctuation in feminine moods, commonly attributed to the menstrual cycle, is more heavily influenced by the day of the week, according to a study reported to the American Psychiatric Assn.

Women, it was found, are happy, depressed, achy, irritable, loving, friendly or alert depending on how close the day is to a weekend.

"Rather than blue Monday, data suggests blue Wednesday, the day of the week furthest from the weekend, when mood states were most positive," Prof. Alice S. Rossi of Goucher College, Towson, Md., declared. Contrary to expectation, there was only a slight tendency for positive moods to peak at the time of ovulation (release of egg for fertilization) and for negative moods to reach their low point in the first few days of the menstrual period.

"Actually, most subjects showed no pattern set by menstrual cycle," said Dr. Rossi.

She gave no reason for the better moods on weekends but noted that in the study group most of the sex activity occurs on weekends.

"If the day before menstruation fell on a Friday or Saturday, 58% of the women reported an elevated 'sexy' feeling," said Dr. Rossi. "If the same day fell on a Tuesday through Thursday, only 11% reported a sexy rating."

The reverse pattern was found when the women rated themselves "achy." Over-all, there was a peaking of the achy rating on the first day of the menstrual period, but if the first day occurred during the weekend, the achy ratings were lower.

Dr. Rossi said there is no reason to assume that the mood and behavior changes for women are any different from that for men. She criticized the medical literature that ties women's suicides, thefts, accidents or broken appointments to the menstrual cycle.

Men may not have a monthly cycle of hormonal secretion but it is reasonable to assume they have daily ones since the production of male sex hormones varies from day time to night time.

A common denominator influencing moods in both men and women is weather, clouds or sunshine, as well as personal successes and failures, she suggested.

"The human organism," she added, "is a finely tuned set of biological and social clocks, responsive to both internal endocrine states and the external social and physical environment."

Women on the pill show a greater fluctuation of mood from day to day than women sexually inactive or using non-chemical contraceptives.

that the pill, because of its high hormonal content, might even out the mood swings, said Dr. Rossi.

The study showed that sex for males tends to even out moods. "Males come down from a high positive mood after coitus and up from an unusually low mood state after masturbation," said Dr. Rossi.

"Women do not show this pattern. The greatest mood shift attending sex activity for women is the presence or absence of orgasm. There is a sharp drop in positive moods and a sharp increase in negative mood ratings the day after an ungratified coitus."

Boston Earns Title

... Bucks Falter, 102-87

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (UPI) — People talk so much about the tradition and pride of the Boston Celtics it's become an almost overworked phrase.

But all that tradition and all the pride came pouring out Sunday when the "new Celtics" won to bring Boston its 12th National Basketball Association title since the start of the NBA.

The Celtics did it the old-fashioned way — by playing harder and tougher than the other team—the Milwaukee Bucks, who saw their title hopes go down the drain in a 102-87 Boston victory.

"Sure we were tired," Boston's center Dave Cowens said. "But that fatigue is sometimes only in your head. You can always go a little harder, find that extra inch or that needed gust of wind."

The Celtics found all they needed Sunday as they built a 17-point lead midway through the third quarter. But the Bucks roared back and trailed by only three points before Boston found that extra gust.

With the score 71-68 early in the fourth quarter, Boston got eight straight points from four different men to take a 79-68 lead and the Bucks' hopes were dead.

Boston went to a sagging defense that limited Kareem Abdul-Jabbar to only three points in the crucial final quarter and, without their big scorer, The Bucks could do nothing.

"We fronted him and we played him on the side," Boston Coach Tommy Heinsohn said. "We confused them so they couldn't even get the ball in to him."

And the Bucks don't have the shooters to hit from the perimeter which has to be done to make that kind of defense useless.

"If you hit the shots, the sag won't work," said Oscar Robertson of the Bucks. "But if you can't shoot, the sag is the best defense in the world."

"Boston's a great team with no weaknesses," Bucks' Coach Larry Costello said. "They really got jacked up and there was no stopping them today."

John Havlicek, the tireless heart of the Celtics, had an off day as he scored only 16 points.

But his hustle and fire lifted the Celtics when they needed it most.

"During the early years of my career with Boston we looked to Bill Russell for the leadership," Havlicek said. "But this is the new Celtics and it's our first title. Now the guys all look to me with the respect for that leadership. And that makes this the most satisfying title of all."

Havlicek won the Sport Magazine award as the outstanding player in the seven game series, but many people felt Cowens, who had 28 points Sunday, was a close second.

The victory was worth $100,000 to the Celtics and built their post-season earning total to $215,000.

The Bucks got $65,000 as losers and wound up with $220,000 for post-season play. Milwaukee's total was just short of the 1972 record pool of $224,000 won by the Los Angeles Lakers.

Milwaukee received a $40,000 bonus for finishing with the best regular season record in the NBA.

The seven-game series saw the Celtics win three of the four games in Milwaukee, while the Bucks won two of the three in Boston.

'Temperamental' Hill Snares Houston Open

HOUSTON (UPI) — Temperamental Dave Hill heated his golf game Sunday afternoon to the intensity of his criticism to sink eight birdie putts in the final 18 holes, fire a seven-under-par 65 and win the $30,000 winner's share in the Houston Open by one stroke over Steve Melnyk, Rod Curl and Andy North.

More important to Hill than the money, he said, was the chance to "pay back" the sponsors of the Open who he criticized in 1973 as being rude to him when they would not allow him to withdraw.

Hill, a co-leader Saturday, said if he won first money it would not soothe his anger.

"They can keep it," he said. "I just want to win. I want to pay them back."

Sunday, the edge off his tongue and the money in his pocket, Hill said this win, like the previous 10 in his 15-year tour career, was "nice."

Hill watched as big-hitting Melnyk barely missed a 20-foot putt at No. 18 which would have forced a playoff.

"It didn't bother me," Hill said. "What the hell could I do about it? I wasn't out there to yell at him."

Melnyk, a co-leader with Hill after two rounds, said the putt went in the hole and came out.

"It was probably the best putt I ever hit that I had to hit well," he said. "I guess it was going too fast."

Curl and North both came from several shots off the pace before Sunday's 36 holes to finish one back. Two strokes behind them were Dave Stockton, who finished second at Houston last year, and Joe Inman.

Hubert Green and the 47-year-old Bob Rosburg also put on final day streaks only to fall three shots short. Rosburg, the 1959 PGA champion, was particularly happy at his comeback.

"This was the best finish I have had in a long time," he said, "but I really felt like I threw the tournament away."

After a morning round of 67, Rosburg put together a string of four straight birdies—three on putts over 14 feet—to offset two bogeys and shoot an afternoon 69.

Rosburg held the lead at one time during the long day as did Melnyk. Curl, North, Inman and Stockton

The three golfers tied for second place each earned $11,600, and Stockton and Curl took home $5,773 paychecks.

But it was Hill who kept a huge gallery on its toes by losing his lead in the morning round to a two-over 74 only to charge back in the afternoon.

"When I got to the tee this morning," he explained, "everything wanted to turn left. It was a big adjustment."

Hughes Propels Houston

CHICAGO (AP) — Frank Hughes' tie-breaking, unassisted goal at 15:48 of the third period gave the Houston Aeros a 3-2 victory over the Chicago Cougars Sunday in the opening game of the final round of the World Hockey Association playoffs.

Trailng 2-0, the Cougars came up with goals by Bob Liddington and Don Gordon in the third period to tie the game before Hughes scored the winning goal on a shot from the slot.

The second game of the best-of-seven series will be played in the suburban Randhurst arena Wednesday night and the series then moves to Houston for games Friday and Sunday. If a fifth game is necessary, that too will be played in Houston Monday, May 20.

Although the Cougars outshot the Aeros 31-29, they did not get on the scoreboard until 5:42 of the final period when Liddington deflected a shot by Pat Stapleton past goalie Don McLeod.

Some eight minutes later at 13:45, Gordon tied the game with his fourth playoff goal.

Houston took the lead on Larry Hale's goal at 6:31 of the first period as both teams were shorthanded. Hale put his shot into the net while Chicago goalie Andre Gill was out of position.

Gordon Labossiere's powerplay goal at 9:19 of the period gave the Aeros their two-goal lead.

Aaron Hits No. 721 As Hitters Prevail

By The Associated Press

Hank Aaron's 721st career homer proved a key blow Sunday as hitters in both major baseball leagues banged a total of two dozen circuit blasts in rain-curtailed baseball action.

Aaron's eighth season homer, a one-run shot, capped Atlanta's scoring and helped give the Braves a 5-1 victory against San Francisco in the first game of a doubleheader. The Giants won the nightcap 6-2 with the help of Dave Kingman's home run.

Merv Rettenmund's inside-the-park homer led the Cincinnati Reds to a 4-2 victory and a sweep of their doubleheader against the Houston Astros.

Rettenmund, Dave Concepcion, and Johnny Bench homered for the Reds in their 5-0 opening victory.

Tom Seaver gave up his 10th season homer, tops in the National League, as the New York Mets lost to the Chicago Cubs 4-3. The two-run shot by Jose Cardenal paced the Cubs and George Mitterwald's one-run single won it in the ninth.

The Los Angeles Dodgers outslugged the San Diego Padres 15-

9 as Steve Yeager's two-run single in the 13th capped a six-run inning for the winners Jim Wynn hit his 12th homer of the season for the Dodgers earlier in the game.

Mike Anderson's two-run homer sparked the Philadelphia Phillies past the Pittsburgh Pirates, 8-7. Dave Cash hit a triple in the seventh and scored the eventual winning run on a ground out.

In the American League, George Scott and Dave May homered as the Milwaukee Brewers topped the New York Yankees 5-1 to sweep a rain-shortened twinbill. Milwaukee won the opener 7-3.

Wasting Willie Horton's first-inning three-run homer, the Detroit Tigers lost to the Boston Red Sox 4-3 after Dick McAuliffe drilled a run-scoring double in the 10th.

Pat Kelly's two-run homer led the Chicago White Sox past the Texas Rangers 5-4. Ed Herrmann's single in the seventh got the deciding run off loser Ferguson Jenkins, 6-3, who pitched his ninth complete game.

The Oakland Athletics downed the Minnesota Twins 9-2 after Angel Mangual got the winners rolling with a two-run homer.

Hal McRae and Fran Healy socked solo homers for Kansas City in the first game of a doubleheader against the California Angels and McRae's run-scoring single in the ninth gave the Royals a 3-2 win. Kansas City won the second game 5-2.

A doubleheader between the Baltimore Orioles and the Cleveland Indians was rained out as was the game between the St. Louis Cardinals and the Montreal Expos.

Lincolmites Win At Wilber

Wilber — Motorcycle drivers from Lincoln dominated the Sunday races here by winning six of the seven divisions.

Lincolmites Kim Hoveling, Don Roberts, Jim Grantski, John Hier, Greg Whitney and Jim Ahlstedt and Francis Thompson of Plymouth won.

The next races here are set for May 26.

Prince Astro Tops Ak Field

Omaha — Prince Astro, an easy winner in the $20,000-added Beef State Handicap, has been assigned top weight for Saturday's running of the $35,000-added Ak-Sar-Ben Handicap.

Owned by C. L. Warner of Arlington, Tex., Prince Astro has been asked by racing secretary John Maluvius to shoulder 125 pounds for the six-furlong sprint.

Prince Astro was ridden by Dan W. Whited and earned a 4 1/2 length victory over Believe A Little in the Beef State. Believe A Little, owned by Kemper Marley of Phoenix, Ariz., is second in the weights at 118 pounds. Believe A Little had the early lead in the Beef State, only to have Prince Astro breeze by in the final eighth of a mile.

Swinging Flight, owned by J. J. Carras of Bay City, Mich., has been assigned 117 pounds off a victory in an allowance race last Saturday. Swinging Flight, ridden by John L. Lively, defeated Canadian Jeff by a nose in the allowance test at 5 1/2 furlongs.

Canadian Jeff, owned by M. H. Van Berg Stable, Inc., and Patrick J. Luckino, will carry 115 pounds. Sum Ford's Fleet Honey was given 116 pounds.

Believe A Little, 118 lbs.
Swinging Flight, 117 lbs.
Canadian Jeff, 115 lbs.
Sum Ford's Fleet Honey, 116 lbs.
Prince Astro, 125 lbs.

Track Conditions Cancel Racing

Early — The opening stock car program at Early Raceway was canceled Sunday.

Track owner Harvey Kropp said he was unable to get the track ready to go for the opener, causing the cancellation.

Kropp indicated he would have Sunday racing, however, speculated the racing would be on Sunday nights.

Herndl will speak on the U.N. peacekeeping activities and its role in political issues of the day. His speech is scheduled for 6:30 p.m. Monday at the Nebraska Center for Continuing Education, 33rd & Holdrege Sts.

Agnew Business Called 'Private'

Athens (UPI) — Former Vice President Spiro T. Agnew arrived in Greece alone Sunday on what he called "private business" without further explanation.

Agnew's quiet, almost unnoticed arrival was in mark contrast to the hero's welcome he received on his arrival here three years ago.

"I am on business," Agnew told newsmen who met him in the bar of his hotel. When asked to elaborate, he said, "private" and abruptly ended the conversation.

Our inexpensive overflow copier isn't cheap.

You get benefits with our Model 625 that usually come only from big copiers - flatbed design, multiple copies selector, colored paper in cassettes, ten copies in one minute. Yet the 625 is small in size and price. In big offices it's great for overflow copying. Little offices use it for everything, including invoicing. Call us and we'll show you the little copier that works big.

'Athletic Scholarship' For Gal

Oregon State has offered an "athletic scholarship" to Joni Huntley, Sheridan, Ore., the first and only American woman to clear 6-0 in the high jump and she's accepted.

Oregon State athletic director Jim Barratt made the announcement that Joni would get approximately $1,500 a year "from groups such as the OSU Dads Clubs."

Barratt indicated the funds would come from three different sources and would not officially be financial aid from the school.

Seven universities, including Colorado and UCLA, tried to recruit the Fosbury flopping young woman, but she said Oregon State's reputation of good high jumpers" helped as much as anything in her decision.

Indecision, as much as anything, reportedly was one of the reasons Kearney State joined the Great Plains Athletic Conference instead of forming a new conference with Wayne, Chadron, Northern, S.D., Eastern Montana and Black Hills, S.D.

The energy crisis stalled plans the schools had informing the proposed new conference because of the distance between some of the members.

However, Kearney has been looking for a new conference since Hastings dropped out of the Nebraska College Conference in 1969 and apparently decided to take a sure thing in the GPAC instead of waiting for the other schools decision on the new conference.

Kearney announced that it wasn't dropping out of the NCC, but joining the GPAC will still create some problems. The Antelopes will have to upgrade their athletic program in order to compete in the GPAC.

Teams currently members of the GPAC are Fort Hays, Washburn, Emporia, and Pittsburg of Kansas and Northern and Southern Colorado.

Edge Now To Kearney

By upgrading its athletic program to compete with GPAC, Kearney will widen the gap that already exists in the NCC.

One of the reasons that the church-related colleges in Nebraska dropped out of the NCC is that Kearney was beginning to dominate too many sports.

When the enrollments of the four state colleges began to drop, Kearney suffered the least and its athletic program stayed about on the same level of competition.

However, the athletic programs at the other three state colleges dropped some in competition and the Antelopes began to dominate a little more

With Kearney improving its athletic program to an even higher level of competition in the GPAC, the gap between the Antelopes and the other three schools could become greater.

Then the three other state colleges might choose to drop Kearney from their schedule, if they could and that would leave the state with three levels of competition in the state college ranks.

UNO has already upgraded its athletic program to one level, Kearney is planning on improving to level UNO used to be and the other state colleges will be on another.

'Rainy' Win To Prentice

Raleigh, N.C. (AP) — Heavy rain caused cancellation of the final round of the American Defender Golf Classic Sunday and Jo Ann Prentice was declared the winner with a seven-under-par 137 for 36 holes.

Thirty-two players had teed off in the rain when tournament officials ruled the Raleigh Country Club course unplayable. The event was scheduled for 54 holes.

Miss Prentice, 41, who shot a course-record 65 on opening day, won $5,000 to increase her earnings for the year to $52,702, tops on the Ladies Professional Golf Association tour.

Laura Baugh, 18, was runnerup with 139 and received $3,750. She recorded her lowest professional round Saturday with a 66, which included six birdies.

Alvarez Named Lexington Coach

Barry Alvarez, varsity assistant football coach at Lincoln Northeast the past four years, has accepted the head football coaching position at Class B Lexington.

Alvarez will succeed Noel Martin, who resigned last month to become offensive backfield coach at the University of Nebraska at Omaha.

The 27-year-old Alvarez, a second team all-Big Eight linebacker at Nebraska in 1967, was a graduate assistant coach for the Cornhuskers for two years while earning his masters degree before joining the Northeast staff.

The Burgetstown (Pa.) Union High School graduate helped coach the Rockets to the 1972 Class A co-state championship with an 8-0 record.

Alvarez expressed pleasure about his first head coaching assignment, citing Lexington's tradition as an important factor. The Minutemen have lost only two games in the last four seasons.

Alvarez will also teach physical education. He, wife Cindy and daughters Dawn, 5, and Stacey, 2, plan to move to Lexington in July. His wife is a physical education instructor at Pound Junior High School.

David City's Richards Enjoys Winning Habit

By BOB MOYER

And Sunday night at Midwest Speedway he started to make winning just that, capturing his second consecutive modified stock car main event.

Last week Richards won when leader Dick Jensen's car blew a tire on the 19th lap of the 25-lap feature. But this week Richards broke on top and there was never any doubt he would be able to win.

Richards' only challenge came on the first lap. Starting on the inside pole position, he had to fight off other front row starter, Kent Tucker of Aurora, on both turns.

But when Tucker moved in to pass Richards, he skidded up high on the curves, allowing Richards to shut the door on him.

"I didn't have it sacked by any means," Richards, the defending Midwest point champion, said, "I wouldn't have bet against him passing me, but, frankly, I think his engines just too big for his car," he added.

Richards, one of the few drivers at Midwest in a Ford, says he uses a 351 cubic inch engine in his car while he thinks that Tucker has over 500 cubes in his.

Richards said he had no troubles with the muddy track. "There was a hole on the first turn, but other than that, the track really wasn't too bad," he noted, "I didn't have much trouble finding the groove."

It was a good night for David City drivers. Besides Terry window the main event, his brother, Tom, came in fourth while Don Syskal finished fifth to give the

Indy Non-Qualifiers Drill

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind (UPI) — It was back to more practice Sunday for the non-qualified cars for the Indianapolis 500 with 18 positions still to be filled next weekend when time trials are scheduled to end.

A. J. Foyt, meanwhile, will have to wait until next Saturday to find out whether he will start on the pole for the million-dollar chase May 26.

The new qualifying format calls for time trials on two successive Saturdays only, cutting the allotted time to qualify for the race exactly in half from previous years.

Fifteen cars made the field Saturday and Foyt, Houston, Tex., the first man out, was the quickest at an average speed of 191.632 miles per hour, which he doesn't think is fast enough to hold the pole.

928 pages of sports facts seems incredible—but true—and at what a great, low price! This AP charter, paperback edition for 1974 is packed with information on some 100 sports throughout the world. You'll be able to find the particular facts or figures on a sport, from archery to yachting, at your fingertip. The book includes histories of each sport, some rules of the game, winners, times, champions, personality profiles, great photos—and more.

And the price is low—only $1.65 (plus 20 cents for postage and handling). Send for your edition today, and think about what a great gift for birthday or any other reason this book would be!
